Communists Insist Upon War Reform

Four Are Mentioned for New Invitation to Name Ministers.

By the Associated Press.

Valencia, Spain, May 16.—Francisco Largo Caballero tonight refused to make further efforts to form a new government to replace the cabinet whose resignation he turned in yesterday. His action created a grave new crisis for the Spanish government.

His refusal, announced to President Manuel Azana, who had commissioned the stern, gray-haired leader to form a "win the war" ministry, was based on strong opposition to the make-up of his proposed new cabinet on the part of the Communist political faction.

A stalemate was reached largely because of the veteran's insistence on retaining the war ministry portfolio with the premiership.

This plan met the determined opposition of the Communists, who announced they were intent on reorganization of the war machine for an intensive drive to victory against Gen. Francisco Franco's insurgents.

Four Are Mentioned.

It is believed President Azana would select one of four persons to attempt to form a cabinet—Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, minister of foreign affairs in the last ministry; Indalecio Prieto, minister of marine and air; Dr. Juan Negrin, minister of finance; or Julian Besteiro, former minister to The Hague and president of the constituent assembly.

The Communists were supported in their opposition to Largo Caballero's proposals by Socialists, who refused to join any government in which there were no Communists, and by the Left Republicans, who backed the Communists' demands for a stronger war policy.

On the other hand, the C. N. T. (Confederacion Nacional del Trabajo, a syndicalist organization of workers) denounced the premier-designate's proposal to reduce the number of Anarchist seats in the cabinet from four to two.

The C. N. T. also charged Largo Caballero's proposed ministry gave the Socialists too strong an economic grip on Spain through the ministries accorded them.

Communists Firm.

His chances for success in forming his third cabinet of the civil war diminished through the day as the Communists stood steadfastly behind the conditions they had outlined for participation in the government.

These included separation of the war ministry from the premiership, reorganization of the general staff and the initiation of "a consistent war policy."

The Communist and Socialist executive council after a meeting tonight told Largo Caballero their attitude remained unchanged and he quickly informed President Azana by telephone he was compelled to abandon his effort to form a government.

Despite the difficulty encountered in settling the discords among factors in the People's Front government, the country outside the war zone was calm.

City Calm After Raid.

While political leaders strove to achieve order out of the welter of conflicting party demands, Sunday crowds surged through the sunshine to view the destruction wrought by insurgent air raiders at nightfall yesterday.

The number of dead in that raid—most destructive yet suffered by the temporary capital—rose to 38 as victims in hospitals died. Among them was the cook of the British Embassy, Justine Garcia. Sixty-six were listed as wounded.

Seven insurgent bombers swooped down on the city last night just as dusk fell. One bomb fell in front of the British Embassy, wounding a doorman in addition to Garcia. Another fell in front of the ministry of marine and air.

A high official said the air raid was "a cowardly attack on a civilian

Albania Army Is Advancing to Battle Rebels

Former Official Starts Rebellion Against King Zog.

By the United Press.

Tirana, Albania (Monday), May 17.—King Ahmed Zog's British-trained army was reported early today to be advancing on rebels who started a revolution in the southern provinces of this tiny Balkan kingdom.

Zog's official news agency said the revolt was "inspired by Communist tendencies" and was started by former Home Minister Etemtoto, who was a member of the Freshera cabinet from October, 1935, until last November.

(An unconfirmed dispatch from Athens, Greece, said, however, that the revolt followed a week of rioting against King Zog's decree ordering the unveiling of Mohammedan women.)

Zog's army was said to be meeting no resistance in its march upon the rebels who seized Argyrokastron, capital city of the prefecture of Southern Albania with 10,800 population, and nearby towns.

A government communique said stern measures had been taken to quell the revolutionary movement, which includes mostly civilians led by Etemtoto, an officer of the gendarmerie and a former army captain.

Telephone service between Argyrokastron, Tepelene, Kurveleshi and Libohava was said to have been cut. An officer of the gendarmerie was killed by the revolutionists.

Revolt Stirs Rome.

Rome, May 16 (AP).—Italy found particular interest in news of insurrection from Albania tonight because it came soon after a visit to King Zog of Albania by Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Man Shot, Beaten By Four Autoists In Traffic Dispute

A traffic dispute ended seriously yesterday for Oscar J. Bache, 43, of 910 Rhode Island avenue northeast, when he was shot in the groin by a colored motorist on the southern Maryland highway near Prince Frederick.

Bache was returning from Solomon's Island when his car was in collision with a machine containing four colored men and bearing District of Columbia tags. In a dispute that followed, Bache told police, one of the colored men knocked him down. Then, he said, another stuck a pistol toward his stomach, and in the struggle that followed the weapon was discharged.

"Joe bought us ice cream and then hurt us."

About 12 feet from the girl's body the leaves and grass were burned and nearby a bloodstained butcher-knife, a blood-stained pair of scissors and an ax with no stains were found.

District Attorney Barron Hill, of Suffolk County, said the assailant apparently believed he had killed both children, had saturated their clothes with gasoline, set fire to them and piled on leaves.

For some reason the fire went out, Hill surmised, and the little girl crawled a few feet away and died, while the boy managed to struggle 200 feet away.

Girl, 6, Slain, Brother Slashed; Mother Also Feared Victim

By the Associated Press.

Brookhaven, N. Y., May 16.—A 6-year-old girl was slashed to death today and her 4-year-old brother was wounded seriously by a man the boy could identify only as "Joe" and who, he said, "hurt mommy, too."

The feverish ramblings of the boy gave State and Brookhaven police their only clew to the knife killer and sent them back into the woods near here in a race with darkness to find "mommy."

The boy, his throat slashed and a deep wound in the back of his scalp, was conscious enough to tell police: "My name is Jimmy."

But he could not give his last name nor tell where he lived.

He was found crying in the tangled thickets by police led by 18-year-old Margaret Savage, who a few minutes before had stumbled over the body of the slain girl.

Child Labor Ban Is Goal Of Connery

New Wage Hour Measure Has Presidential Approval.

35-Hour Week for Textile Industry Aim of New Bill.

By the Associated Press.

Lawrence, Mass., May 16.—United States Representative William P. Connery, jr. (Democrat), Massachusetts, tonight declared the House Labor Committee, of which he is chairman, would report favorably "with Presidential approval" a bill which would provide an $18 minimum wage and 35-hour week for the textile industry throughout the country.

Connery declared the committee also would report favorably "with Presidential approval" a bill which would provide minimum wages, maximum hours and no child labor for all industries throughout the United States.

He said he had discussed the measure with President Roosevelt before the President left for his recent vacation "and the President told me to go to it," he added.

Connery, a veteran of the famous Twenty-sixth Yankee Divison of the A. E. F. addressed 800 Italian-Americans at a testimonial dinner for Michael Pslese, a wounded veteran of the Twenty-sixth Division.

He asserted he was not taking up labor's argument.

"I don't want anyone to think because I am on the House Labor Committee that I am lined up with labor. We are concerned with manufacturers' problems also," he said.

"Every manufacturer in Lawrence and elsewhere in New England as well as every employe," he said, "should be for the minimum wage and maximum hour bill for the textile industry because it will take care of the unfair Southern competition.

"Southern manufacturers have been paying small wages and working their help long hours for years."

"Similarly," he continued, "other industries would be protected by the minimum wages and maximum hours bill for all industries. Boston should be protected against unfair competition provided by manufacturers in Maine, the South and Missouri."

Movement Revived.

Opening of a serious drive for Federal legislation on minimum wages and hours and child labor, suggested yesterday by Representative Connery, comes as the climax to weeks of discussion as to Administration policy in this respect.

Dormant after outlawing of NRA and failure of the Black-Connery 30-hour week bill of two years ago, proposals for Federal control of industrial conditions by act of Congress have multiplied since the Supreme Court's prison-made goods and Wagner act decisions.

These were given further impetus when hearings were opened three weeks ago on the Ellenbogen bill to establish a miniature NRA for the textile industry. Suggestions of industry-by-industry regulation through other similar bills were vetoed by the Administration, however.

Delay in the Administration child-labor program, since President Roosevelt appealed at the beginning of his second term for ratification of the child-labor amendment, resulted in Senate hearings now in progress.

Differences between the pending child-labor proposals in the Senate and Connery's forthcoming bill were not made clear in Connery's statement yesterday.

Wheeler Seeks Action.

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, of the Interstate Commerce Committee, said yesterday he will seek to have the Senate act on child labor legislation before the court reorganization fight is carried to the Senate floor.

Wheeler forecast swift Senate approval of a child labor measure as soon as one is reported favorably by his committee.

Proponents of child labor legislation are at odds over the type of control that should be established, but Wheeler expressed the opinion these differences would be adjusted quickly in committee.

He said that as soon as hearings on the subject are concluded, he will appoint a sub-committee to draft a compromise bill incorporating some features of each of the proposals before the committee.

The committee will resume hearings tomorrow, with Katherine Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau, expressing the views of the Labor Department.

Denmark Pays Tribute To King Christian X

26th Year of Progress, Tranquillity Starts in Nation.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Copenhagen, Denmark, May 16.—Denmark today launched into its twenty-sixth year of the reign of King Christian X, as the high point of a nation-wide celebration of the monarch's silver jubilee died away.

All through the night throughout the nation the subjects of King Christian paid joyous tribute to the man whose rule has seldom been surpassed in progress and tranquility in the history of the nations of the world.

King Gustafson of Sweden and King Haakon of Norway headed a long list of royalty who gathered from throughout Europe to take part in the jubilee. It was the first time in 25 years that the three Scandinavian rulers had been together here.

And the visiting rulers and their families were treated to as spontaneous a demonstration of loyalty as has ever been accorded a king.

All last night great crowds danced in the streets in the square in front of Copenhagen's city hall. It was the same throughout the land.

During the night a torchlight procession of 4,000 students marched to Christianborg Palace to serenade the King and his royal guest dining there. The King and Queen came out on the balcony and smiled and waved to their youthful subjects below.

Hitler Plans Peace Pledge For 4 Nations

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

London, May 16.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany was reported in diplomatic quarters tonight to be drawing up a western European peace pact, containing a 25-year pledge of mutual defense for Great Britain, France, Belgium and Germany.

The treaty in which the four western European nations would contract not to attack each other and band together in a common policy of security, was said to have grown out of conversations in London during the last few days between Lieut. Gen. Werner von Blomberg, Nazi minister of war, and high British officials.

Simultaneously, it was reported from Paris that a common Franco-British declaration on the security of Central Europe will be published within a few days, stressing necessity of territorial stabilization in the Danubian basin.

Austria Involved.

The Franco-British statement—reported to have resulted from the London visit of Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister to London for the coronation of King George VI—reportedly will be designed to circumvent any anschluss between Austria and the German Reich or a German-Italian rapprochement regarding Fascist rights in Austria.

Diplomatic correspondents of The People and The Sunday Chronicle predicted Hitler's sweeping peace proposal as result of the London conversations of von Blomberg, who is chief of the German general staff and remained, after the coronation ceremonies, to discuss the state of European affairs with the King, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, the Duke of Kent and Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain, who soon will succeed Baldwin as premier.

"Hitler is about to propose to Britain and France the conclusion of a western European peace pact," The People said. "France, Great Britain, Belgium and Germany would be the contracting powers and each would undertake not to attack each other and also to defend each other in event of attack during the next 25 years.

"Blomberg made it clear to British statesmen that Germany does not want to attack France, Britain or Belgium and does not want to alter either the French or Belgian boundaries.

"While insisting on her rights to colonies, Blomberg said, Germany does not want at present to press the demand for return of those handed over to Britain."

The projected peace pact, it was explained, was responsible for a sudden decision by Hitler to postpone his proposed meeting with Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy to discuss closer Italo-German relations.

Hitler's Alternative.

The People, said Hitler, was willing to negotiate the proposed pact "either directly or through the League of Nations."

Hitler's overture, it was reported, was backed by a soft-spoken threat to proceed with a direct "understanding" with Mussolini in event his peace plan is rejected.

If the plan is accepted, however, he will agree not to aid Italy in any way hostile to French and British interests in the Mediteranean.

The Franco-British declaration on Austria and Central Europe will be drafted in Paris Tuesday, it was reported, when Delbos returns from Dorogne, where he attended a departmental meeting today.

The coronation of King George VI provided an unobtrusive means of holding a "little international conference" in London at which the main topic was the problem of general European appeasement.

Eden, during ten days of the coronation festivities, talked with representatives of more than 50 countries.

Diplomatic conversations shifted to Paris today when the statesmen stopped off in the French capital, en route back to their posts.

Fluttering Heart Afflicts Aged Pontiff During Pentecostal Feast.

By the United Press.

Castle Gandolfo, Italy, May 16.—A serious relapse in the condition of Pope Pius XI, alarming attendants at the papal summer palace here today forced the aged Pontiff to return to his wheel chair for the feast of Pentecost.

Every precaution was taken by the Holy Father's physician, Prof. Aminta Milani, and his intimates to preserve his waning strength.

Prof. Milani, who returned to Rome tonight after hurrying to Castle Gandolfo by automobile, was said to have found his 78-year-old patient's heart fluttering and his breathing difficult.

The Pope was described as gasping for breath and perspiring copiously. Sores have appeared on both of his afflicted legs, it was said. The Pope moves about his private apartments and library in the wheel chair, to which he was confined last December.

Members of the papal household said Milani persuaded the Pontiff, who will be 80 years old the last of this month, to spend a quiet day and rest as much as possible.

At the physician's instructions the mass of Pentecost was celebrated by Mgr. Confalonieri, the Pope's secretary.

After the mass the Pope was wheeled into his private library, where he received Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, who supposedly urged the pontiff to abbreviate as much as possible the day's ceremony in which he approved decrees for canonization of the Polish Jesuit, Andrew Bobola.

Bobola went to England in 1840 and founded several religious homes.

After the blessings the Pope was wheeled back to his bedroom, where Milani's assistants bathed his face, neck and hands to wipe away beads of perspiration that appeared during the brief ceremony.

3 Spectators Die, Driver, 3 Others Hurt in Auto Race

Langhorne, Pa., May 16 (AP).—A tangle of racing cars, one crashing into an outer fence, killed three spectators and injured four other persons, including a driver, in the 50-mile feature event at the Langhorne Speedway today.

The dead were Lewis W. Tanner, 18, of Bristol; Roberts Samson, 13, of Trenton; Anthony Zukes, 19, of Philadelphia.

The injured: Frank Bailey, 22, New Brunswick, N. J., driver; Francis Piechowiak, 23, Philadelphia; Harry Hey, 19, Philadelphia; Jesse Jacobs, 13, Philadelphia.

The accident occurred when Bailey, racing to gain second place in the race, swerved to avoid hitting the car of Bud Henderson, of Akron, Ohio, and crashed into the outer fence, on which a number of spectators were sitting.

Witnesses said Henderson's car, a moment before, hit two spectators who attempted to cross the track to the infield.

Quadruplets Born To Wife of Baker; Put in Incubator

Montreal, May 16 (Canadian Press).—Quadruplets—three boys and one girl—were born today to Mrs. Paul Martel, 30-year-old baker's wife. The infants were put in incubators and taken by ambulance to a hospital. Each was given a good chance to live.

The first child was born without medical assistance. Dr. J. A. Barrette attended the French-Canadian mother at the birth of the others.

Court Plan's Hope Shifted Upon House

Passage There, Eventual Compromise With Senate Sought.

Allies Ready for Defeat on Straight Bill in Upper Chamber.

By Robert C. Albright.

Parliamentary strategy on the President's court plan, involving shuttling of the measure between the two Houses, with a probable ultimate compromise in conferences, was unfolded last night in a quarter close to the Administration.

Premised on stronger House sentiment for the full six-judge increase, this source said the Administration is even prepared to take a licking, if necessary, in the Senate, on the straight increase, without compromise in that body.

Under this course of action, the compromise, when it comes, would be framed in the House or in conference, if the widely forecast Senate defeat should develop.

Court plan supporters concede defeat tomorrow when the Senate Judiciary Committee will ballot.

The new strategy is to use the same tactics employed in forcing passage of the public utility holding company act, but in "reverse" application. In that instance the Senate passed the holding company act, and the House twice refused to accept "death sentence" features. The bill went back to conference, and after a long tie-up a successful compromise amendment was framed.

One Hitch in House.

Reversing this procedure, if the Senate defeats the full increase in the court, the offensive would be taken in the House, where a 50-vote margin for the plan is claimed. Should all hope for the full increase fade, the House would engineer a compromise satisfactory to the Administration, and acceptable to sufficient Senators to pass it, this legislative strategist said.

One important hitch already has developed in this plan to fall back on the House for support, but one that Administration supporters insist is not insurmountable.

The conservative House Judiciary Committee, headed by Representative Hatton W. Sumners, of Texas, is said to be aligned 15 to 10 against the President's plan at the present time.

A majority of five against the plan in the House committee, even if some switches develop, is sufficient to hold it in committee indefinitely, and thus thwart the strategical House maneuver.

May Seek Discharge.

Should the committee hold out, the present plan is to circulate a petition to discharge the committee. This would require 218 signatures, and a considerable length of time. If 218 members signed such a petition, and leaders claim they would, the bill automatically would be assured of a majority House vote.

Still hoping to avoid petition tactics, a House committee compromise, or even an adverse report, may be sought, merely for the purpose of getting the bill before the chamber. This is the strategy that is now being followed before the Senate committee, where Senators are aligned 10 to 8 against a six-judge increase.

Active House negotiations in the last week to use that chamber to bolster the Administration's chances of eventual passage were interpreted by some observers as tantamount to admission of Senate defeat.

Senate Compromises Vary.

In one quarter it was said the Administration would be willing and even anxious to make some gesture toward an acceptable compromise in the Senate, were it not for the wide variance in the many Senate compromise plans. Belief was expressed that individual advocates of compromise proposals would hold out for their own plans, against all others, and complicate the present impasse.

Another reason advanced for delaying all compromise talk until the bill reaches the House is in the bitter-end Administration hopes that some of the Senate advocates of "compromise" may eventually swing

Keene Murdered, Is New Theory of Norfolk Police

Woman in Next Cabin Sought to Assist Investigators.

Broker's $40 Gone, Detective Reveals

Court Fight Figure

Harris & Ewing.
REP. HATTON W. SUMNERS, head of the House Judiciary Committee, said to be aligned, 15 to 10, against the President's court plan.

The death of Charles F. Keene, 63, well-known Washington real estate broker, who disappeared from a Norfolk & Washington steamboat Thursday night, was officially listed as a murder yesterday by Norfolk police.

"Everything points to murder," said Detective Leon Nowitzky, chief investigator for the Norfolk coroner's office. "Mr. Keene boarded the boat in Washington. He is known to have had something like $40 with him. At 1:45 a. m. a watchman near his stateroom heard what sounded like a pistol shot.

Money Gone.

"When I boarded the boat and went to his stateroom here at 8:30 in the morning, the rug was turned over. No money was found but a 5-cent piece. There was a blood spot an inch in diameter on the bedspread. There was another spot on the wash basin. There was more blood on the handrail outside the stateroom window, and on the guard rail leading to the after deck.

"I think this is a case for the Federal authorities. The Norfolk police department will be glad to co-operate, and turn over whatever information it has or can gather."

Son Pushes Case.

Charles F. Keene, jr., son of the missing man, who came here from New York when he heard of the tragedy, said last night he would ask the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice to take over the investigation.

"It isn't that I don't have confidence in the Washington and Norfolk police," he said. "But in view of the doubt as to who has jurisdiction, I believe it would be better if the Federal Government could handle the case."

The conclusion of the Norfolk police that the elder Keene was murdered bore out the contention of his son, who insisted that his father was not the morbid type that would take his own life.

"Mrs. Loper" Missing.

Neither Washington nor Norfolk police were able yesterday to find the "Mrs. Loper" who called the offices of the steamship company in Norfolk and said she could give them helpful information about the death of Keene. She said she occupied the adjoining cabin on the night of his death.

The woman said she wanted to give her information to the general manager of the steamship line. He wasn't available. She refused to leave her address or telephone number and said she would call back.

Norfolk police talked to a Mrs. Loper in Virginia Beach, but ascertained that she was not the one who had called. Washington police talked to a woman here by that name, and with the same result.

Labor Leaders Lose Offices For C. I. O. Aid

North Carolina A. F. of L. Removes Old Line Executives.

By the United Press.

Charlotte, N. C., May 16.—The American Federation of Labor succeeded tonight in removing practically the entire slate of officers from the State federation because of their activities in behalf of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The North Carolina Federation's executive committee, at a special meeting called by George L. Googe, A. F. of L.'s Southern representative, voted to removed President Roy L. Lawrence, Vice Presidents H. D. Lisk, J. H. Fuklerton, and S. C. Latta, and Secretary-Treasurer E. L. Sandefur.

The officials were found guilty on charges of dual unionism, violation of their oath of office, and treason.

Ford "Spying" Scored.

Detroit, May 16 (AP).—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, asserted today that Henry Ford for years has "subjected his workers" to "the most vicious spy system in the industry."

Martin, replying to "Fordisms" denouncing unions and strikes, said nothing would stop his union's plan to organize Ford Motor Co. workers and open two offices in suburban Dearborn this week.

Another U. A. W. A. official, Wyndham Mortimer, first vice president, said he belived it would be a "form of coercion" and a violation of the Wagner act for the company to distribute cards bearing the "Fordisms" to its 150,000 employes in this country tomorrow.

U. A. W. A. officials here would not say whether they intend to file charges against the Ford Co. with the National Labor Relations Board.

New Steel Threat.

Pittsburgh, May 16 (AP).—The threat of a strike that might begin before the week ends hung tonight over the heads of five of the biggest independent operators in the booming steel industry.

"Sign or face a strike within ten days," was the statement hurled by the 11-month-old steel workers' organizing committee to Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Inland and Crucible corporations. They employ 192,000 of the Nation's 570,000 steel workers.

Fumigating Smoke Brings Fire Scare In Downtown Cafe

Four fumigating pots, belching harmless smoke, yesterday brought five fire companies to Schulz's restaurant, 607 G street northwest.

With the restaurant closed, firemen were forced to break the front door. Wearing gas masks as protection against sulphur fumes, firemen removed the pots.

After surveying the damage, an employe declared:

"Where there is smoke there is not always fire. I'd like to find the hysterical person who turned in the alarm."

Hostess Is Slain In Paris Subway

The death wound was of a nature that caused police to discount the possibility of suicide.

Farmer Has Time of His Life Orating Own Funeral Sermon

By the Associated Press.

Coatesville, Ind., May 16.—Wade Millman had the time of his life today—he preached his own "funeral sermon."

The 88-year-old eccentric farmer, minus a collar and tie, but wearing a striped shirt and an unpressed suit—became so worked up he squeakily sang a solo, "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder I'll Be There."

"When my time comes all I ask is that they let me die unremembered and let me lie in my grave unmolested," he said, pausing to bite an orange and take a swig of water from a medicine bottle.

The fanfare made that of a circus seem puny; Hundreds of packed automobiles paralyzed traffic around the frame Canaan Church, 3 miles northwest of here. Families brought their lunches. Some had breakfast under trees around the church, for approximately 20 carloads spent the night there waiting for the service.

Allen Campbell, undertaker, estimated 5,000 persons had crowded into the vicinity. More than 500 jammed the little church that normally holds less than 200. Every inch of space contained a listener. Outside, men took turns standing on shoulders.

Millman opened his "sermon" with the statement, "this is a very prominent occasion. There never has been no such occasion in the world."

When he said, "this all is new to me," the crowd roared in laughter.

He stood erect at the pulpit. In front was his casket, fashioned from a tree on his farm. Nearby were the pallbearers, who received $5 each in advance.

"Columbus wanted to preach his own sermon. So did Napolean and Napoleon's wife," he shouted, "but they didn't. I am.

"What is a funeral? Nothing but a description of a man's life. They have no trouble preaching a good man's funeral. It's different with a bad man's funeral. Now I've lived just a moderately moral life. I don't know how to preach a funeral, but I'm doing the best I can."

He declared he never worried about anything, because worrying "makes you roll over and wear out the bed clothes."

Bridges Urges States Manage Labor Problem

Says Control by Central Government Is 'the Hand of Death.'

The hand of the central government is "the hand of death," Senator H. Styles Bridges (Republican), New Hampshire, said last night in urging State legislation and interstate compacts to deal with labor problems.

Bridges, along with Representative Francis T. Case (Republican), South Dakota, spoke on the second of a series of radio programs designed to present the Republican point of view on national problems. Both were introduced by the party chairman, John D. M. Hamilton.

"We must preserve our local State initiative," Bridges said in his appeal to employers and employes alike to bargain so as to avoid Federal intervention.

"We know from experience that local experimentation, if it is successful, spreads with reasonable rapidity into other localities. We should act in this matter first, I think, by States and then by interstate compacts and we should leave to the Federal Government only those parts of this matter that are unavoidably Federal. * * *

"The enemy, I repeat, is a central government dominating all activities by capital and all activities by labor. To combat that enemy, unnatural as it is among our institutions, let us diligently cultivate collective bargaining between the employer and employe and let us also diligently cultivate all sensible and useful legislation by our States severally or in voluntary groups."

Case cited the Republican social security program, especially the insistence against accumulation of a reserve fund of between $45,000,000,000 and $50,000,000,000, and concluded:

"In the West, we have an old unwritten law. If a stranger came to a miner's cabin and found himself cold and weary, he could build a fire, warm himself and rest. But before going on his way, he split more kindling so as to leave the pile just as large if not larger than he found it.

That is, I think, the true spirit behind social security. We must not dissipate, we must not destroy the resources we pass on; we must not throw on to the backs of the next generation the burdens we should have carried in our generation."

700,000 Taught To Read, Write By Relief Classes

By the Associated Press.

WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, disclosing his relief roll teachers have taught 700,000 persons to read and write, claimed yesterday a double benefit for the Nation.

He said literacy courses, which 3,785 teachers give to 241,048 adults in 22,779 classes, help students "perform the duties of responsible citizens" and boost their wages.

He estimated the number of adult "reading and writing" graduates of the Federal Relief Administration and WPA the last four years at 700,000. About one-sixth of the 4,250,000 illiterates enumerated in the 1930 census.

Dr. L. R. Alderman, WPA education director, estimated the annual economic gain at more than $100,000,000, assuming a literate person earns at least 50 cents per day more than the illiterate. He estimated the four-year cost of the literacy classes at $20,000,000.

March enrollment figures showed Texas leading the States with 18,561 adult literacy students; Pennsylvania was second with 17,607. New York City had 17,999 with the rest of the State reporting only 1,993.

Ruling on Old Age Act Likely Today

By the Associated Press.

Government attorneys expressed hope last night the Supreme Court's decision on constitutionality of the social security act would broaden the field of Federal activity to promote the "general welfare" of the Nation.

An opinion may be announced today on the sharply-disputed legislation, one of the most important of 28 cases awaiting decision before the justices adjourn early next month for the summer recess.

The litigation involves attacks by George P. Davis, of Waltham, Mass., and the Chas. C. Steward Machine Co., of Alabama, on the old-age pension and unemployment insurance provisions of the act and validity of State laws providing unemployment compensation similar to the Federal scheme.

Government attorneys, during arguments in the case, contended the statute advanced the Nation's general welfare. They said they understood the Constitution and the court had sanctioned a tax which provides funds for the general welfare and "beyond this we need not go." The court has not interpreted the "general welfare" clause specifically.

Louisiana's Brooks Supports Long's Program; Likes Fishing

REPRESENTATIVE OVERTON BROOKS.

Went Into Politics After Kingfish Was Shot to Death; Served in World War and Practiced Law in Shreveport.

By Scott Hart.

Somehow, you can't talk more than a few minutes to those members of the Louisiana Congressional delegation without having the fretful ghost of Huey P. Long come to overshadow the interview. The shade of the Kingfish, like a whisper through the bayou nights, comes creeping in. And from then on the Kingfish steals the show, just as he did in mortal life.

It was so during the interview with heavy-set-but-lithe Overton Brooks (Democrat), of Shreveport. He began by talking a little bashfully of the statesmanly aims of Overton Brooks and finished by talking boastfully, triumphantly, of the "accomplishments" of Long "whose constructive program I am here to work for."

"About me," said the Representative who was complaining bitterly a moment before about the loss of a spittoon from his private office, "I've just returned from a mighty fine fishing trip down on Lake Bistineau, in Louisiana, and, believe me, that's fine fishing down there.

"But about how I got into politics * * * I had a good law practice in Shreveport, and I had some ambitions about politics, mainly for the standing it would give me in the profession * * * But I didn't think seriously of seeking this office until the dastardly assassination of Huey * * * I wanted to help perpetuate his program * * *

"And right now it seems that the best way to do that—so far as Louisiana is concerned—is to extend the programs of vocational education to the farmers down there * * *" Here the ghost of the Kingfish came creeping in.

"I remember the last time I saw Huey, in the State capitol; he spoke to me, to members of my family, and then, walking fast and far ahead of his bodyguards, was hollering to his lieutenants, calling a conference for the fourth floor * * *

"I think I know the reasons for his remarkable success down there: First, he had remarkable physical stamina * * * He could and did work all hours of the day and night * * * He went into law cases after whole nights of preparation. * * * He knew how to put in time when time counted most * * *

"And he had a remarkable mind for details, and such fighting ability as few politicians have possessed * * *He put the State forward 50 years in no time at all * * * He built the capitol, the roads system, increased the attendance at L. S. U. from 1,000 to more than 6,000; built toll-free bridges, and when he died the farmer was paying less taxes than ever before and still had all those improvements * * *"

Looking around his office walls you will see many pictures of airplanes, but the Representative has no interest in flying machines other than that they alight on a big airport outside of Shreveport, and the Representative is proud of the airport and its modern facilities. His biography runs, in sketch, as follows:

Born, near Baton Rouge, on December 21, 1897; educated, public schools of East Baton Rouge Parish; graduated from the law school of Louisiana State University; enlisted in the United States Army, July, 1918, and served in the Sixth Field Artillery, First Regular Army Division, in France, Belgium and Germany; began the practice of law in Shreveport in 1923; served as United States commissioner in Shreveport; is active in American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars affairs, and is general counsel for the Louisiana Federation of Labor.

In off-moments he likes fishing and dwelling on the thoughts of doing a biography of Huey P. Long.

Albania Army Advancing to Battle Rebels

Former Official Starts Rebellion Against King Zog.

Italian influence has been strong in Albania since 1925, when Premier Benito Mussolini and King Zog patched up differences.

Italians have played an important part in organization of the present Albanian government. Important rights to participate in development of Albanian oil resources have been obtained by Italy.

For many years Albania has been largely supported by annual loans from Italy.

Tiny and poverty-plagued Albania, an independent kingdom of 17,000 square miles on the west coast of the Balkan Peninsula between Greece and Yugoslavia, has been beset by revolutionists and disorders since the World War.

King Zog, who was premier in 1922, led an insurrection in 1925 and had himself proclaimed King in Septmeber, 1928, has narrowly escaped several assassination attempts.

Aware of the dangers of his position he has tried futilly for five years to find a royal bride to share his throne. He first announced that he wanted an American heiress with a $1,000,000-a-year income for his Queen, but recently he has been "shopping about" for a bride among the lesser nobility of Central Europe.

HOLC Foreclosure Ban Drive Is Begun

By the United Press.

Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, will open a drive this week for greater leniency by the beleaguered Home Owners Loan Corporation in dealing with its mortgagees. He wil make a radio speech Wednesday night, urging a Congressional moratorium on HOLC foreclosures.

A statement by the United Home Owners Liberty Corporation, which described itself as a nonprofit membership association with national headquarters in New York, asserted Copeland would speak under its auspices. Copeland, however, said he did not know who headed the organization.

"I don't know anything about the organization," he said, "but I have introduced a bill and I am very much in favor of it."

The bill he referred to was offered jointly with Representative Edward W. Curley (Democrat), New York. It would provide an indefinite moratorium on home mortgage foreclosures under the HOLC, reduce interest rates from 5 to 2½ per cent, and eliminate deficiency judgments.

G. A. R. Official, 92, Dies of Pneumonia

Pittsburgh, May 16 (AP).—John Little, 92, of Wilkinsburg, national adjutant general and State commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, died today in a hospital of pneumonia.

He was the last member of Post 157, G. A. R. For 15 years Little was a guard in Memorial Hall, a soldiers' memorial, in Oakland. He took an active part in all G. A. R. encampments and never missed a Memorial Day parade. Little was born in Scotland, and came to this country as a young man. He enlisted in the Union Army in 1862.

Second Geisha Group Walks Out in Japan

Tokyo, May 16 (AP).—Japan's second geisha girl strike in three months began today with the walkout of 150 girls in the Asahigawa, the entire geisha population of that important garrison town of the northern island of Hokkaido.

Encouraged by the success of the sit-down strike of their sisters in Osaka in February, the Asahigawa girls refused to entertain any more of the gay blades of the town until their fees were raised.

Maloney Acts to Slash U. S. Idle Census Costs

Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, revamped yesterday his bill to establish a lexible work week based on a Nation-wide unemployment census to meet objections to the cost of such a survey.

Instead of proposing separate census machinery, Maloney said, he will suggest use of existing Government facilities or an organization similar to the one used by the World War draft board.

Navy Made First Atlantic Hop 18 Years Ago in Famous NC-4

Flight Took 15 Days, Contrasting With Current 2-Way Flying Time of 48 Hours; 3 Ships Started Pioneer Hegira.

By the Associated Press.

Eighteen years ago yesterday the American Navy seaplane NC-4, manned by a crew of six, took off from Newfoundland on an epoch-making flight to England.

Fifteen days later, when Lieut. Comdr. A. C. Read, the skipper, nosed the craft down into the harbor at Plymouth, the first crossing of the Atlantic by a flying machine was completed.

Navy officers yesterday said the contrast between that pioneering venture and present ocean flights—when a commercial plane shuttles from New York to London and return in less than 48 hours flying time—typifies the strides made in aviation development.

Read, now a captain serving as assistant chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, was out of the city on the anniversary date, but one member of the original expedition remained to reminisce over the exploit. He was the bluff, hearty Capt. Holden C. Richardson, naval construction officer who helped design the NC-4.

"The British laughed," he recalled, "when we stationed destroyers every 50 miles or so along the whole route to assist in the flight. They said we didn't need all those 'lamp-posts.' But we felt that every precaution was justified."

Richardson was second in command of the NC-3 which, with the NC-1, took off with the NC-4 but, disabled near the Azores Islands, were unable to continue the transatlantic journey.

To him, the trials and tribulations of the 17-hour flight from Trepassy, Newfoundland, to a point near Ponta del Gada, Azores, were all in the day's work. His only complaint was the food.

"They gave us one shoebox full of sandwiches for a lunch," he said bitterly, "and half of the damned things were made of jelly and that thinly sliced bread which reminded you of a lady's bridge luncheon. But we were spared them after all. The take-off from Trepassy Harbor was so rough that the whole box fell into the bilge."

Before the NC-3 reached Ponta del Gada, the crew was drinking water out of its engines' radiators.

Meanwhile, the NC-4 had landed safely at Horta, the Azores, completing the 1,200-nautical-mile flight from Trepassy in 15 hours and 18 minutes—a distance now flown in a little more than half that time.

"The flight proved what we set out to determine—that it is feasible to fly ships long distances over water to the point where they are to be put to use."

Today, whole squadrons of naval seaplanes assigned to duty in Hawaii are flown in formation from San Diego to Honolulu, a distance of 2,408 miles, in something less than 22 hours.

Administration Turns to House On Court Plan

Senate Attitude Forces 'Shuttle' Strategy for Compromise.

Majority Still Hoped.

On this assumption, one White House confidante active at the Capitol claims a possible 5-vote majority in the Senate for the President's bill.

Drawing on a Senate leadership poll, he lists only 43 Senators as definitely for the President's plan. But he adds to those polled "for" the plan, 10 votes he insists the Administration can ultimately get from those now advocating compromise proposals.

Recent swing-overs and the White House's adamant stand against a Senate compromise have convinced Senate opponents of a six-judge increase they can defeat the bill in that chamber by a 1-to-5 margin, they said yesterday.

The very strength of the Senate opposition, it was said, may lead to abandonment of filibustering tactics, and a willingness to show their hand in a direct Senate test after four or five weeks of debate. It was this prospect, together with a probable adverse Senate vote, that led Administration agents to transfer their activity to the House, observers said.

D.C. to See Replica Of Crown Jewels

Crown jewels of Great Britain, an important phase of last week's coronation ceremony, will be exhibited in replica today in a specially designed room on the fifth floor of the Lansburgh & Bro. Department Store.

Reproductions of the brilliant gems of the British Empire, the exhibit will be continued through the week.

Included in the display are the Coronation Crown, the Prince of Wales Crown, the King's Garter, St. George's Bracelet, the Queen's Crown, the Jeweled State sword, the King's and Queen's scepter with doves, the Imperial State Crown, "Curtana" Sword of Mercy, the Orb of England, and the annointing spoon.

Duplicated in gem paste are the Koh-i-nor diamond in the Queen's State Crown, and the Black Prince ruby contained in the Imeprial State Crown.

Red Cross Boat Used in Rescue Of 2 Canoeists

A boat given to the Glen Echo rescue squad by the Red Cross after last year's flood was used to save two canoeists yesterday when they were marooned on a rock above Little Falls in the upper Potomac.

The canoeists were Ross W. Shearer, 21, of 907 Jefferson avenue, Riverdale, Md., and J. R. Osterman, 22, of Baileys Cross Roads, Va. They were fishing near Snake Island when they lost control of their canoe in the turbulent waters. Reaching a rock, they let the canoe go toward the falls and signaled persons on shore for help.

The Glen Echo rescue squad arrived with the Red Cross boat. Manning this, George Arnold and Bill Alban rowed near Shearer and Osterman, heaved a rope to them and towed them to safety.

'Black Eagle' Injured In Tumble Off Stage

New York, May 16 (AP).—Col. Hubert Fauntleroy Julian, "Black Eagle of Harlem," stepped up to a mieropnone tonight to tell a Nation-wide radio audience of his numerous narrow scapes from injury as an aerial knight-errant during the Ethiopian war—then stepped from the stage, landed on his head, was hurt.

The accident was not seen by the crowd of 500 in the studio, nor was the exact extent of the colored aviator's injury known several hours later. He was reported to have been unconscious for 25 minutes. A few short moments before he had told of landing unhurt from 300 parachute jumps and various aviation mishaps.

Merrill's Only Romance Is in the Air, He Says

Newark, N. J., May 16 (AP).—Dick Merrill, veteran transport pilot who completed his fourth transatlantic plane flight Friday, said today he's not "engaged" and doesn't expect to be, because "there's no romance in me, except for aviation."

Merrill was asked if he was engaged to Bernice Claire, former actress, who greeted him with open arms at Floyd Bennett Field when he and Co-pilot Jack Lamble returned from England with coronation pictures.

Bogus $5,000 Found Floating in Hudson

New York, May 16 (AP).—Three young adventurers on a driftwood raft found a "treasure" for beyond their boyish dreams on the Hudson today, and until an itinerant flower peddler refused a fistful of it, their illusion was complete.

"Counterfeit," sniffed the peddler when the boys came ashore to spend the 5,000 $1 bills found floating in two packages. Police described the spurious currency as better than average imitations. That was enough for John Marmiony, 14; Louis Pena, 10, and William Curry, 11. The discovery was surrendered to Federal operatives.

Police Cordon Guards Dublin's Nelson Pillar

Dublin, May 16 (U.P.).—Police tonight drew a cordon around Nelson's pillar in Sackville street, Dublin's most famous landmark, apparently fearing a republican attempt to dynamite it. The 134-foot pillar, surmounted by a statue of Lord Nelson, the British naval hero, is in one of the busiest sections of the Free State capital.

Authorities refused to discuss the reasons for the heavy police guard but it was believed they might have received information that anti-imperialists, who staged several disorders last week in protest against the coronation of King George VI as "King of Ireland," planned to destroy the monument.

District Advances In Income Returns

By the Associated Press.

A Treasury analysis of 4,666,504 individual income tax returns filed last year on 1935 income showed New York in its customary top position yesterday with 869,652 returns.

Statistics of 1936 returns due last March 15 will not be available for many months.

Pennsylvania's 397,277 returns, although less than half New York's, ranked second. California, Illinois and Massachusetts were next and Nevada again was last, with 6,490.

Ohio jumped from seventh to sixth place, trading places with New Jersey. The District of Columbia jumped to thirteenth place, displacing Maryland, and Georgia advanced to twentieth, moving ahead of both Oklahoma and Tennessee. West Virginia, Oregon, Arizona, Utah and Idaho also gained in rank.

Coast Guards Seek Body of Yachtsman

Newport, R. I., May 16 (AP).—The Coast Guard searched the water off Block Island today for the body of Albert G. Ober, jr., of Baltimore, who was lost overboard from the yacht Flying Cloud yesterday.

The cutter Campbell, from New York, the patrol boat Faunce and two surfboats from the New Shoreham and Block Island stations patrolled the sea southeast of the island.

Agents Raid Houses, Seeking Leaders in White Slavery Ring.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, May 16.—A Nation-wide drive to wreck vice rings centered in Baltimore today with approximately 50 arrests in raids on ten or more establishments.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation, who directed 35 picked agents in the raids, reported he found conditions "very bad" in Baltimore. He, United States Attorney Bernard J. Flynn and his assistant, T. Barton Harrington, announced the crusade would continue "until Baltimore is completely cleaned up."

The officers emphasized that the drive here, as elsewhere, was aimed at the ring leaders in the white slave traffic. Because of this purpose, they explained, many of the girls picked up probably will be released after being questioned searchingly.

Will Investigate Leaks.

After months of undercover investigation and preparation, the agents swung into action last night and continued their work through the day. Hoover said two or three of the establishments were dark when the agents arrived and the possibility that they were tipped off would be relentlessly investigated.

From the stories drawn from girls and others arrested, the officers intend to find out, they explained, what place this city has in a Nation-wide traffic in girls lured from their homes for immoral purposes. They want to know especially, they said, whether it is the headquarters for a ring of widespread operations.

Already they have found ramifications in several other cities, they reported. As a result of the raids here, they said, a man named Nicholas Iochetti was arrested early today in Philadelphia and a woman picked up in Reading, Pa.

They gave the names of those seized here on charges of being leaders in Mann act violations as Shirley Kaminski, Carroll (Cappie) Goldstein, Betty Byrd, Mary Tedesco alias Mary Viola, and Mary Liedman.

Most of the arrests were made in raids on houses. Several girls, however, were picked up on calls engineered through bellboys at hotels. The prisoners will be arraigned Monday.

Hoover said that other raids have been conducted recently in Connecticut, New York, Miami and elsewhere. He added that he could not disclose the exact places the agents would strike next for fear of defeating the purposes of the campaign.

Seattle, May 16 (AP).—Federal authorities, driving at an alleged Pacific Northwest band of white slavers, prepared today for arraignment or removal proceedings for six indicted persons now in jails of three Western cities. Bonds set for six totaled more than $100,000.

Four of the accused are colored, one is a white woman and another a white man. All were indicted on charges of conspiracy to transport a 16-year-old white girl to Portland, Oreg., for immoral purposes. The girl was held as a material witness.

Student Scandal Aired.

New York, May 16 (AP).—Kings County District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan said today he expected to make some arrests "very shortly" in an investigation of the sale of contraceptive devices to Broklyn high school students.

He said six schools, some co-educational, were involved, and added:

"This is a student proposition and no teachers are involved in the remotest way.

"The ramifiactions of this investigation extend to the other boroughs and I am forwarding the complaints and the information to the other district attorneys."

He would not discolse whose complaints led to the investigation, except that they came from families of girls involved.

Geoghan linked reported activities in student "whoopee cellars" to 80 sex crime arrests he said had been made in Brooklyn in the last six weeks.

Crosses Guard Shops From Polish Rioters

Brzesc, Poland, May 16 (AP).—Crucifixes and pictures of the Virgin Mary and Christian saints were displayed in Brzesc shops and homes today to protect them from anti-Semitic disorders.

Such displays apparently averted attacks, but some houses lacking them were broken into during the night. A special committee appointed by the ministry of the interior arrived from Warsaw to investigate the disorders of last Thursday, when a policeman was stabbed fatally by a Jew.

Woman Leaps to Death After 20-Minute Talk

New York, May 16 (AP).—After hanging from a railing for 20 minutes conversing with a policeman below, an unidentified middle-aged woman dropped 40 feet to her death from an elevated structure in Brooklyn today.

She fell just as police emergency squads and a fire truck arrived, and in falling broke the arm of Gerard Galvin, 32, a fireman, who rushed out to catch her. Patrolman Francis Fuller, who saw the woman hanging by her hands, had sought to dissuade her from dropping until help arrived.

Mother of Two Is Found Dead Near Md. Home

Mrs. Hartman Shot, Rifle by Side; Inquest Scheduled Today.

Mrs. Mabel V. Hartman, 35, mother of two children, was found dead near her home on Good Luck road near Lanham, Md., yesterday. There was a bullet wound in her temple and a .22-caliber rifle lay beside her body, a few inches from her right hand.

Justice of the Peace Fred C. Lutz said an inquest would be held to clear up all suspicious phases of the case. Dr. Aaron Dietz, of Hyattsville, was directed to perform an autopsy and a coroner's jury was sworn and viewed the body. The jury will meet at 1 p. m. today to hear the autopsy report.

Husband in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Hartman's husband, Paul H. Hartman, a veterinary employed at the Beltsville experiment station of the Department of Agriculture, was not at home when the couple's son, William, 10, discovered the body of his mother about 75 yards from their home. Police said Paul Hartman was motoring in Pennsylvania.

The tragedy became known when William and his 2-year-old sister, Phoebe, appeared at a neighbor's house. William told the neighbor "something terrible has happened." Investigation revealed Mrs. Hartman's body.

Neighbors of the dead woman who viewed her body declared that both of her eyes were bruised and that her nose was broken.

Neighbors Lend Aid.

The son, William, was said to have told Prince Georges County Policeman William Gray, who is investigating the case, that his mother "shot herself."

Both children were taken in by neighbors as efforts were made to reach the husband and tell him of the tragedy.

The Hartmans were starting a small homestead and had constructed a little house. The boy, William, last night bravely returned to his home to feed and water pigs, chickens and turkeys.

Bids to Lease Six Ship Lines Asked

By the Associated Press.

The Maritime Commission yesterday invited bids for a one-year lease of six Government-owned steamship lines.

The lines employ 37 vessels and are operated by managing agents. Bids will be opened here at noon on June 15. The lines are:

American Pioneer Line, operated by Roosevelt Steamship Co., Inc., of New York.

Army Doctor Finds Bee Is Aid In Relieving Hay Fever Patient

Swallowing of Pollen From Honey and Chewing of Wax From Comb Declared Beneficial; Tested in 33 Cases.

By the Associated Press.

This treatment, Capt. George D. McGrew, of the Army Medical Corps, said in an article in the Military Surgeon, consists of administering by mouth extracts of pollen to which an individual is hypersensitive. At the William Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso, Tex., during the 1936 hay fever season, it brought partial or complete relief to 33 sufferers on whom it was tried.

The contribution of the honey bee became apparent when Dr. McGrew and his coworkers found that some hay fever victims "received varying degrees of relief from symptoms by the eating of honey produced in their vicinity and particularly from the chewing of the comb wax," he said. "It was reasonable to infer from this that the benefit received was probably from the oral extraction of the pollen in the honey and wax."

With the approach of the hay fever and asthma season, Dr. McGrew reported the treatment in the hope it would be effective in other sections of the country.

Using the bee observations as a background, the Army physicians soaked left-over pollens from sets used in the diagnosis of hay fever in previous years in a solution of table salt, sugar and alcohol.

The patients, selected at random from the Army hospital, swallowed from one to ten drops of the extract daily, according to the amount necessary to obtain relief.

"Based on the patient's own idea of the percentage of relief obtained, 10 cases had total relief of symptoms, 19 cases had from 70 to 90 per cent relief, and 4 cases had 50 per cent relief," Dr. McGrew reported. He said five of those who obtained from 70 to 100 per cent relief had had injections for hay fever treatment previously, some of which were not beneficial.

The treatment is much less expensive, he added, and the hospital staff saved considerable work because the patients were able to treat themselves at home. The treatment also offers "the hope of more cases in which relief from hay fever symptoms may become permanent with treatment over a period of several years."

Italian Press Ordered to End British Attack

Correspondents Are Expected to Be Sent Back to London.

By the Associated Press.

Rome (Monday), May 17.—The Italian press was instructed today to ease up on its anti-British tactics.

No further aggressive attacks are to be made against Great Britain, and neither are any anti-British polemics published in other countries to be reprinted, the instructions said.

This was interpreted as a change of policy following Premier Mussolini's bitter attitude toward the British press, culminating in a virtual boycott of coronation news.

All British newspapers except three were banned from Italy, all Italian correspondents in London were recalled, and one British correspondent was expelled from Italy. British press jibes at Italian fighters in Spain had angered Italy.

Subscribers to the banned newspapers said today they were receiving the papers again.

It was reported Italian correspondents would be permitted to return to London one by one soon.

The instructions followed a foreign affairs speech by Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano last week in which he dealt with Britain's calm manner. He also pointed out that "grave danger" lay in an anti-Italian press campaign.

Danes Acclaim Peaceful Reign Of Christian X

26 Years of Progress Start Today Under Monarch.

"Today the Danish and Icelandic people look back over a 25 year period especially happy because the heavy breakers of the world have been running here as smooth as a swell in a safe harbor. The destiny of all Danes is closely united as never before in history and many events have taken place which we will always remember with deep gratitude."

"Long live King Christian!" the students shouted then, and half the city heard their shout.

Earlier, Theodor A. M. Stauning, the veteran Socialist premier, had extended the congratulations of Parliament.

"On this festive day we look back over the years that have passed and we appreciate the king on account of his understanding of the development of the times, his loyalty and sense of justice and confidence with which he has met his people," he said.

"May Denmark in the future maintain such good and understanding leadership."

Pan-American Planes to Test Bermuda Route

Flights to Start Before June With View of Opening Regular Service.

Inauguration of flights between the United States and Bermuda before June 1, looking toward early establishment of scheduled air transport over this Atlantic route, was announced yesterday by Pan-American Airways.

Survey flights over the same course will be initiated at the same time by Imperial Airways, the British international air transport system, which plans to operate alternate schedules over the United States-Bermuda route, it was stated.

Both companies plan to make several such route trip flights between Bermuda and the mainland for the purpose of familiarizing flight personnel with the route and weather conditions and making final tests of radio-guarding equipment and of port facilities before the opening of regular service by either company.

No Passengers or Cargo.

No definite time schedules will be set for these flights. No passengers and no cargo of any kind will be carried.

Imperial Airways has ready in Bermuda one of their four-engined empire-type flyingboats fitted especially for this service. Pan-American Airways will employ one of their fleet of four-engined Sikorsky type clipper ships similar to transports now in regular service between North and South America.

The Bermuda government, in cooperation with the government of Great Britain, some time ago constructed on Darrell's Island, in Hamilton Harbor, Bermuda, a large transport base completely equipped for the operation and maintenance of transocean-type flying boats. These facilities have been leased to Imperial Airways, Ltd., and through them have been made available to Pan-American Airways, as the Bermuda terminal.

Bases Being Built.

On the American end of the route, Baltimore and Charleston have under construction similarly equipped operating bases, facilities of which are under lease to Pan-American Airways. Plans for the construction of a New York City terminal for transatlantic air transport operation have recently been advanced by the city, and which, upon completion, will be made available under lease to Pan-American Airways and through them to Imperial Airways, Ltd., as well as to the other European international air transport systems—Air France Transatlantique and Deutsche Lufthansa of Germany—which are associated with Pan-American Airways for development of scheduled transatlantic air transport service.

Work on this metropolitan site, however, is not yet actually begun. Although construction work at both Baltimore and Charleston is well advanced, it is not expected that either of these ports will be available for service until fall.

Illinois G. O. P. Junior Leaders Ouster Victims

Peoria, Ill., May 16 (AP).—Illinois Young Republicans in annual convention adopted a resolution today "reading out of the party" four officers who had jointly charged the organization followed "reactionary" leadership.

Named in the resolution were Harold Halfpenny, junior national committeeman; Park Livingston, State director; Alfred J. Borah, assistant State director, and Harry S. Stark, vice president. All are Chicagoans. They did not attend the convention.

Yesterday the four made public a joint letter to John F. Lyrrell, chairman of the Republican State central committee, charging the young people's organization was "directed by a few hand-picked tools of reactionary interests."

A new slate of officers, headed by Harold E. Walsh, of Bloomington, as president, was elected unanimously. Walsh succeeds Thomas J. Downs, Chicago, who was elected to replace Halfpenny as junior national committeeman.

Downs and Kathryn Ford, Oak Park, engaged in a verbal exchange over an accusation by Downs that John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, and what the speaker termed "his cloistered leadership" failed to co-operate with the Young Republicans in the 1936 campaign.

Downs asserted J. Kenneth Bradley, Connecticut State Senator, identified with Young Republican work in the 1936 campaign, was "the crown of thorns pressed down upon the brow of Republican youth by Chairman Hamilton."

Woman Suspect Detained After Motorist Is Robbed of $65.

Four men were robbed of more than $100 early yesterday by bandits.

John R. Love, 38, of 61 Rhode Island avenue northeast, was robbed of $65 by a colored man and woman who "strong-armed" him when he stopped for a traffic sign at New Jersey avenue and Q street northwest.

Love said the pair approached his car and he believed they were seeking information. The man grabbed him, he said, and the woman took the money. Police later arrested a woman who was identified by Love.

Three men slugged and robbed him of $3.50 in Freedmans court northwest, James Gwinn, 30, of 1356 Spring road northwest, reported.

Struck on the head by a man who asked him for a match, Sandy Wiggins, colored, of 205 Q street northwest, was relieved of $4. He gave police the name of his assailant.

Nice Will Name G. O. P. Leader To Police Post

Picks W. P. Lawson for Job in Baltimore; Plans to End Politics.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, May 16.—Gov. Harry W. Nice announced tonight he will appoint William P. Lawson, chairman of the Republican State central committee, police commissioner of Baltimore to succeed the veteran Charles D. Gaither, whose appointment expires May 31.

The Governor said his appointee, as head of the city's police system, would go into the office determined to eliminate "politics within the department as it now exists, a condition well known to every person familiar with its inner workings. The department can and will be improved."

The retiring commissioner, now 76 years old, was appointed by the Democratic Governor, Albert C. Ritchie, in 1920 and is rounding out his third consecutive term. He had achieved distinction as a military man before he took over the direction of the police force of the city of nearly a million population near his sixtieth birthday.

population at a time when it was thought such a blow would have an especially demoralizing effect and might provoke disorders." He cited the city's calm as proof of government solidarity.

Even in Catalonia Anarchist influence was being greatly curtailed, according to government reports. The prompt action of Valencia was considered reason for failure of Anarchist ambitions to seize control of the Barcelona regime. Calm was reported throughout Catalonia today.

Basque Attack Repulsed.

Guernica, Northern Spain, May 16 (AP).—A desperate Basque effort to throw back the insurgent lines steadily drawing closer to Bilbao, was repulsed early today in a predawn battle.

The Basque attack was launched while it was still dark north of Amorebieta, 11 miles southeast of the Bacque capital, and provided a brilliant military display. The Basque losses were reported heavy.

The Basques, aided by their Asturian allies, evidently tried to recapture Mount Calvo, insurgent outpost above Amorebieta.

The Asturians, expeft dynamite throwers, began by hurling hand grenades, which exploded with big flashes. At the same time the Basques laid down a machine gun barrage on the enemy lines. For more than an hour the valley was filled with light and noise. The insurgents were victorious.

Los Angeles Aids In Air 'Defenses'

Muroc Dry Lake, Calif., May 16 (AP).—The civilian population of Los Angeles, theoretically under constant attack from an enemy air armada in the Army's war maneuvers, has joined hands to repel the invading forces.

Listening posts are scattered at 10-mile intervals throughout a 100-mile area. Civilians, utilizing the communications system of the Southern California Edison Co., are reporting to the Sixty-third Coast Artillery every movement of the attacking fleet. The regiment is directing anti-aircraft fire at the invaders.

"With only one day of instruction and practice, these civilians have sent accurate intelligence data that we have used successfully in meeting the attacking forces," said Lieut. Col. Claude M. Thelele, commanding the Sixty-third Coast Artillery.

U. S. Will Test Frost-Resisting Cane of Soviet

By the United Press.

The Department of Agriculture, seeking a variety of sugar cane that will not be killed by frost, will send an expert to Soviet Turkestan in a few weeks to gather new types of this sugar-bearing plant.

Dr. E. W. Brandes, head of the division of sugar plant investigations, will make the trip to this Asiatic region where the climate is almost as chilly as that of northern United States.

If the project is successful, it may be possible to grow sugar cane almost anywhere in the Southern portion of the United States and even in some of the warmer communities of the North. Dr. Brandes, however, said that such developments belonged to the future, as the present investigation was simply to obtain plants which could be crossed with the cane now grown almost exclusively in Louisiana and Florida.

Sugar cane usually is considered a tropical plant. It has only been through the painstaing wor of plant breeders in crossing the typical sugar bearing stacks with other varieties which could withstand the growing conditions of the more temperate climates that a plant was obtained which could be successfully grown in this country.

Woman Arrested Again on Charge Of Ticket-Selling

Ethel Clawans, 29, of the 3000 block of Connecticut avenue northwest, whose Police Court conviction on a charge of reselling unused railroad tickets without a license led to a Supreme Court ruling upholding the District jury law, was arrested again yesterday.

She was seized in Union Station by Precint Detective Fred L. Rawlinson and charged with violating section 17 of police regulations which deals with selling without a license.

Several months ago Miss Clawans was sentenced to pay a fine of $300 or 60 days in jail when found guilty of a similar offense. She appealed on the grounds that she was not allowed a jury trial.

The case went to the United States Supreme Court and in a majority decision the constitutionality of the District law under which Miss Clawans was convicted without a jury trial was upheld. Seven justices concluded the offense was "petty" and that the punishment decreed was not unusual for similar offenses tried without a jury in the days when the Constitution was drafted.

The strikers turned down a proposal to negotiate union recognition and closed-shop demands when it was presented to a mass meeting last night. Under the truce, as presented by Pat Casey, labor conciliator for the producers, the strikers would return to work tomorrow.

Replying to Casey, the strike committee said the producers had given "no assurance that workers who left their jobs during the strike would return to work immediately in the same status of April 4."

The committee also told Casey that the producers "do not concede the fundamental demands of a written guarantee of 100 per cent union shop recognition" for the ten crafts now on strike.

Harlan Campaign Grows.

Harlan, Ky., May 16 (AP).—The biggest crowds in Harlan County's recent history attended two union mass meetings today as the United Mine Workers of America continued its month-old organization drive in the southeastern Kentucky soft coal field. Union officials estimated a morning meeting was attended by 10,000 persons.

As the first month of the campaign ended, union officials claimed 6,000 to 10,000 members among the county's estimated 16,000 miners. The goal is complete unionization within another month.

829,123 Workers Listed April 1; WPA Leads With 30,032.

By the Associated Press.

Uncle Sam's official family is larger than at any time since the World War.

Civil Service Commission statistics showed a total of 829,193 persons on Federal pay rolls April 1, in addition to the legislative, judicial and military branches of Government, which remain relatively constant. The figure includes both civil service and noncivil service officials and workers.

This classification stood at 917,760 on November 11, 1918, dropped to 515,772 on June 30, 1923, then began a ten-year gradual climb to 572,091 on June 30, 1933. It stood at 824,259 11 months ago.

The commission tabulations disclosed that on April 1 employes of regular Government departments totaled 649,877; new agencies, 52,407; emergency agencies under the Works program, 126,909. Last June 30 this total was 144,095.

30,032 In WPA.

The largest single group of new employes — 30,032 — were employed in Works Progress Administration offices here and in the field. Home Owners Loan Corporation employed 15,351; Treasury, 14,993; emergency conservation work under the jurisdiction of the Agriculture Department, 17,785; ECW, under the War Department, 16,614; Resettlement Administration, 14,240; Tennessee Valley Authority, 13,556.

The commission figures showed that the total of 824,259 persons outside the legislative, judicial and military branches last June 30 was 56 per cent higher than in 1926; civil service employes of the Government rose 18 per cent from 422,300 to 498,725 in that decade, and non-civil service workers increasd more than 200 per cent from 103,242 to 325,534.

Civil Service Increases.

Civil Service attracted 10 per cent more workers under President Roosevelt than President Hoover, and non-civil service employes rose 180 per cent in the same period from 1935 to 1937. The records showed 2 per cent increases in both civil service and non-civil service totals between the Coolidge and Hoover Administrations.

Congressional records showed President Roosevelt asked the Senate to confirm 31,581 nominations in his first term; Hoover, 30,202. Senate confirmations totaled 31,337 and 27,855, respectively. The Senate approved 14,426 of Roosevelt's postmasters and 13,882 of Hoover's. It rejected 1,667 of Hoover's nominations submitted after the 1932 elections.

The Senate confirmed 18,928 of Roosevelt's 18,964 nominations for civilian positions other than postmasters and military service, and 11,009 of Hoover's 11,417.

Another Study Made Of Hindenburg Debris

Lakehurst, N. J., May 16 (AP).—In week-end privacy, Federal investigators of the Hindenburg fire and explosion made another long study of the airship wreckage today but commented they found "nothing special."

Their trip followed preliminary testimony by a member of the German crew who was stationed in the stern where the first flash of fire licked over the silver hull. The witness, Hans Freund, a rigger, was temporarily excused yesterday and will be recalled this week, probably tomorrow.

Scout Dance Arranged.

The newly organized Boy Scout Troop of the Church of the Nativity will give a benefit dance Thursday in the Shoreham Hotel. The Rev. Austin L. Nealy, chaplain of the troop, is in charge. Frank L. Schrider, president of the church's Holy Name Society, is general chairman.

Lowly Silkworms Receive Thanks From Buddhists

Tokyo, May 16 (AP).—The spirits of silkworms and cotton plants received the thanks today of 5,000 Buddhist worshipers and 40 priests for their "sacrifices" in providing mankind with two basic commodities.

Elaborately-robed priests in Tokyo's famous Asakusa Kwannon Temple conducted the rites of gratitude, expressing the Japanese attitude toward life, which endows nature and inanimate objects with attributes of spirituality.

Before great heaps of old string and threads, saved in sewing schools throughout the past year, the priests burned incense and invoked prayers for the "well-being" of silkworm and cotton plant spirits.

Boy, Girl on Trial For Hatchet Death

Jersey City, N. J., May 16 (AP).—Gladys MacKnight, 17, and her former sweetheart, Donald Wightman, 18, a former choir singer, will go on trial for their lives tomorrow—charged with the hatchet slaying of the girl's mother.

The Bayonne (N. J.) high school graduates accused of hacking Mrs. Helen MacKnight, 47, to death during a quarrel last July 31, because she "wouldn't hurry dinner," sat nervously in separate jail cells tonight awaiting appearance in the Hudson County Court of Oyer and Terminer.

A jury will be chosen from a panel of prominent business men. Prosecutor Daniel T. O'Regan said he will insist on the death penalty.

Soviet Army Chief Killed by Sentry

Moscow, May 16 (AP).—B. V. Pavloff-Silvansky, Soviet army commander and one of the country's best-known experimenters with parachutes, was shot and killed today by a scared civilian sentry.

Pavloff-Silvansky, inventor of parachute wings for guiding a jumper in his descent, was visiting a suburban airfield of the Osoaviakhim, the civilian organization for air and chemical warfare defense.

An 18-year-old youth named Kanakotoff, only three months away from his home village, was on guard outside a hangar door. Apparently he became rattled when Pavloff-Silvansky reproved him because the hangar door had been left open and fired. An officer with Pavloff-Silvansky was wounded. A number of Osoaviakhim officials were arrested for permitting the guard to "act under criminal orders."

Swanson to Get Tribute.

In tribute to officers and enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps who gave their lives to the service, a 6-foot anchor, made of poppies, will be presented to Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson tomorrow. The presentation will be made on behalf of the Veterans of Foreign Wars by Charles E. Weickhardt, naval liaison officer of the organization.

A Democratic King.

King Christian X of Denmark, who on Saturday celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his accession to the throne, belongs to a remarkable group of Scandinavian rulers. Both as private individuals and public figures these kings have demonstrated the complete compatibility between the monarchic institution and the democratic system.

There are, to be sure, democracies other than Denmark, Norway and Sweden that find the crown a useful adjunct to free government. Only a few days ago, in a setting of overwhelming pomp and pageantry, George VI and Elizabeth were crowned King and Queen of Great Britain and the dominions. But not even in England has the monarchy become so completely assimilated in democracy as in Denmark and elsewhere in Scandinavia.

In Great Britain the king is not only the crowned embodiment of the people's will; he is also the apex of a social aristocracy. In addition, his person is the visible link of unity binding together distant and not wholly harmonious parts of the Empire and the Commonwealth. Since the crown is multiple and transcendent, the institution of monarchy in Great Britain is necessarily and inevitably endowed with a mystical quality which places the king above the masses.

With the best will in the world on the part of the monarch himself, there is always implied in his relations with the people an element of patronage that cannot easily be eliminated. In a very real sense, however, it is the people who are the rulers, the king who is their subject.

In Denmark, democracy has wholly bridged the gap between people and ruler. With the average level of intelligence very high; with no great distances dividing rich and poor, it is possible for the democratic spirit to permeate every phase of life. In moving among his subjects, King Christian has indulged in no mock humility. For he is one of them and is recognized as such by the people of the kingdom.

Even on the day of his silver jubilee, the Danish monarch did not abstain from his usual horseback ride through the streets of Copenhagen. And the ceremonies incident to that celebration were—while wholly dignified—simple and unpretentious. The people through the lips of the Socialist premier thanked the monarch for having served them well; the king thanked Providence for the opportunity he has had to serve his people. The ceremony was over in 20 minutes.

Living on the fringe of a continent boiling over with insane forces, Denmark and its fellow monarchies of the Northland have given a remarkable example of sanity and sobriety. It is an example that should prove useful in these turbulent times.

Shifting Tax Plans.

Every new announcement from the District Building on the subject of local taxes appears to sink that problem deeper into confusion. Not long ago the Commissioners seemed to favor a business privilege tax to raise a substantial sum. Then they turned to the income tax. Now a sales tax temporarily holds the spotlight of official approval. Perplexed citizens are wondering whether this week will bring forth suggestions for a local corporate surplus tax or an increase in the levy upon real estate.

It is clear that the City Fathers are trying to work out a program that will raise the needed revenue without imposing a heavy burden on any particular group. That is a commendable objective. But the Commissioners are making no progress toward that objective by suggesting a new tax plan every few days. On the contrary, their shifting position suggests that they are merely thinking aloud instead of carefully analyzing the problem in all of its aspects.

Apparently the only reason for turning from the proposed income tax to a 1 per cent levy on all sales in the District is the fear that the former might prove to be unconstitutional if applied to the salaries of Government employes. In view of the complete authority of Congress to legislate for Washington, that fear appears to be rather far-fetched. Taxes are not levied by the District, but by Congress in behalf of the District. The slim chance that such a levy might not be sustained in the courts seems to be clearly outweighed by the practical objections to the sales tax as a permanent source of revenue.

Regardless of what the Commissioners intend to support, however, the need for outlining a definite program is obvious. To date conflicting recommendations have served chiefly to suggest that the matter has not been adequately studied. Fortunately, the Commissioners' tax committee has scheduled a meeting for today in the hope of drafting a final program that will more consistently present the local viewpoint.

An Untimely Farm Program.

Farm leaders could scarcely have chosen a time more inopportune than the present to send a new program to Congress. The drive for additional farm subsidies coincides with a sweeping economy wave on Capitol Hill. And even if that obstacle could be overcome, the bill would probably be blocked by constitutional considerations.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, is quoted as saying that the new farm plan would not cost taxpayers a cent if it "works perfectly." But even the most optimistic supporters of farm legislation would not expect perfect operation of such a complicated measure. Far more realistic is Mr. O'Neal's reported comment to newspapermen that expenditures under the bill could probably be held to $600,000,000 per year.

Secretary Wallace is reported to have warned the farm leaders that "excessive" demands upon the Treasury might defeat all farm legislation at this session of Congress. The Senate recently trimmed $60,000,000 from the $500,000,000 allowance for "soil conservation." Further reduction of this item would be more reasonable than extension of farm subsidies at a time when needs have diminished and the budget remains far out of balance.

For various reasons farmers are dissatisfied with the "soil conservation" program adopted as a substitute for the original AAA. Officials admit that it is not an effective means of controlling production. Nor is it an efficient means of conserving the soil. The largest payments are made to farmers whose soil is often the least in need of protection. Some payments go, as Senator Vandenberg recently pointed out, to individuals who have in no way participated in conservation activities.

The remedy for this situation is not, of course, an expensive new system of farm subsidies. A scientific soil conservation program could doubtless be carried out for a fraction of the money that is now flowing from the Treasury into the pockets of nearly 3,000,000 farmers. If Congress is looking for a real source of economy, it can further curtail the subsidy element in the present law without abandoning the policy of soil conservation.

Not content to ignore the status of the Treasury, farm leaders also disregard constitutional impediments to their program. The new plan goes far beyond the invalidated AAA in imposing compulsory control upon agriculture. To obtain the proposed new subsidies farmers would have to sign contracts agreeing to curtail their acreage of various crops up to 20 per cent. Farmers refusing to co-operate would be denied loans and the guarantee of "parity" prices. Moreover, they would be subjected to prohibitive taxes on the sale of products grown in excess of limits to be prescribed by Mr. Wallace.

Presumably the farm leaders are relying upon a packed Supreme Court to uphold this drastic measure. But present indications are that the President's judiciary bill will be defeated. Farm leaders seriously weaken their case when they even tacitly tie it in with that indefensible measure.

Finally, there is no emergency that would justify another leap in the dark. Farm prices, as reflected in the index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, have almost doubled since May, 1933. Any new legislation ought to be economically sound from the long-time viewpoint as well as carefully geared to budgetary conditions and our present form of Government.

WPA's Educational Projects.

In an address delivered Saturday at the Teachers' College of Columbia University Administrator Hopkins discussed the educational work of the WPA. The scope and variety of these activities are amazing, especially in the field of adult education.

It is also surprising to be told that 700,000 illiterates, most of them American-born, have learned to read and write in WPA classes. Besides grappling with illiteracy the WPA has advanced funds for nursery schools, established classes for training in parenthood, financed vocational training for the unemployed, aided students in colleges and universities, organized classes in citizenship and, according to Mr. Hopkins, provided instruction in "any useful subject for which there is a demand and a teacher available."

Huge sums could no doubt be spent advantageously in elevating our educational standards. The percentage of illiteracy in this land of free schools is shamefully high and we are painfully deficient in the provision made for adult instruction. Nevertheless, it is highly questionable whether funds appropriated to create jobs for the unemployed should be utilized to develop an extensive adjunct to our educational system. An emergency educational program, the chief purpose of which is to provide work for idle school teachers, is necessarily wasteful, haphazard and amateurish. Mr. Hopkins is unduly optimistic in asserting that such a program is "helping to lay the groundwork for a permanent adult education movement." At most it has shown that there are gaps in our system of education that need to be filled.

If the Federal Government desires to assist the States to improve and expand local systems of education, it should work through permanent agencies equipped to handle educational problems effectively and with single-minded attention to the main objective. Most assuredly it should divorce this educational program from any form of work relief and also divest itself of direct responsibility for administration of the system. The creation of jobs for unemployed school teachers does not justify the excursion of the WPA into an alien field. But it does suggest that here may be a chance for Congress to do a little of the pruning against which Mr. Hopkins protests so bitterly.

An "NRA" For Textiles?

A sub-committee of the House Labor Committee is conducting hearings on the Ellenbogen bill, often referred to as a plan to establish a little NRA. That description is misleading, however, because the proposed legislation would subject the textile industry to statutory restrictions much more onerous than the flexible rules imposed upon the industry by NRA codes.

For example, the Ellenbogen bill would limit the working week to 35 hours. All work in excess of 7 hours per day and 35 hours per week would have to be paid for at the rate of time and one-half. Minimum rates of pay would be set at $18 per week for unskilled labor until the Textile Commission created by the act could determine a fair and reasonable wage for the industry. As originally introduced the bill would also ban a long list of unfair practices and provide for limitation of output under certain conditions by prohibiting operation of machinery during the third shift.

It is surprising that a House Committee should be seriously considering legislation of this type at the present time. With the Wagner act on the statute books, textile workers are in a position to bargain collectively and protect themselves against exploitation more effectively than heretofore. Hence the argument for special statutory protection has been greatly weakened.

Furthermore, the Ellenbogen bill calls for a type of governmental interference with private industry that gives rise to grave misgivings. If a competitive industry like textile manufacture should be brought under Federal regulation on the ground that it is "affected with a national public interest" numerous other industries, now regarded as private and competitive in character, might be subjected to like control.

At any rate, the textile industry should not be singled out for regulation without recognizing the dangerous precedent that would thus be established. There are no compelling reasons for regarding the industry as one warranting special treatment, even though textile wages are comparatively low. As a matter of fact, the industry has shown a rather exceptional capacity to maintain effective organization. Through voluntary agreements it has improved the position of labor and made headway against unfair trade practices. A law that would raise labor costs and make no allowances for the varying capacity of employers to stand such increases would be economically unsound and likely to have a depressing effect upon the entire industry.

We already have a vast body of general regulatory legislation governing trade practices, pricing policies, and employer-employe relationships.

The problems that confront Federal authorities in trying to interpret and enforce these complicated laws sometimes seem overwhelming. From an administrative viewpoint, therefore, it would be most unwise to experiment with comprehensive systems of industrial regulation that would substitute legislative formulas and official decrees for the independent judgment of businessmen or for voluntary co-operation.

The road along which the Ellenbogen bill would carry us is for other reasons a dangerous one to travel. It aims at the subordination of private enterprise and would institute a form of public control that might easily lead to state socialism. Congress should take time to consider this possibility before undertaking new experiments in industrial regulation when there is no emergency to justify hasty action.

Firearms And The Public.

From the Hartford Courant.

The attempt to add to the number of types of firearms that cannot be transported in interstate commerce without being registered and taxed by the Federal Government has every appearance of nuisance legislation. Machine guns, sawed-off shotguns and pistols now come under the terms of the Federal firearms act; to add to these customary weapons of the underworld arms that are used predominantly for innocent purposes would be to handicap unnecessarily the great law-abiding majority.

As experience has abundantly proved, the effect of most laws restricting the possession of firearms is to penalize those who desire the weapons for self-defense and sport, without restraining the criminals whose underground sources never run dry.

Against D. S. T.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: The pros and cons on daylight saving (sic) printed in The Post's letters column of May 14 are both amusing and irrational, depending on the writer's point of view. As the summer advances upon us, vacationists will soon be pouring over the land, but many of them are going to miss trains, boats and other means of travel due to the confusion arising from the difference between meridian and local time.

I wish to record my disapproval of the extra hour of sunshine; it is anything but agreeable to have to go outdoors during the hottest part of the day, especially to be made uncomfortable going home in a stuffy street car or bus.

Now that so many office buildings and stores are equipped with air-conditioning systems regulating indoor temperature, and even some homes, I should much prefer to begin the day an hour later in summer and leave for home in the cool of the evening. FIDES.

Washington, May 14.

Suggested Employment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After reading Mr. Hopkins' article in The Post relative to the plight of employables, I would like to suggest that thousands of able-bodied men are willing to work but cannot find it.

There are many miles of abandoned streetcar tracks that are to be eventually removed. Why not now? The price of old iron is higher than it has been for years, something like 50 cents per 100 pounds. Give the men the work of doing this now. It will make the men more independent, would save the taxpayer and improve the looks of our boasted beautiful city.

A. A. LITHGOW.

Alcazar Siege.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Where did Mr. L. Keck get his inside information about the siege of the Alcazar?

Perhaps he can explain why the press reports from the City of Toledo, which was in loyalist hands during the siege and dynamiting of the Alcazar, were so strangely silent regarding any "wives, sweethearts and daughters of the loyalist attackers" being held as hostages by the defenders. If it were true they would surely have made the most of it at the time.

The tons of dynamite set off to blow the fortress and all of its occupants to bits seem to belie any tales of love held by the Reds outside for the women and children inside.

Dodd's 'Cheap' Dictator.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Where, in the name of wonder, has Ambassador Dodd been for the last five years? And what does he take us for—a Nation of cheap skates? Does he expect to stampede the American people of the New Order, marching on to the more abundant life (and less abundant Treasury), with a little, one-horse, billion dollar dictator? Why, he couldn't finance a respectable sideline of boondoggling. We pitch that much onto the National debt dump for future consideration, without batting an eye.

Furthermore, Dodd, or anyone else who has a spare dictator out of a job on hand, should know that we don't need a new dictator, or a new Supreme Court. We have a very serviceable and competent dictator—now, and the Supreme Court, if a little bewildered of late, can still stand up upon occasion, and for cause.

What we need, professor, is a brand new Congress—one not so unruly, and with plenty of money. The present Congress is stingy, and begins to renege. We want a Congress of broad mental caliber and backbone, which can keep one eye on Mr. Farley and patronage, and the other on the next election; and at the same time sit up, and do what it is told to do—now. The ideal Congress should be more like a prize flock of sheep in the green pastures of Capitol Hill; and we need to weed out the cantankerous old billy goats of horse-and-buggy persuasion. They are distempered, and are always seeing things; and, worse than that, they say things right out in meeting. If Dodd can rig us up a Congress like that out of his foreign experience, and domestic material, we might take notice; but a cheap billion dollar dictator wouldn't be a little dog in high oats on this side of the pond.

The real question involved is academic. Did Dr. Dodd purposely pervert court history, with intent to mislead; or is it just rank ignorance?

F. G. DAWSON.

Pegler On Labor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Several months ago I attended an auction of books and paintings held in a New York hotel for the benefit of the Newspaper Guild. Among the books offered was one by Westbrook Pegler. There was much cheering and handclapping for the author. Having just returned from several years abroad where his fame had not yet spread, I asked, "Who's this Westbrook Pegler?" The answer was "He's a fine liberal columnist." Since that time I have been privileged to be among his readers and I must take exception to this description.

Aside from a hatred for Hitler and Mussolini difficult to reconcile with his other opinions, Mr. Pegler seems to take the anti-liberal side on every issue he has the hardihood to tackle. Some more recent examples are his references to "the so-called Loyalists in Spain" and now his defense of the Harlan County conditions as being no worse than those fostered by "labor racketeers." If Mr. Pegler's name were to come up before any liberal group today, the Newspaper Guild included, it would surely be hissed.

That there have been some dishonorable men in the labor field is true enough. But in every case where labor-union racketeering has occurred, it has always been with the consent, if not with the connivance, of the employers involved. Labor racketeers never gain a foothold in an industry in which the employers do not prefer them to legitimate and honest labor organizers.

The most famous case is the buildings and trades racket in New York nearly 20 years ago, when the famous "Czar" Brindell and a multimillionaire contractor were both sent to Sing Sing. The same thing is true today.

Another case is that of the restaurant racketeering in New York, in which a number were recently convicted. In this case too, the employers for years not only tolerated the shakedowns but actually preferred to be shaken down than to deal with honest unions.

That is why it is so difficult to get these employers to testify against the racketeers. It was not merely the fear of reprisals as alleged, but also the fact that it is far cheaper to pay $10,000 or even $25,000 to a racketeer organizer and underpay and overwork your help, than to deal with honest leaders who obtain high wages, shorter hours, etc. The Wagner act by enforcing decency and ethical conduct among employers will permit honest labor organizers to function and do away with the racketeers. ELEANOR BOUDIN.

Washington, May 14.

Byron And Windsor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am wondering if anyone has noticed how prophetic are Byron's exquisitely beautiful lines entitled "Stanzas for Music" in their applicability to the present Duke of Windsor's plight, abdication and approaching marriage—especially the last two stanzas quoted:

And stern to the haughty, but humble to thee,
This soul, in its bitterest blackness, shall be:
And our days seem as swift, and our moments more sweet,
With thee by my side, than with worlds at our feet.

Shall turn me or fix, shall reward or reprove;
And the heartless may wonder at all I resign—
Thy lip shall reply, not to them, but to mine.

Protests Radio's Morals.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Isn't it time something was done to stop the "hog's holiday" now going on the air. I refer to the filth and low tone of verbal morality that pass for entertainment on the radio.

I feel there might be others who feel this as acutely as I do. I as a citizen protest and ask an impartial inquiry on the low taste and propaganda of the radio. Pouring forth, they are drilled into the public mind. N. KAUFMAN.

A Visitor Discovers Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am a transient in this city, evidently enjoying that status along with several thousand other Americans. I have been around to see the sights, including one of my own Senators (whom I did not vote for, but whom I am proud of for his determined stand against the President's Supreme Court proposal). I have been amazed at the crowded highways, bewildered by the one-way streets, befuddled by the no-left-turns, and exasperated by the omnipresent "no parking" signs and the ceaseless rush of traffic. I had almost despaired of learning my way about in Washington.

But unexpectedly and all by myself I have learned how to do the trick: it is to take one's walks before 5:30 a. m. This morning I rose very early and walked 12 blocks to spend the day with a relative in a centrally located hospital. I emerged on the street expecting to see the usual crowd, but I discovered that at that time (about 4:45 a. m.) I was the sole occupant of the sidewalks and street, that is excepting a gray kitten which came out of an alley to greet me with an affectionate rub against my ankles, soft purrs, and an inquiring "mew." I talked to her and she trotted companionably by my side for an entire block, in which we were the only moving figures. Then we met a janitor, brush in hand, on his way to work.

At this time my furry friend grew interested in some sparrows across the street and left me to walk alone. I had been longing to window-shop, but the jostling crowds had prevented me. Now I could gaze to my heart's content. A lovely bride and her bridesmaids, all gorgeously attired, held my attention for a time; then a jeweler's display, a candy shop, a novelty store showing, and numerous other attractively dressed windows were thoroughly inspected as I loitered, undisturbed.

A cock sparrow having a dispute with his spouse afforded interesting drama. The little hen, her feathers ruffled, and looking very indignant, chirped loudly in contempt of something her husband had said or done. He chirped still louder in reply and hopped jerkily about dragging one wing and scolding vociferously. Soon they were both chirping at once and I am sure neither could hear the other. Then the hen spied a crushed peanut on the edge of the pavement. She ceased disputing and began to peck at it. Quickly her spouse joined her, and soon, their quarrel forgotten, both were pecking at the tasty food. Nor was the dispute resumed after the lunch, for they rose suddenly, side by side, and flew away together. And so another domestic crisis was averted.

As I went on, I saw a few pedestrians, an occasional street car or auto but there was missing the roar of traffic, the pushing and jostling of the hurrying throngs. In front of a restaurant a waiter was serving breakfast to a flock of pigeons. All was peaceful and quiet. The stately Government buildings which I passed acquired new beauty and dignity in the serenity of the hour. A church tower clock chimed solemnly. I saw new glory in my National Capital. I had at last discovered Washington!

"Obediently Yours"

THE "complimentary clause" is a long and somewhat awkward designation for the brief, concluding part of a letter, but the grammarians, rhetoricians and general students of the composition of letters apparently have not been able to improve upon it. Opportunity beckons here for the ingenious word coiner or adapter.

Development of the clause through the years has been toward caution. This, of course, is apart from those very personal letters, written, say, during the period of courtship; such letters with respect to what precedes the signature are very much a law to themselves, as they always have been and doubtless will continue to be. One can imagine the sensations of a business executive of 1937 on receiving from an amused secretary a letter signed "Yr. obedient servant." Eighteenth-century formalities might evoke a reply of some nature; what is sure is that letters containing them would immediately be filed as eccentricities or curiosities. Fancy a father of today receiving from his offspring a letter reading before the signature "Your obt. Son and hum. Servt." Yet such letters once were written by Americans.

"Yours sincerely" or "Sincerely yours," "Yours truly," and latterly "Faithfully yours" show the trend of the times. "Respectfully yours" still appears in communications to dignitaries; one wonders sometimes how much respect actually is conveyed. "Yours truly" usually is considered a pretty cold finis to a letter; the recipient may not question the writer's veracity, but he may sense a certain aloofness. Use of the word "sincerely" is a trifle more intimate, but remoteness is not wholly absent from it. As to what "Faithfully yours" means, opinions differ. Is there really faith on the writer's part in the addressee, is there expression of his faith in himself or of the hope of mutual faith in himself or of the hope of mutual faith and confidence—and, in any case, to what extent, if any? Skeptical folks are likely to rank "Faithfully yours" with "Yours truly."

A word may be in order as to what precedes the complimentary clause. The banker's "kindest regards" may be disregarded when the communication refers to a loan. "Kind regards" is a cheering phrase, but it leaves the question open as to the elevation to which the writer pushes "kind." Probably the most equivocal of all is the phrase, rather frequently in use at present in personal letters: "With my best." Wishes or regards, or remembrances may be understood, but wishes for what, regards in what sense, or remembrances of what? The person who gets the letter is left, more or less uneasily, to speculate.

Surrealism.

After a visit to a surrealist art exhibit, I have a burning desire to go out and pet a hound dog. I want to touch something sane and sensible and wholesome and sound and human, like a hound dog.

In the old days, Mrs. Lou Jones, of Bloomfield, Ind., didn't pay any attention to the soggy side of life, but she probably knew it was there. She just kept her milk crocks clean, and her kitchen spotless, and was kind to her husband. She knew what to do about life.

Then college sophomores and other sophomores awoke to the fact that on the stream of human consciousness floated both flowers and garbage. Some of them were so fascinated by the garbage that they had to poke at it for the rest of their lives.

The surrealists can't get over their surprise at the content of the unsieved stream of human consciousness and they think they're brilliant for painting a lily, a revolver, a pair of garters and a doughnut on the same canvas. This isn't something new in art. It's arrested development.

You can't kid surrealist art; it is self-kidding. You can't kid people who paint designs for the insides of drunkards' stomachs, or Mrs. Martin Johnson surrounded by wild dithers, or six safaris which don't know which way to turn, or an alarm clock relaxed on a piece of liver. This is all easy jabberwock . . . on canvas.

It makes me sick.

Further Steps for Television.

Television had two major triumphs this week. For the first time, like its brother radio, it covered a coronation. About 50,000 persons, grouped about television sets within a 25-mile radius of Westminster Abbey, simultaneously saw and heard some coronation "shots" transmitted by wireless.

In New York the Institute of Radio Engineers demonstrated a new television "projector gun," which enlarged images from 2 by 3 inches in size to cover a screen 8 by 10 feet. The hundreds of unknown and silently toiling scientists who are still trying to bring fairly clear television out of the laboratory into commerce have been sure, all along, that when they get through images the size of a room wall and as convincing as movies can be viewed. Thus far screens 8 by 12 inches on receiving sets have been the largest practicable. Hence, showing a picture 8 to 10 feet, even as another laboratory exhibition, is a notable improvement—but these electrical "men in white" had expected something of the sort ere long.

Racing Rackets.

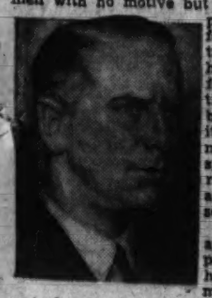
ALTHOUGH DOG RACING is generally known to be a racket, it does not follow that the horse racing industry is conducted solely by chivalrous sportsmen with no motive but to improve the breed and provide innocent amusement for their fellow citizens. The truth is that some of the horse parks which benefit from the handsome tradition of the turf are operated by known racketeers, and it is further true that the mere presence of State inspectors in the pari-mutuel rooms is no guarantee against larceny on a grand scale.



The inspector is a political appointee drawing a comparatively small salary, and his conscience is not the most reliable safeguard. The mutuel room is a mysterious place in which lightning calculators do tricks with figures, and, after all, the State inspector has done his principal duty when he has certified the total amount wagered, so that the State treasury may collect its legal percentage.

It is really no fuzz off that State's peach if the inspector, in turn for a cash present from the known racketeers who run the place, looks out the window while they calculate the odds which they will pay the customers after the State has been paid.

* * *

OUR CITIZENS, notwithstanding expensive experience, still have a childish faith in machinery and State inspectors, however, and there is a general belief that the mutuels, under State supervision, are incapable of sin. They forget that the machine is no more honest than the man who runs it and the man who watches over him. They forget, also, that mere wealth and social pretension in a horse park operator who is handling millions of dollars of the public's money need not signify incorruptible honesty.

As to that, one of the most austere gentleman sportsmen in the horse park business admitted in a public hearing a few years ago that he had given bribes to certain officials for permission to run his plant contrary to law.

It is true that he did not initiate the bribery, for he is known to be no philanthropist, and gave up only in response to severe pressure. But he was a party to a corrupt transaction morally indistinguishable from the corrupt practice of the dog track operators doing business in communities where the law forbids but the authorities do not prevent.

The ideal condition for the operator is the bootleg system. For several years the horse tracks in several States were strictly bootleg. That is, the law was against them, but the sheriffs and local prosecutors acquiesced. Thus there was not even a pretense of supervision in the mutuel rooms, and the promoters helpde themselves to the apples, while the customers, even though they knew the wheels were crooked, tossed their money through the window just for fun.

* * *

THIS IS THE SYSTEM which has been applied to the dog tracks in New York State up to now, and, although I have called it ideal, I must add that the ideal has been improved in the law passed by the recent Legislature to permit dog racing with mutuels, but without any State control or any provision for a State percentage.

That plan improves on perfection, for it gives the racket legal status and protection against the police, while permitting the racketeers to hold back for themselves as much as they think the customers can spare. The New York law which comes before Gov. Lehman for approval or veto does not even go through the motions or demanding that the odds be based on the usual factors.

Never in the fascinating history of the gambling racket and politics has such a beautiful gift been presented to the underworld of sport and politics, and its value may only be guessed at. As a basis for the guessing the dog track figures for Massachusetts in 1935 may be of some service.

Massachusetts dog tracks, with supervised mutuels, handled $15,458,000 in 1935, but New York, under the proposed law, might have 50 tracks scattered about the city and State and might handle easily ten times the Massachusetts total. And, for all that the law says to the contrary, the racketeers and the politicians might help themselves to half the money, or all of it.

Still, rough and low and impudent as they are, the dog people have many social and moral equals in the horse business. Since various Legislatures make a good woman of horse racing, people have forgotten that some of the leading sportsmen of the turf are yeggs by trade.

The Billion Dollar Ogre.

("There are individuals of great wealth in America who wish a dictatorship. One man, I have been told, who owns nearly a billions dollars, is ready to support, and of course, control it."—Ambassador William E. Dodd.)

There's a billionaire—
Can't you see his hand?
He is out to make
This a Fascist land! . . .

Look beneath the bed!
Look behind that chair!
Look beneath the rugs . . .
For he may be there! . . .

He's a big rich man
With a load of cash;
(What was that upstairs? . . .
Did I hear a crash?)

He has bags of gold
And two great big horns,
And democracies
Are the things he scorns.

He has cloven hooves
And a heart of slate,
And he's working now
On a Fascist state.

Oh, his teeth are long
And he eats live coals,
And he throws a scare
Into timid souls.

Can't you hear him growl?
Can't you feel that heat?
He's around here now
In his stockinged feet.

He would gobble me—
He would gobble you;
Ain't it terrible
What the billions do!

Whoosh! I see him here
And I see him there;
He has big green eyes
And long purple hair.

He has uncut claws,
And wears iron spats,
And his favorite dish
Is boiled Democrats.

Help! Assistance! Quick!
Save me from that wad!
Well, send William Dodd!

Philadelphia Assumes Major Role In Celebrating 150th Anniversary Of Federal Constitution; Program Extends Through 1939.

By Eugene Pharo.

Philadelphia.

RATHER APPROPRIATELY, Philadelphia has led off the country-wide celebration of the sesquicentennial of the Federal Constitution, proudly reminding everyone that it was in this town that the instrument originally was drawn up. Early in the week of May 10, the streets in the vicinity of Independence Hall were decorated with the city colors and with flags bearing the names of the States of the present Union. Last Friday was selected as the date of the first programmed events, by this means going the constitutional delegates themselves one better; for though the convention was planned to convene on that date in 1787, it did not meet until May 26. Philadelphia, however, will celebrate May 26 as well.

Later on, events associated with the celebration will include those worked out by a State commission under the chairmanship of Albert M. Greenfield, of Philadelphia, under appointment from Gov. Earle, and those evolved by the Congressional committee under the chairmanship of Representative Sol Bloom. But just at present Mayor Wilson of the Quaker City and his own committee have things all their own way. Thus they are able to combine love of the Constitution with a proper regard for the business-getting potentialities of having special events transpire in this city during the rest of the spring and all of the summer.

The State and National commissions are looking forward, rather, to the fall, when the celebration will reach a high point in the week of September 12, culminating in the anniversary of the actual adoption of the Constitution by the delegates on September 17; nor will all their celebrations be confined to Philadelphia.

State's Ratification To Be Observed In December.

LATER there will be in Pennsylvania, celebration of the State's ratification on December 12, and in 1938 and 1939, more celebrations—according to Gov. Earle's very specific proclamation of last December. This will include, on June 21 of next year, celebration of the ratification of the Constitution by the ninth State; and on April 30, 1939, the sesquicentennial of the inauguration of Washington as the first President under the Constitution. These events bring other geographical locations in the United States into prominence, and will naturally tend to push Philadelphia, for the time being at least, somewhat into the background.

Various stunts are now in progress in Philadelphia, however, that would be appropriate to no other city, and that very justly emphasize the unique place of the town in the panorama of historical reminiscence and jubilation that is being planned to pay to the Constitution almost as much honor in the observance as, over 150 years, dishonor has done to it in the breach.

A full week before the program of May 14, Benjamin Franklin's old printing press was gotten out of the Franklin Institute's museum on the Parkway so that, both for the practice and for the newsreels, Mayor Wilson might strike off on it a copy of an invitation to the Governors of the 13 original States, bidding them attend next September's events.

Later, it is planned, these invitations are to be entrusted to mounted police of the city, who are to ride off to the Colonies with them. Each cop is to be caparisoned in Colonial costume, and it is hoped that children along the routes will not be deceived into believing that they are missionary salesmen, distributing samples of chewing gum or candy for some enterprising merchant.

Liberty Bell Center Of Program Last Week.

THE LIBERTY BELL, which has not been moved from Independence Hall since 1917, when it was carried in a Liberty Loan parade, and which, metallurgists say, had better not be moved again, was selected as the central feature of the May 14 celebration. With a mallet made from trees originally growing in Independence Square and carried for some reason by a relay of Boy Scouts all the way from Valley Forge, Mayor Wilson was set to tap the old bell 13 times. Each separate tap was to be broadcast by radio, as were the other details of the occasion. Speeches by Gov. Earle, Chief Justice Kephart of the State Supreme Court and a reading of the preamble of the Constitution by the Mayor were other features decided to be appropriate to the occasion. A pageant in which school teachers had been given the roles of 39 delegates to the constitutional convention and various other events were included in the program.

One striking feature of the events of the week was placing of a "Constitution Register" on the desk in Independence Hall on which the Constitution is believed to have been signed. It will remain there during the months of the commemoration, and all visitors will be requested to sign it—in token of their loyalty to the Constitution and as a permanent memorial of their visit to the city. The original draft of the Constitution as written down by James Wilson will be shown from time to time during Philadelphia's observance.

Needless to say, there is great activity among all the patriotic associations and federations whose interest in the Constitution, and in all the patriotic history that transpired in Philadelphia, is so keen and persistent. Independence Hall Chapter, D. A. R., has arranged to plant more trees in Independence Square (which, as no one currently is advertising, was the site of an atrocious prison during the days of the Revolution). Nor has the Board of Education overlooked the opportunity to stimulate celebrations and programs in the city's schools, many of them having been held simultaneously with the Independence Hall program.

Museums And Planetarium To Feature Constitutionians.

MAYOR WILSON'S committee has prepared a program of events for various other dates during May. Later occasions that will make memorable the dates intervening between June 1 and September 17 will be announced. A Constitution exhibit will be opened at Franklin Institute in honor of Franklin as a signer of the Constitution. A demonstration, "Skies Over the Constitution," has been arranged for the Fels Planetarium, which is in the Franklin Institute Building. At the University of Pennsylvania special exercises are to be held on May 21 commemorating Franklin's part in drafting the Constitution. On May 22 there will be presentation of documents relating to the Constitution and the constitutional convention to the city by Dr. A. S. Rosenbach, the city's noted bibliophile and collector. The mayor will receive these documents at a special ceremony in the Free Library on the Parkway.

On Sunday, May 23, the Patriotic Order, Sons of America, will hold special services at Independence Hall. On May 26, which is the anniversary of the date on which the convention actually met, there will be a reception in Independence Hall to women descendants of the signers. On May 28, in the vast Art Museum at the head of the Parkway, there will open a special Constitution exhibition. Memorial Day observances will also be associated with the Constitution, through a special parade and exercises on the Parkway on May 29, and through exercises at the grave of Benjamin Franklin, Sunday, May 30.

Noon band concerts in Independence Square are being arranged by the committee, which should make office workers in the vicinity glad that they have a Constitution.

State Commission Waits For Funds From Legislature.

BUT WHILE these municipal events are getting under way, the State commission, which earlier in the year Mayor Wilson evidently suspected would crowd him a little, is waiting for money from the Legislature with which to start its activities. While tentative plans have been discussed by its members, and there has even been some consultation with Representative Bloom and with members of the mayor's committee, no definite moves can be made until an appropriation is forthcoming.

No obstacles are expected, however, to the early approval of such a measure, and in due course it is expected that Chairman Greenfield will make an official announcement of his commission's plans. After that, of course, as the fall draws near, there will be further embellishments to be announced from Washington or New York by Mr. Bloom.

Whether by that time Philadelphia itself will be tired of hearing about the Constitution remains to be seen.

British Geography On America.

London.

"WASHINGTON is the capital of the United States, and is a place of some historical interest; here 'Congress'—the American Parliament—meets, and here are the chief courts of justice, and, therefore, the principal persons in the country meet here at certain seasons; but they live in boarding houses, attend to their business, and go away again, taking care not to bring their wives and daughters, who spend the interval at Saratoga, a charming watering place, or some other pleasure 'resort.'"

Oh, Washington fathers, beware for your wives and your daughters! This is no account dug up from the past; it is sober up-to-the-minute information on the habits, customs and behavior of the New World, as provided for the education of British school children in the Ambleside Geography Books, Third Revised Edition, printed in 1931. The first edition appeared in 1909. The reviser of the current edition writes in the introduction: "I found my several years' residence in Canada and Mexico, and my many visits to the United States of inestimable value in correcting erroneous impressions and added materially to the volume of information on these amazingly progressive countries contained in the original edition."

* * * *

THE UNITED STATES is discussed in two chapters, one on North America, one to itself. The first opens with a reference to the "picturesque and pleasantly wooded range of mountains on the East—the Alleghanies—and on the West a great mountain system, the northward continuation of the Andes." The center of North America is filled by the great lowlands, which reach from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. "Though sometimes undulating, these savannahs are oftener level and interminable as the ocean, and covered with long rank grass of tender green, mixed with lilies and other bulbous flowers, which fill the air with fragrance."

The main chapter on the United States divides the country into four natural regions (Atlantic slope and highlands on the East, the Mississippi Valley, the Western highlands and the Pacific slope), which are reviewed in turn. In the Eastern States section we are told that the Alleghanies or Appalachian Mountains are not interesting or picturesque. In this region anthracite is found which is extremely slow in burning, "but has a painfully drying effect on the air of a room." In the New England States lumbering and ship-building are perhaps the principal industries. In Lowell, seat of cotton manufacture, "the mills are remarkably clean and well warmed, and the most careful arrangements are made for the comfort and well being of the work people."

* * * *

FOREMOST of the cities is New York. "You sail into the city between green islands—Staten Island, clustered with charming villas buried in trees; Coney Island, famed for 'clams,' a favorite shell fish; Long Island, etc." The chief street of New York is the famous Broadway—"a grand street, miles in length and lined with great hotels and splendid buildings of marble and iron. Fifth avenue is a street of magnificent houses, very lofty, many of them of beautiful white marble, and never dirty in this clear air." Up the Hudson lies Albany, "a well built and important town, and a good point from which to reach the celebrated Falls of Niagara."

"In the Southern States are few habitations of what the people here call 'mean whites;' the 'whites' of Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas are gentle folk, the planters; and rising from the midst of magnolia groves, the trees 90 feet high, you may see handsome, well-appointed houses, like those of country gentlemen in England." But alas for the inhabitants! "The lives of the white population are made miserable with ague; they shiver under this almost tropical sun, and go about with pale faces and listless gait." Poor Senator Glass!

BRAVELY the textbook plunges into the semi-wilderness of the Mississippi Valley. "We will cross the State of Ohio, from Cincinnati to Cleveland on Lake Erie, the second city of the State. We leave a handsome and populous city and fine roads, and the towns grow smaller and the highroad rougher as we advance. Half way across the State, we come across new clearings, where the felling and burning of trees is going on, and where oats are growing amid the blackened stumps. Then, for many leagues, we lose sight of all human habitations, except here and there an empty wooden building on which "Movers' House" is written, that is, a house that a family of emigrants may hire for the night. At last the road improves; again we come across scattered towns, getting more and more numerous, and soon we reach the large and busy town of Cleveland, seated on the edge of Lake Erie." What courage! What perils faced and bravely overcome!

"What we have said of one fairly describes all the new States North and East of the Mississippi; everywhere the Great Lakes and the rivers form the channels of commerce, and are crowded with every kind of craft, from the log canoe to the magnificent steamboat. By degrees settlers venture to fix their dwellings further and further from the water way, bringing their corn and cattle to the water-side towns for exportation." Me no like paleface, me scalp paleface; and with a guttural 'ugh' the redman vanished into the forest!

* * * *

"THE NEWER Western States are the vast stretches of territory which have only in comparatively recent times become populous enough to take rank as 'States.' The States of the Rocky Mountain region are employed in mining; here are rich mines of silver and gold which have drawn motley troops of miners from all quarters of the globe. Lead, copper and coal abound here, too; but as long as great 'booms' of the precious metals are to be found, the miners care for nothing else." Oh, for the smoke of Anaconda, and copper at 30 cents!

"We have no room to describe the remaining mountain States, nor the Utah territory wherein is the famous Mormon settlement of Salt Lake City; a thriving colony which has even become a State; unfortunately so because it is ill for the world that the principles of these people should spread." Just to jog your memory, it's a book on geography we're reading!

At last, California! "Everybody knows of California as the land of gold, where the lucky finders of great 'booms,' so they are called, become millionaires in a day, and where many a hapless miner who never comes across a fragment of the precious ore sinks into lower and lower depths of want and misery. But it is only of late that the world has taken account of the great loveliness and exceeding fertility of this Western paradise."

* * * *

A GOOD STUDY of this admirable textbook makes it impossible for ignorance of America to exist among such of our school children who are fortunate to meet it. Many of them don't get as far as this detailed study of America, and most of them get no farther. No wonder Mr. Stanley Baldwin was able without blushing to refer recently to the necessity of improving knowledge of England in the Middle West by summoning a conference of "politicians from the pastoral regions of the United States."

Colleges And Securities.

Because so much of their income derives from investments, colleges have suffered severely during the depression; and because of the slow recovery of the securities market, the pinch of curtailed funds probably will continue for the immediate future. This is the verdict of a financial survey by the American Council on Education after a study of 45 university portfolios. It explains why college tuitions have had to go up in recent years, why faculty salaries have remained at depression lows, why financial aid for students has been curtailed.

It also reveals the close relationship of the universities to the securities market and therefore the largely similar interests of the colleges and other securities investors. Efforts to regulate the securities market or remove tax exemptions will be fought by them as by other protected beneficiaries. Thus the major endowed institutions are essentially joined with the conservative investment interests, which in turn explains the general conservatism of their administrations.

Imperial Conference

Canada Unlikely To Follow British In Program For Common Foreign Policy, Defense Plan; U. S. Stirs Trade Discussions.

By Our Ottawa Correspondent.

Ottawa.

THE IMPERIAL CONFERENCE which began its deliberations in London last week, had its formal beginnings as an institution exactly 50 years ago, when the premiers of a number of British colonies assembled in Ottawa under the chairmanship of the British Colonial Secretary to discuss a variety of common problems.

The gathering was then styled as "Colonial Conference." The more impressive title of "Imperial" was not conferred on it until the meeting in London in 1897. In the last 40 years these Imperial Conference have taken place at intervals of three or four years. While the results of some of them have been inconsequential, others, notably the conference of 1917, which witnessed the endowment of the overseas dominions with full political equality with the mother country, and the conference of 1926, which gave formal registration to their new status and paved the way for the passage of the Statute of Westminster, have produced far-reaching changes in the political and other arrangements of the British Commonwealth.

On this occasion the personnel of the conference will show a considerable change from that of the last gathering. A number of the British minister who will attend have had previous experience at such conferences. Both Premier Mackenzie King of Canada and Premier Hertzog of South Africa have sat at this council board before, but there are two important newcomers present in Premier Lyons of Australia and Premier Savage of New Zealand. The latter, who is reputed to be one of the ablest politicians produced in recent years by his Dominion, will have the distinction of being the only Socialist at the conference.

The conference itself, it should be remembered, is a meeting of governments and it has no executive authority; it can merely pass resolutions and make recommendations about policy. But the ministers who subscribe to these resolutions and recommendations are virtually committed to seek the authority of their parliaments for their implementation.

Downing Street Seeks Common Foreign Policy.

THE PUBLISHED AGENDA of the conference covers a variety of problems but foreign policy, defense and trade will dominate its discussions. The British government would naturally like to see all the partner nations subscribe to a common foreign policy. This objective is, however, almost impossible of attainment for various reasons. In the first place British foreign policy has in recent years come to be largely a matter of improvigation from month to month as the currents in the international situation shift. Dominion ministers will always be exceedingly chary about pledging their countries to unqualified support of the day-to day decisions of Downing Street. Moreover, some of the Dominion governments, particularly those of Canada and South Africa are now persuaded that their basic interests in the international field are not wholly identical with those of Great Britain. They feel that they are entitled to frame their foreign policies in consonance with their own special needs and interests.

Intertwined with foreign policy is the question of defense and armaments. Here again unanimity is not to be expected. A ministry so predominantly Conservative as the present British government has not much fundamental sympathy with the aspirations of Dominion nationalism and their reflection in local defense schemes for each Dominion. London would fain see a centralized co-operative defense scheme worked out for the whole Commonwealth. But when Sir Samuel Hoare, the First Lord of the Admiralty, gave voice to such views some months ago in a public speech and belittled the value of the local defense schemes in the Dominion, he angered the King government in Canada.

Mackenzie King Against Central Defense Program.

MR. MACKENZIE KING and his colleagues proclaimed during debates in Parliament last session their antagonism to any centralized plan of imperial defense. In order to pacify isolationist malcontents in their party they pledged themselves in so many words not to let Canada participate in any such plan as was advocated by Hoare. So the probability is that the Canadian delegates will make very little contribution to the discussions on the defense problem, but will listen attentively to the views advanced by the other delegates.

If he is pressed to indorse a common imperial scheme of defense, Mr. King will point to the great diversity of opinion in different racial and geographical sections of Canada about defense and the difficulty of achieving anything like national unanimity on the subject. He will insist upon the necessity of pursuing policies which will prevent the development of racial fissures in Canada such as the conscription controversy of 1917 created.

He will take the line that Canada is relieving Britain of certain responsibilities by attending to her own defense, which, on account of geographical and political factors, need not worry the British people in the same way as the defense problems of more exposed portions of the Commonwealth must do. He will also emphasize Canada's devotion to the principle of the solidarity of the British Commonwealth. But, while he might promise to increase Canada's expenditures on armaments in the coming years, he will not be moved from his determination not to involve Canada in support of a common imperial defense scheme.

He is likely to find support from the South African delegation for this attitude, but the Australians and New Zealanders have traditionally been strong devotees of imperialist doctrines and if the objections of South Africa and Canada could be overcome it would not be difficult to induce them to indorse a centralized scheme.

New Zealand Socialists Hurt by League Attitude.

HOWEVER, the present Socialist ministry of New Zealand does not see eye to eye with the Baldwin ministry in Britain on many points and it is predicted that Mr. Savage will cause British ministers more trouble than any of the overseas delegates. His government has already taken issue with the British government in regard to the latter's policy about the League of Nations. New Zealand feels that the League has been pusillanimously betrayed by Mr. Baldwin and his colleagues. In a memorandum which the New Zealand government framed some months ago the demand was made that all the energies and resources of the British nations be put behind a fresh effort to make the League an effective instrument of collective security.

Mr. Savage has announced his intention of raising this issue at the conference and trying to extract from it new and very specific commitments about the League of Nations which will operate to prevent any further shilly-shallying on the part of Downing street. He will find on this point cordial backing from the South African delegation, because the South Africans have now become afraid of Italian and German designs in Africa and regard a revived and strengthened League as the best possible agency for checkmating them.

The Australian government will not be disposed to make any serious challenge of the wisdom of British policy toward the League and the Canadian delegation will be averse to aligning itself behind the demands of the New Zealanders. Canada continues to give lip service to the League. But speeches made by Premier King and some of his ministers indicate their zeal for it has materially cooled and that they would prefer to see it reduced to the status of an international debating society, which would not attempt to apply sanctions or use force in any shape or form against an aggressor state. So there may well develop in the conference a sharp clash of opinion between those who want to put teeth into the League and build up an effective system of collective security and those who feel that the League is now beyond redemption and want to whittle down their commitments in connection with it.

Trade Questions Loom Following Hull Theories.

AT ONE TIME it was thought that as the Anglo-Canadian trade agreement which was the keystone of the structure of imperial trade co-operation built at Ottawa in 1932 had been successfully revised, trade questions would not bulk very large at this conference. But this view has now been abandoned. For this development the Roosevelt Administration is charged with the chief responsibility. It is now an open secret that at least the British and Canadian governments have been fully apprised of the ambitions of President Roosevelt and Mr. Hull to promote world peace by an economic program in which the first item would be a comprehensive Anglo-American trade treaty. Predictions have been freely made that this scheme of the Roosevelt Administration, which has a special spokesman in London in the person of Mr. Norman Davis, will be a dominating topic of discussion at the conference.

Premier King was undoubtedly made familiar with it during his visit to Washington in March and it is believed that he was there converted to its merits. He has already given indications that he is prepared to sponsor it at the conference and stress the opportunities which are now offered to lift the world out of the slough of depression and avert the danger of another general war.

Undoubtedly the Roosevelt Administration would like to see the imperial conference make a clear-cut declaration in favor of some uniform policy of freer trade in co-operation with the United States. Above all Washington wants the conference to offer some earnest of its sincerity by consenting to certain modifications of the existing system of imperial trade preferences. These, on account of their effect upon Canada's trade relations, are a serious obstacle to the consummation of any Anglo-American trade agreement worthy of the name.

There will be support from other quarters than Canada for the desired modifications of the preferential system. But it will not be easy to convert to the merits of such a change Mr. Neville Chamberlain, who is about to become premier of Britain, as he would feel that he was undoing the work of his illustrious father, who first raised the banner of imperial preference in British politics.

So any prophecy about the final attitude of the conference toward the trade problems which will confront it is hazardous.

Test of Syphilis Asked by Students

Stillwater, Okla., May 16 (AP).—A petition bearing names of 602 Oklahoma A. & M. College students was before the college council today asking establishment of the Wasserman test for syphilis as part of the regular physical examination for enrolling.

"The day of false modesty is past," said Ainsworth Chapman, junior in the school of agriculture, who originated the petition. "The public is gradually being awakened to the menace of syphilis.

"It often infects innocent people and this test will do an immense amount of good. The disease is not only harmful to the people of today but to future generations as well."

Dr. C. H. McElroy, dean of men and chairman of the college council, promised Chapman the petition would be considered.

Doctors at Fairbanks To Inoculate Residents

Fairbanks, Alaska, May 16 (AP).—Doctors in flood-stricken Fairbanks prepared today for general inoculation against typhoid among the town's 2,100 inhabitants, as damage mounted to unofficial estimates of $650,000.

Refugees gloomily watched the subsiding Chena and Tanana rivers, ice jams in which caused the floods by backing water into the town. Persons who inspected the nearly three-fourths of Fairbanks still covered by water said it would be several days before residents could return to their wet, muddy homes, or before affected business houses could reopen.

Norris Moves To Check Foes Of Power Laws

Nebraskan Asks $150,000 to Quiz 'Vicious' Activities.

By Russell Smith.

A Federal steam roller designed to flatten out utility opposition to governmental power activities will be presented to the Senate today if Senator George W. Norris (Independent Republican), of Nebraska, is successful in calling up his resolution for an investigation of the private industry.

This steamroller is embodied in a resolution empowering the Federal Trade Commission to use the investigative technique it turned on the same industry once before.

$150,000 for Quiz.

Under the Norris resolution, $150,000 would be appropriated for a commission inquiry into "activities of a very flagrant and vicious character," according to the report of Senate sub-committee on the bill. These activities were said to constitute interference with performance of authorized Federal functions in its power program.

Norris will bring up the resolution today, his office said last night, if, on conclusion of reading calendar bills, it is possible to do so. The Nebraskan said upon introducing the measure he expected its adoption with little opposition.

Significantly, the drive for passage of this resolution precedes by a few days the transmission to Congress of a message from President Roosevelt outlining his plans for new power-flood-control legislation and the introduction by Norris of a bill which will incorporate the President's ideas.

Carmody's Activity.

Closely allied to the legislative situation was the outburst of activity the past few days on the part of John M. Carmody, the new and militant rural electrizcation administration head. In contrast to the co-operation policy of his predecessor, Morris L. Cooke, Carmody has conducted a systematic offensive against what he terms "flagrant . . . interference" with co-operative projects.

Cooke's departure coincided with renewed activity upon the part of Administration advocates of extensive public power development.

Most recent onslaught in Carmody's still developing campaign against private utilities is his effort to prevent abandonment of a co-operative project in Johnston County, N. C., on a public basis so that the Carolina Power & Light Co. can take it over.

Interference Charged.

Declaring the power company had appealed to the North Carolina Supreme Court after its injunction request had been refused by a lower court, Carmody wrote the president of the co-operative, in part, as follows:

"The situation is not one in which the power company, at the inception of your project, recognized its obligation to serve your community. On the contrary, the history of this matter to date has been a flagrant attempt to interfere with your plans and to destroy your project. The present situation must necessarily be considered in the light of what has already happened. These happenings affect not only the proper desire on the part of your members to own and operate their own electric system, but also the hopes and chances of other rural communities in your State to participate in the rural electrification program.

"Experience has indicated that the thwarting of one co-operative project destroys the aggressive attitude of the farmers in other sections and makes opposition to a widespread rural electrification program more easy. This program should be allowed to develop normally and naturally in the interest of farmers in your State and elsewhere without any successful opposition through court proceedings or other hostile tactics. We feel more assurance now than at any time concerning the successful outcome of the pending legal proceedings, but, whatever the outcome of these particular proceedings, it is our opinion that the desire of any group of farmers in your State to avail themselves of rural electrification loans cannot long be frustrated."

"Spite Line" Charge.

Previously, he had accused the Alabama Power Co. of building "spite lines" parelleling the lines of a co-operative project in Alabama, and had called on Gov. Holt and the public service commission of West Virginia "to help save Hardy (County) co-operative project from destruction."

In his West Virginia wire, Carmody also said:

"The fight that West Virginia farmers are making to build rural lines of their own to supply electric eregy in areas previously unserved may not have been brought to your attention. Every effort made by these farmers in West Virginia to take advantage of R. E. A. act has been blocked by utilities. This is the only State in the Union where such opposition has been consistently successful. There is an immediate emergency in Hardy County where three utility companies appear to be invading co-operative territory and are proposing to take over entire project as they did in Barbour County with the encouragement of the public service commission.

Construction Rushed.

"Meanwhile they are also hastening construction to head off co-operative as they did in Hampshire County. Utilities will argue that it does not make any difference who builds these lines so long as farmers are served, but experience indicates that where co-operatives are defeated the aggressive spirit of the farmers is killed and the utilities promptly cease to build lines into less profitable rural areas."

These R. E. A. activities are regarded as linked closely to the proposed trade commission inquiry, for in its report on the Norris resolution, a Senate sub-committee accused the utilities of "frightening off" farmers who wish to co-operate in the Government rural electrification program."

Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore and Three Sisters Entertain at Colorful Garden Party at Historic Home Near Fairfax

Diplomatic and Official Sets and Capital Society Well Represented in List of Guests at Beautiful Colonial Home in Virginia.

"And it didn't rain, after all." This sentence was by far the most popular one used yesterday afternoon as half of Washington proceeded to wend its way homeward from the garden party which the Assistant Secretary of State, R. Walton, and his three sisters, the Misses Moore, gave at their home near Fairfax.

May seems to be suffering from a bit of left-over April and the brave souls who plan garden parties only can pray and keep crossed fingers where the weather is concerned. Those who were going out to the Moores' home for the first time did not have the least worry about finding the Virginia estate because all the way from Washington out to the historic little town there was a stream of limousines, town cars and roadsters, all bearing low license plates or diplomatic tags, winding over the highway and all one had to do was to follow along.

Garden View Beautiful.

One passed through heirloom furnished rooms, then emerged on the wide porch overlooking the garden. From the steps looking out over the velvety grass rolling in a gentle slope, with the pink dogwood blooming in profusion, luxuriant beds of tulips, iris, spyrea and peonies, one had the feeling of being at a party in jolly old England. Perhaps the presence of the dean of the Diplomatic Corps, Sir Ronald Lindsay, standing head and shoulders over everyone else, had something to do with this.

Miss Margaret Moore, in powder blue and white chiffon, greeted guests not far from where her brother stood chatting. A bevy of pretty girls from Sweetbriar College, friends of their nieces, Miss Mary Walton McCandlish and Miss Nancy McCandlish, served. They made an attractive picture in their long, flowing gowns of soft pastel shaded organdies and chiffons, strolling about from group to group offering platters of cakes and candies.

French Envoy, Wife There.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet, keeping up the standard they set soon after their arrival here, again were "partying." She was costumed in smart blue and white and made a good subject for the movies which the Minister of Portugal, Dr. Joao de Bianchi, was taking with his camera. Mme. Bianchi, one of the fashion leaders here, was attired in black and white.

Down in the lower garden a long table was temptingly laden with ices and numerous cakes. It was centered with a colorful array of flowers arranged in a handsome old silver pitcher which has been in the Moore family for more than a hundred years. White-coated butlers skillfully made their way through the gathering of guests with trays of chicken salad and beaten biscuit.

Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Frank Bohn, who is living with her while both of their husbands are away, the Secretary in New Orleans and Dr. Bohn in New York. Mrs. Bohn was talking animatedly about her plans for the summer. She and the doctor are leaving about June 10 for California where he is to be a "guest professor" for the summer session at the University of Southern California.

Mrs. Swanson in Blue.

Also from the Cabinet were Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, wearing a vastly becoming shade of pale sky blue, and accompanied by her son, Mr. Douglas Hall; and the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, she was in dark blue.

A familiar face not seen at parties here for ever so long was that of Mrs. Oscar W. Underwood, who has just arrived from the South and will soon take up her abode in Woodlawn, her historic old home near Mount Vernon. She was another who chose a soft shade of blue for her costume.

Others enjoying the hospitality of Mr. Moore and his sisters included the Ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Mme. Troyanovsky; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Representative Caroline O'Day and her daughter, Miss Elia O'Day; Mrs. Ernest Draper, the First Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. W. W. Howes; the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr; Mr. Robert Kelley, Mr. Larry Lervis, Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of the Solicitor General; the Minister of Latvia, Dr. Alfred Bilmanis and the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de los Rios, who were accompanied by their daughter, Senorita Laura.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Harry Blair, Mr. Wallace Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Duggan, Representative Edith Nourse Rodgers, Representative Virginia Jenckes, the Minister of Austria and Mme. Prochnick, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Feis, Mrs. James Helm, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Jones, the Minister of Yugoslavia and Mme. Fotitch, the Minister of Denmark, Mr. Otto Wadsted; Mr. and Mrs. Wade Hampton Ellis, Mrs. Malin Craig, wife of the Chief of Staff of the Army; Mrs. Otis Bland, the Minister of Czechoslavakia and Mme. Hurban, Col. and Mrs. Edwin Watson, the Minister of the Irish Free State, Mr. Michael MacWhite, and the Minister of Lithuania, Mr. Povilas Zadeikis.

Smith College Club Players Get Old French Costumes

Mrs. William Chapin Huntington, of Washington, is lending several old gowns which were made for her mother in Paris in 1888 to the Washington Smith College Club, which will present a Victorian comedy, "The Buntling Ball," on Thursday evening. The performance will be given at Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets, at 8:15 o'clock. Mrs. Herbert Budlong is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Huntington is a trustee of the college and was formerly president of the Washington Smith Club. Proceeds of the performance, at which younger members of society will usher, will go to the scholarship fund of the college.

Mrs. Michael Straus Is Chairman Of Dance at Green Acres School

Mrs. Michael W. Straus, of Rowland place, is chairman of the dance to be held next Saturday evening at Green Acres School, Macsfolly Farm, Silver Spring, Md. The event is for the benefit of the scholarship fund.

Assisting Mrs. Straus on the committee are Mrs. Webster Powell, Mrs. Margaret Fahey Rudolph, Mrs. Clark Warburton, Mrs. Lincoln Fairley and Mrs. Lyle Cooper.

The school is the former summer home of the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, who lived there when he was Secretary of State.

Party Planned By Grey Ladies

Bridge, Tea and Fashion Show to Be Held at Medical Center.

Even if it rains—and of course members of the committee are praying it won't—the Grey Ladies will hold their annual birthday party on the lawn of the Army Medical Center, Walter Reed Hospital, on Saturday afternoon. There will be bridge, tea and a fashion show in the formal garden. Mrs. Ralph Murrell and Mrs. Rufus L. Holt are cochairmen of the committee on tickets.

One of the features of the party this season will be flowers, to be sold by a group of young girls under the direction of Mrs. Kincheon H. Bailey. There will be colorful corsages and a wide variety of spring flowers.

The refreshment table will be supervised by a committee of which Mrs. Charles Robb, of the Grey Ladies, and Mrs. Henry C. Coburn of the Chapel Guild are cochairmen. Mrs. Coburn will be assisted by Mrs. A. B. McKie, Mrs. Thomas F. Davis, Mrs. David B. Faust, Mrs. Daniel C. Campbell, Mrs. William Denton, Mrs. Eugene Campbell and Mrs. Lincoln F. Putnam.

Miss Crockett Evening Bride

Miss Margaret Cecil Crockett, daughter of Mrs. Thompson Sayre Crockett and the late Mr. Crockett, was married last evening to Mr. William Kyle Milholland, jr., of Washington, son of the late Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Milholland, at Questover, the home of her mother, near Berryville, Va.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. S. E. Crockett, of Columbus, Ohio. Mrs. Edward Allen, jr., of Rippon Lodge, in Jefferson County, Va., was matron of honor, and Miss Louise Kricker, of Baltimore, was maid of honor.

Her bridesmaids were Miss Agnes O'Mara, Miss Sallie Green and Miss Margaret O'Ferrell, of Baltimore, and Miss Jane Allen, of Berryville. Little Miss Barbara Lee Jones, a niece of the bride, was flower girl, and her nephew, Tommy Smith, will act as ring bearer.

Mr. Edward Allen, jr., was best man for the bridegroom, and the ushers were Mr. Carlton Lindsey and Mr. Richard Lavick, of Loudoun County; Mr. Richard Smith, acted as ring bearer.

Maurice Greets Honor Guests At Garden Fete

Women Entertain Among Blooming Roses for Visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Greet were guests of honor yesterday afternoon at a garden party given by the National Woman's Party at its headquarters, historic Alva Belmont House, on B street northeast. The setting was that in which "Love's Labor Lost" will be presented June 8 and 9 by a cast of Washington players under Mr. Greet's direction.

Miss Alice Paul, of the National Council, who arrived from Europe only a week ago and expects to return within a few days to continue her vigilant watch at the League of Nations on measures affecting the equal rights of women, was present at the affair. She had planned to sail last week-end on the Europa but canceled her passage to complete business here and will go to her home in New Jersey for a brief stay before leaving.

Dr. Carrie Harrison, a pioneer member of the party and a recognized authority on roses, selected yesterday's party—the first of the year in the garden—as a fitting occasion to present a set of tools for planting roses.

Roses Blooming.

Many of the fine specimens in the rose garden which will soon be in full bloom are gifts of Dr. Harrison. The tools she gave yesterday for the upkeep of the rose plots were nearly all brought from England.

The National Woman's Party includes in its membership feminists of all professions who are interested in removing descrimination against women. Just now it is devoting its work on Capitol Hill to support of the Celler bill to repeal Section 213 of the economy act, which discriminates against married women in Government service. Miss Anita Pollitzer (Mrs. Ely Edson) and others who have been engaged in support of the bill were among the guests. The measure has a hearing in the Rules committee Tuesday and a vote is expected soon. Mrs. Lois Babcock, who has been lobbying for it, was there as were Miss Martha Souder, Miss Elsie Hill (Mrs. Albert Levitt), with her daughter, Miss Elise Hill Levitt; Miss Edith Ward and Miss Mildred Curran, who is in charge of arrangements for the coming play.

Guest List.

Members of the cast who were guests of honor with Mr. and Mrs. Greet included Lela Carrington Bates, Mary Crowley, Hudson Wells, Edward Finlayson, Myrl Rhine, Paul Sumers, son of Mrs. A. Burke Sumers; Eckles Huff and three Theodores: Theodore Field, Theodore Freter and Theodore Smith.

Mrs. Bates and Mr. Greet both spoke briefly on plans for the play which will be presented with the old brick terrace back of the house as the stage and the spreading branches of the great Dutch elm which shades it serving as part of the "props" for the production. The audience will be seated in the garden, around which the old iron fence has been continued, the new section replacing the less sightly board fence which had served in recent years.

Club to Install New Executives

Mrs. Joseph T. Maguire will be installed as president of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase at its business meeting Wednesday. The session, which will be held in the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, will open with a luncheon at 12:15, at which Mr. Roger J. Whiteford, the club's attorney and legal adviser, will be guest of honor and speaker.

Other guests of honor will include Mrs. Frank Hoadley, president of the Maryland State Federation of Women's Clubs; Mr. E. Burton Corning, architect for the clubhouse soon to be erected at Connecticut avenue and Dunlop street, and Dr. J. Hillman Hollister, pastor of the church.

Mrs. Edmund F. Erk will be hostess at the luncheon and the program, in addition to Mr. Whiteford's talk, will include songs by Willie Kimbrough Bryant, soprano.

Officers who will be installed with Mrs. Maguire include: Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby, first vice president; Mrs. Edward H. Helmuth, second vice president; Mrs. Arthur T. Davenport, recording secretary; Mrs. Paul H. Butler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kenneth D. McRae, treasurer, and Mrs. Louise S. Murphy, assistant treasurer.

The new evening section, and the nature section will have a joint meeting tomorrow at 8:30 p. m., at the Naval Observatory, for "An Evening with Moon and Mars."

Mrs. Roosevelt Entertained at Newspaper Tea

Miss Katharine Brooks Greets First Lady for Officers.

Mrs. Roosevelt yesterday afternoon attended the tea given by the Newspaper Women's Club for officers of the Press Club. She came at the end of the afternoon and remained to chat informally with members and guests as she sat at the tea table where Mrs. Charles Arthur and Mrs. Samuel Wassell were pouring when she arrived.

Miss Margaret Hart, president of the club, had with her in the receiving line Mr. Harold Brayman, vice president of the Press Club; Mrs. Brayman, Mr. Ralph Henley, of the board of governors; Mrs. Henry and Mr. G. Gould Lincoln, president of the Gridiron Club. Miss Hart wore a frock of dusty pink with a rose of the same shade tucked in her hair.

Miss Katharine Brooks met Mrs. Roosevelt when she arrived. The First Lady wore a suit of flowered silk much the same shade as the frock worn by Miss Hart and the knitted suit in which Miss Brooks' was dressed also was pink, carrying out a color scheme as harmonious as though it had been planned.

The tea table had a center bouquet of calla lilies with low bowls of spring garden flowers at either end and white candles in silver candelabra. Among those who poured, besides Mrs. Arthur and Mrs. Massell, were Mrs. Phillips Thompson, of New York, mother of Miss Phyllis Thompson, a member of the club; Miss Ned arris and Miss Lela Bathon.

Mrs. Daniel C. Roper and her daughter, Mrs. Frank Bohn, were among the guests, as were Representative and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, the Solicitor General and Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harriman, Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Mrs. Sallie Pickett, Mr. Arthur, who was there with Mrs. Arthur; Mrs. Kate Scott Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Cook, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Donnell and Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, who wore a dress of black velvet with little bouquets of flowers forming the design, a large black hat and black lace gloves.

Society and club editors of Capital papers will be guests at the press table, headed by the chairman of the press and publicity department, Mrs. Grattan Kerans. Mrs. Suzanne Mulkern is chairman of hospitality.

Md. Women's Clubs Will Meet Today

The board of directors of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs will hold its final meeting of the year today at College Park, Md. After the business meeting in the morning the board members will be entertained at luncheon by Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, and will be guests at the May Day pageant this afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Hoadley, president of the federation, will report on the Tulsa convention from which she returned the first of last week. She will tell of its action on the Supreme Court issue and will also announce the presentation of the name of Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore for the office of first vice president of the General Federation.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn

Whirlographs of the very successful dance given on Saturday evening by the Italian Ambassador and Donna Mathilde de Suvich:

The chancery of the embassy converted into a "tavern," with small tables covered with bright red cloths, a menu in Italian—even "apple pie" written in that language—Chianti, and spaghetti served until 6 a. m. . . .

The bar downstairs converted into an Italian liner, for the evening anyway. Portholes, anchors on the walls, and signs in Italian saying "To the tender," etc.

Waltzes played often during the evening, and everyone agreeing that among the best waltzers were Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., and his tall blonde wife, who wore a tulle frock with a bodice striped in several colors . . .

Donna Marina Torlonia and her sister, Mrs. Daniel Lord, down from New York for the occasion—both tall and blonde and dressed in similar frocks of black chiffon with cerise sashes . . .

The Italian singers who marched through the various rooms of the embassy about 3:30 a. m., singing "Funiculee, Funicula" . . .

Sir Willmott and Lady Lewis, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins sitting in a comfortable chair in the loggia talking with Mrs. Emory Sands—both were in black . . .

Mrs. Campbell Pritchett in a full-skirted tulle gown waltzing with Mr. Nicholas Lely, Counselor of the Greek Legation, and Mrs. Victor Mallett, in white, and Frau Scholz among other members of the diplomatic corps present.

Senators and their wives who were luncheon guests of Senator and Mrs. Millard E. Tydings yesterday at their home, Oakington, near Havre de Grace, had a rare treat in store. The estate is on a tract of land surveyed in 1659 for Col. Nathaniel Utie. Extensive additions to the original colonial house were made many years ago by the noted architect Stanford White, for Mr. James L. Breese, former owner.

Everybody who visits Oakington dotes on its formal garden surrounded by 200-year-old boxwood, and its quaint flower-fringed paths through the woods to the waterside.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

The Manicure.

"Do you want 'em any shorter? . . .Well, I always ask. I know a lot of operators just go ahead, but I think the customer ought to have some say-so. That's one reason I've always kept my following. I had one little customer in this morning that's been coming here six years. She just got back from Reno, and she says the worst part of the whole thing was she couldn't get a decent manicure in the place. . . .

"What? . . .Oh yes, she was getting a divorce. . . . Yes, you see he fell in love with a society girl he met at a horse show—a 19-year-old girl, mind you! . . .Well I will say this for him, he was very honest about the whole thing, he just out and said he couldn't live without this girl and so there was nothing else for his wife to do. . . . You know a lot of my customers who are prominent women tell me its getting terribly hard to hold their husbands on account of so many debs——

"Oh, did that hurt? . . .I'm sorry. You must have a sensitive cuticle. A lot of my customers have sensitive cuticles. That's one thing about me though—I'm very careful when I find anyone with a sensitive cuticle.

"Well you know sometimes I wonder what the world is coming to—the way men are acting. Now I've got another customer—do you know she had to divorce her husband after they'd been married 30 years? . . .Yes, you see he suddenly went crazy about young girls—why it got so finally she couldn't keep a maid. . . . Yes! and dance. Why he nearly danced himself to death. . . . Yes, and he'd practice his tap dancing at home and keep everybody in the house awake all night.

"Yes, and she'd sacrificed all these years for him and what good did it do her? . . . Well, when I was married I made that same mistake. Men don't appreciate it.

"Oh! Was that too close? . . .I'm sorry! . . . You really have a very sensitive cuticle. . . .No I won't cut too close. . . . I never believe in hurting a customer.

"Now I've got one customer with a sensitive cuticle who goes abroad every year—at least she did until she lost her husband on a boat and since then. . . .What? . . .Oh no, he wasn't drowned. He met a movie actress on the ship—at least she said she was a movie actress—and she was simply crazy about pingpong and so was he and they seemed to have so much in common and everything and well—do you know he made his wife get a Paris divorce?

"Yes, honestly I can't see what's getting into the men. Now I took a little lady the other day who's been having a terrible time with her husband. He left her over a comptometer operator. . . . Yes it was an awful shock. He'd always been so wonderful and they had two darling children and then he met this comptometer operator and —well you know how married men are in office. Anyway he started driving her home and——

"Oh, I'm so sorry! . . . No, really I'm not giving you a close manicure at all. . . . It's just if I don't get this little hangnail. . . .

"Well you know I can't see why these women in offices want to break up so many homes for. That's one thing about me—I don't bother around married men. I always say anybody can get a married man. It's getting a free lance that counts.

"You know I have an awfully sweet little customer whose best friend broke up her home. . . . Yes, you see the two couples of them chummed together and went around to parks and places, and this lady's husband and her friend would ride on roller coasters and things and pretty soon—well one night they were all in one of those old mills and.—

"Oh did I cut it!. . .I'm sorry . . . .Wait a minute and I'll put some disinfectant on it. You can't be too careful about a sensitive cutiele.

"Well you never can tell when a man's going to be safe these days. Now I've got another customer—you'd be surprised if I told you who she was and she's leaving for Reno next week . . . well you see her husband never left the house except to go to a stamp collector's club and it seems he met a widow there—say what shade of nail polish do you like. . .well they're wearing them lighter. . .still they say Mrs. Simpson uses the deep polish.

"Well as I was saying, you never can tell about men. Now I've got a customer—you reminded me of her, she's got a sensitive cuticle too—and her husband's taken up with a dean of women! A dean of women mind you in a college—What? . . . .The telephone? . . .It's right over there, but you'd better let that polish dry. . . .You want to call your husband's office? . . .All right."

Crash Good for Sports.

If you're searching for something unusual in a sports frock, the natural linen crash worn recently by Myrna Loy, movie actress, should be just the thing. Fashioned along strict shirtmaker lines, it gains distinction by its raffia embroidered trimming. Raffia bands surround the neckline and sleeves, and a wide belt of this bright-colored straw encircles the waist.

American Girl Is Slave of Style, Says Expert, Who Favors More Emphasis on Individuality

Ankle-Length Dance Dress Is Incongruous, She Asserts.

By Ethel Ehlen,

NEW YORK, May 16.—American women, despite their flair for dress, have one great fault in clothes selection, believes Marguerite Van Norton, noted designer. It is—they are slaves to style.

"They haven't enough courage to be individual," said Miss Van Norton. They wear the same kind of clothes and affect the same color schemes as their associates, whether such costumes suit them or not.

If blue is the rage, everybody goes in for blue when black or brown, for instance, may be much more flattering. The same is true of stripes and plaids—let some one sponsor these patterns, and inevitably it is the wrong type of woman who specializes in them for her entire wardrobe."

Miss Van Norton, who is a veteran in this business of styling, designing and counseling fashions, started her career years ago on the American stage. Her intense interest in color and line induced her to desert the footlights for designing, and she began creating costumes for stage stars. Theatrical designing paved the way for a successful career as an associate of Lady Duff Gordon. Later she opened her own salon with an exclusive clientele. In the interim Miss Van Norton made frequent trips to Europe studying the Paris sources of fashion.

Designs Evening Clothes.

Evening clothes always have been the foremost interest of this style expert, and a number of years ago she distinguished herself by creating the Miss America dance frock which influenced the trend in dancing attire for the younger set throughout the country. Later, Miss Van Norton returned to Paris, where she was associated with one of the smart couturiers for a number of years. She is now designing evening clothes for a well-known house in the American market, New York.

"The ankle-length dance dress is incongruous," declared Miss Van Norton with vehemence. "It is not graceful or flattering, and really belongs on the stage, where shoes are made especially to complement each costume; it certainly does not belong on the ballroom floor."

Simplicity is Miss Van Norton's theme when creating dance or dinner clothes. Simplicity, accenting good lines and becoming colors, is synonymous with elegance for a woman of any age, she contends.

Line Most Important.

According to Miss Van Norton's designs for dancing and dining, line is more important than color. Watching this "wizard of the shears and needle" design a cotton dinner-dancing ensemble one day recently in the market, it was easy to see that line is her keynote to perfection in fit and smartness. A model came in wearing a bolero-topped dance frock and immediately Miss Van Norton reached for the shears and nipped the material with a dexterity that made you gasp. "The bolero was too long and the corners too sharp for a slim, short figure," she explained.

The older woman, Miss Van Norton maintains, should dress her age and not try to look like a flapper; this does not mean, however, that she should wear matronly looking clothes.

"Dress to look as young as possible without appearing foolish," advises this designer. The older woman who is inclined to be stout should wear clinging materials and never go in for bouffancy, she suggested. All women can wear the new starched sheer cottons so popular this summer, Miss Van Norton commented. That is, if they are made to flatter the figure.

Black Considered Smart.

"There is nothing smarter than black." Miss Van Norton said. "Black for dinner ensembles should be imperative in the wardrobe of every person who wants to be classed as chic. It should be simple of line, with discrimination in the choice of accessories. For the young girl, pastel tints and white are usually a better choice than dark tones, however."

Not forgetting her first love, the theater, while choosing a designing career, Miss Van Norton is co-author with Tyrone Towle of a play, "Garment Center on Parade," which is supposed to go into production in the fall. It is a musical comedy with dress designing as the theme, and, according to its authors, will be even more popular than "Potash and Perlmutter." Miss Van Norton will design the costumes for the participants and hopes thereby to influence fashions for next season."

Tomorrow—Summer fashions for the growing girl.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

First Aid.

This has been designated National First Aid Week, and it is hoped that throughout the Nation emphasis will be placed on the necessity for a knowledge of first aid and also on the technique of first aid treatments.

Most accidents occur in the home, and most of these occur between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m., when it is not easy to get the help of a doctor or neighbor. This places complete reliance on first aid methods, and indicates the importance of everyone being familiar with simple remedies and procedures.

Learn about first aid treatment before the accident occurs. After an accident occurs is not the time frantically to read up on what to do. Bruises, sprains, burns and fainting spells are among the common emergencies occurring in every home. Every member of the family should know what to do and turn immediately to supplies in the medicine chest.

According to the First Aid Council, the following supplies should be in every home medicine closet and readily available for use: One roll of one-inch sterilized bandage or compresses, supply of three-inch gauze squares, one roll of adhesive tape, one bottle tincture of iodine or mercurochrome, one bottle spirits of ammonia (for fainting), one large tube of burn ointment, one bottle of syrup of ipecac (to induce vomiting after poisoning), boric acid (eye wash), rubbing alcohol or liniment (for sprains and soreness).

To read the announcement of the First Aid Council is to realize that the home is not nearly as safe a place as we would like to have it. The number of fatal burns that occur in the kitchen and fatal falls in the bathroom and bedroom rise to astonishing statistical heights.

All types of injuries, from a sprained ankle to a broken back, have occurred from stepping on a piece of fruit or a spot of grease on the kitchen floor.

Many women consider burns an inevitable part of their daily experience in the kitchen. Foolishly many women neglect them only to discover later they have a troublesome or dangerous infection to deal with.

Children who are left alone in a house can be taught the elements of first aid treatment, and this should be done. Knowing what to do for themselves, they are less apt to become panicky and helpless in an emergency.

1. Be sure to have a complete first aid kit in the home and another in the automobile.
2. In every emergency, keep calm.
3. Send at once for a doctor.
4. Never allow anything, not sterilized to come into contact with a break in the skin.
5. Don't wash a would, sterilize it with iodine or mercurochrome.
6. Learn the technique of reviving a drowning person.
7. Learn to make a tourniquet, and to apply it.
8. Learn to apply simple dressings, for protection against infection.

Tap Dancing Self Taught

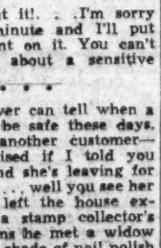
You'd never know she learned all by herself, without expensive lessons.



She found that all tap dances, no matter how hard they seem, are combinations of a few basic steps. You can make clear ringing taps by striking the ball of your foot, your heel, toe, or the whole sole of your foot to the floor.

The toe tap is easy to learn from a diagram like that in the sketch. Lifting the right foot off the floor back of left, strike the point of right toe sharply against the floor. Repeat until the taps sound clear as a bell.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "Tap Dancing and New Variations in Social Dances," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, May 16.

ONE FINE Sunday afternoon I was sitting in my own Murray Hill tepee, in the heart of Manhattan. The following Wednesday, with considerable surprise, I found myself gaping at the far-famed pueblo of Taos, N. Mex., and forking out coppers to small soiled Indians who were demanding "centpenny." And by Saturday's cold gray dawn I was tumbling out of a lower at the Grand Central Terminal, ready once more to bear my small share of the White Woman's Burden!

ALICE HUGHES.

That, in brief, is the story of the maddest and merriest junket I have ever made, and there have been some tolerably crazy ones in my time. It was not done with wires, mirrors or airplanes, but all on the gleaming rails. It covered some 4,000 miles and was accomplished with all the ease of the daring young man on the flying trapeze.

For the mighty Santa Fe Railroad is justifiably proud of its new "Super-Chief," which will whisk Myrna Loy and such from the Coast to Chicago in practically no time, and the road very kindly asked about 70 of us, gents and ladies, to come along for a preview. We did, and are still in something of a daze from the speed and frolic. Money was of no use save for tips. We had no railroad tickets—only cards which named our space for the whole trip. The whole affair made the magic carpet look like great-grandpa's ox-cart, and it was all completely incredible.

Clare Elliott, one of the town's smartest advertising girls, looked after the women folks, and did a marvelous job of it. And in less than six days we had been, and seen, and come home again to the pueblos of the East!

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—"The Super-Chief" itself is a beautiful thing of stainless steel, the last word in handsome design and traveler comfort and bowing through Kansas at better than 90 is something of an experience . . . And the new train's arrival was as big an event for New Mexico as it was for us. Almost at daybreak on Tuesday we pulled into Las Vegas to find the whole town, 9 to 90, at the station to see the Super. The local high school band was tooting on the station lawn, and the glee club was singing something that might have been "Hail to the Super-Chief." They said the Governor was present, but I could not identify His Excellency as he did not wear a silk topper. I am used to my Governors wearing glossy high hats, but they, of course, are the effete Eastern type . . .

• • • •

As for Santa Fe itself, the old town nearly turned itself inside out to welcome us. It never sees passenger trains any more, visitors coming up from the main line by bus. And for beautiful hotels, you'll go far to see a finer one than the La Fonda, where we were housed. Naturally, it's all done Southwest style, handsomely and in the finest taste . . .

• • • •

The day at Taos, 75 miles from Santa Fe, was an eye-opener, with the pueblos against a backdrop of "snow-topped mountings" and a clear, cold torrent rushing through the center of the Indian village. The Taos Indians have about 30,000 acres of their own—and of course, during the summer they do a pretty brisk trade in pottery and such . . .

As for the writers and artists, they run wild through the country. At a big dance at the La Fonda I met Witter Bynner, the poet fellow, who has lived out there for years. This "baile," or fiesta, was staged in our honor, and all the citizens for miles around turned up, dressed in Spanish style.

• • • •

One brief visit was paid to the lovely hacienda of Mrs. Mabel Dodge Lujan, adventurer among the arts and artists, author of "Lorenzo in Taos" and other tomes. It's a glorious place, and while we didn't see Mrs. Mabel, who was ill, we did see Tony, her Taos Indian husband, who figures so largely in the "Lorenzo" book. The fascination of the place is apparent, even after such a brisk look. It's no wonder that people go out to New Mexico—and just stay!

Menus For Today

BREAKFAST.

LUNCHEON.
Creamed tuna fish on toast
Iced tea
Jellied vegetable salad
White cake diamonds

DINNER.
Olive and peanut butter canapes.
Sliced jellied tongue
Succotash
Buttered asparagus
Sliced tomatoes with parsley and onion dressing
Hot biscuits Butter
Coffee Milk

OLIVE AND PEANUT BUTTER CANAPES.

Cream together 2 tablespoons butter and 2 tablespoons peanut butter with lemon juice to taste. Spread on circles of breaded toasted on one side. Put a slice of stuffed olive in the center and border with the butter or with chopped olives.

Bake Big, Little Cakes.

When you make your next layer or loaf cake, take out enough batter for four or five cup cakes. Bake them in small pans or paper cups and then save them to put in lunch boxes, since they keep better than individual pieces of cake.

Plant Mint Bed.

If you have any garden space, be sure to put in a mint bed, for mint may be used in countless ways during the summer. It is especially suitable for chilled beverages, frozen desserts or salad or dessert garnishes.

CAPITAL MANNERS

By Margaret Wallace

NIGHT CLUBS and other public places of entertainment present their special problems of etiquette. At one time well-bred young women did not go to public dancing places, except when they were guests at a private party. But it is now considered usual to do so, provided the dance hall or night club is a properly conducted place.

Many young persons who like to dance patronize these dance halls in Washington and avoid critical comment because they abide by the rules of good form. Of course, they dance with the members of their own party. It is not good form for a member of one party to dance with members of other parties at a dance hall without the approval of the host or hostess. If there is no host or hostess for the party, the approval of the other members of the party should be sought.

Breaking in Rude.

The habit some young men have of attending public dances in dance halls or night clubs and breaking into groups for partners is very rude. When a hostess gathers her party together and takes them to a dance hall or night club, she does not expect instrusion on her group any more than if she were in her home. However, it is proper for a young man who is not escorting a lady or is not a member of a party to ask permission of a hostess to dance with her guests.

Everyone who has attended public or semipublic functions in groups has been annoyed at some time or other by the instrusive man, or sometimes woman, who joins a group uninvited.

When a man escorts a woman to a dance hall or night club, he may present any man of his acquaintance who is present to the woman he is escorting. This, of course, is equivalent to permission from the escort to dance with his guest. However, the man who has been introduced to a woman guest by her escort should say, "Do you mind?" when he asks the woman to dance. He should bring her back to her escort when the dance is over.

Unchaperoned Couple.

QUERY—I am a business girl and like to dance. My parents do not live here and I do not know many people. A young man I know has invited me to dinner and to dance at a well-known restaurant which is run under strict rules and has a hostess and assistant hostess. Do you think it will be proper for me to go? In the small town I come from a girl did not go to night clubs with men alone. This dance hall is the type of place where whole families dine and where there are lots of parties going on all the time. I feel that since I am an independent woman, earning my own living and living alone I do not need the kind of chaperonage a young girl living at home would. I would never be able to go anywhere if I do not accept the invitations of young men to go with them to dinner and dance.

ANSWER—Many young businesswomen do dine and dance at well-run places with men friends. Under these circumstances, of course, the girl who is dining and dancing with a man unchaperoned will be very careful that the place is a reputable one and that she adheres strictly to the rules of good form. She should not wear conspicuous clothes nor act in a manner to attract attention. No well-bred girl ever stays at such places very late.

New Summer Suits Feature Embroidery

Paris, May 13 (U.P.).—Helm has gone in for embroidered details on spring and summer suits.

One black tailored suit in black wool has a straight little skirt and a tailored and fitted jacket that fastens high at the neck with a cut-out and embroidered design of a bird in a cage. The round cage is banded by gold embroidery which matches the gold braid that trims the neckline. Inside the round cage is a natural linen foundation upon which is embroidered a little silk bird.

A more summery suit is grege (between gray and beige) shantung. The skirt is made with front pleats that are stitched down to the knees and then pressed into place. The jacket fastens high at the neck but is cut away in a center V to make small revers and to reveal a blouse of black linen embroidered all over in a conventional design of colored birds.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Graduate Nurse Loves and Is Loved by Man Reluctant to Marry Now; She Asks What Attitude to Take.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a 31-year-old graduate nurse with a good job. I am a high type individual with ideals and intelligent understanding. A young man whom I consider equally fine has been courting me for the past year. I want a home, and peace. He feels he hasn't had enough of life and wouldn't like being tied down. Yet we care a great deal for each other. Feeling cannot be disguised. One can tell when another cares.

• • • •

He doesn't want to give up nor does he feel that he should take on marriage. But I've seen too much of these long-drawn-out friendships to trust them. It's true the young man has had a confining life, taking care of a family his father left on his hands. But now he is free of that burden. If he could lose his fear of marriage and enter into it, I know I could make him happy; that he would never have a regret.

• • • •

And yet I wonder if a person should marry, because of love, when he really doesn't want to? What must I do? Shall I give him up, since we want different things? Or shall I continue our courtship as he wants me to? I've heard that men's minds have to be made up for them. I wonder? Could you possibly answer me soon? I'm in a miserable state? Gratefully, GRADUATE NURSE.

• • • •

Don't Coerce Him.

DEAR GRADUATE NURSE: A man with an unsatiable hankering for footloose adventure is not the best of matrimonial bets. It's a case of "to thine own self be true and it must follow as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man." The man who betrays his own purpose to oblige another very often winds up by going back to his original purpose in spite of himself. No doubt you could beguile your suitor into marriage, since you deeply care for each other, but the question is—would he remain a dependably harnessed mate? He might—and he might not.

• • • •

There are two ways of looking at it. One is that since he has been trained to responsibility and self abnegation, it is possible he would be more unhappy than happy if he found himself wholly freed from family restraint. The other is that his long-denied hunger for a complete holiday from such ties must be satisfied if he is ever to settle down contentedly to the long haul of marriage. Were he to marry with this ambition unrealized, it might break out in disturbing revolt some five or ten years hence. His wife and marriage might become the innocent victims of his long-smoldering resentment against the earlier bondage.

• • • •

If he marries you, he must do so with the conviction that it was of his own free choice and maneuvering. For that reason, you should tell him you subscribe to his decision not to marry now; that you feel he has earned, and should have, a few years of freedom from family responsibility; and that being the case, you two must not continue, as you have the past year, being all-in-all to each other. If you can follow up this statement by going out frequently—by which I mean at more or less regular intervals—with other men, I daresay it won't be long until he is eagerly urging you to name the day; that is, of course, he cares for you as much as you believe. M. H.

Is Gift in Order?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been going steadily for the past few months with a young man who will soon graduate from law school. I feel that I would like to give him a gift of some sort, but I would like your advice in the matter. I see him several times a week, and he doesn't go with any other girl. Do you feel this establishes me as a sufficiently close friend to warrant the giving of a graduation gift?

• • • •

I would like to give something nice, and yet I do not want to choose something so expensive as to embarrass him. What would you suggest? I shall appreciate an early reply as I want to start looking around, if you think it's proper for me to give him a gift.
Gratefully. A. S. A.

DEAR A. S. A.: By all means give the young man a graduation gift, if you wish to. But be sure that it is fairly impersonal. You can't go wrong if you give him a book, or books. Some very weighty —and, from the legal point of view, very interesting—tomes which run into a considerable outlay of money, can be found in any good bookstore or book department. You might ask the book clerk's advice in picking some rare old volume having to do with the law; something not absolutely essential to the young man's education, but nice to have; or you might dig out a biography or an autobiography of some great legal luminary who made history in this or another country. The money one invests in good books is never an obvious outlay; and a good book is always an acceptable and enduring gift between the most impersonal of friends. M. H.

Bob Burns Says

Copyright, 1937.

By Bob Burns.

When two people go into any kind of partnership, at least one of 'em should know the business from havin' had actual experience in it.

The best example I ever saw of this was at the weddin' of my batchelor uncle. When they walked down the aisle, he was so nervous he could hardly stand up. But she didn't seem to mind it a bit because she had been through it so many times before. Half way down the aisle, the lights of the church went out and my uncle stopped in his tracks. His bride took hold of his hand and says "Come on, follow me—I know the route."

Kaplan to Copeland

H. Eliot Kaplan, executive secretary of the National Civil Service Reform League, has addressed to Senator Royal S. Copeland a letter:

"We have noted with particular interest Title XII—'Organization of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation'—of your bill, S. 1916, for the promotion of safety at sea.

"Part III, Section 1,206-7, would set up an examination system in the Department of Commerce, completely under the control of the Secretary of Commerce, both for employes to be transferred from positions to be abolished and for new appointees. This system would duplicate at every point that of the United States Civil Service Commission.

"We see no justification for the duplication of expense and effort which would result. We believe the Civil Service Commission is at least as able to acquire any needed expert services and special facilities for testing candidates for these positions as would be the director and Personnel Division of the Bureau.

"We appreciate that the employes of the bureau will be required to possess special and unusual qualifications, but this is true of many other groups of employes in other agencies for whom it has not been found necessary or desirable to set up separate departmental examination systems.

"We believe it would be ill-advised to require Presidential and Senatorial confirmation of the large number of appointees specified in Sections 1,203 and 1,207. May I call to your attention also the fact that one unfortunate effect of the provisions regarding present incumbents would be the existence of two classes of employes with different terms of employment and different rates of compensation, yet doing identical work.

"I hope you will be good enough to present our views to the Committee on Commerce, with a view to amendment of the sections affecting appointment of personnel, so as to provide for their appointment in accordance with the civil service rules."

The TVA announces, in recently published pamphlet, its available films and the conditions under which these are loaned. The available films are "TVA at Work," "Norris Dam Construction," "Electricity on the Farm," "Shell Mounds in the Tennessee Valley" and "Wheeler Reservoir Clearance." No rental charge is made for the films, but the exhibitor must pay express charges and obligate himself to get the films to the next indicated destination promptly and in good condition. No admission fee or any other fee may be charged when the films are exhibited and this rule, the officials say, is rigidly enforced.

Tonight the members of General Accounting Office Lodge, No. 8, meet in the Hamilton Hotel to discuss the G. A. O. lay-off situation. The lodge has presented three requests or recommendations in connection with the announced dismissals and a report on the results of the conference will be heard this evening.

The editor of "The Federal Employe" views the progress made toward extension of the merit system and expresses some of his feelings on the matter, as follows:

"The bland assumption on the part of some Federal employes that the merit system fight has been won is as dangerous as it is false. In point of fact, the merit system fight is still to be won and the road leading to the final goal is rocky indeed.

"A start has been made in the direction of building public opinion for the merit system. In this campaign the National Federation of Federal Employes has been the leader. This organization has recognized from the outset that the only way to beat the spoils system is by the force of public opinion. After years of concerted effort, press and public opinion has swung behind the merit plan.

"But victory for merit is yet to be gained. And the Federal employe who thinks that the final victory is going to be easy, or even that it is certain, is living in a fool's paradise. Only by keeping everlastingly at it are we going to make any important headway in this, the most important task which ever has confronted us."

Child Crime Is Arousing D. C. Leaders

Mrs. Martin Johnson to Aid Drive With Two Lectures.

Stirred by the fact that the report of the Crime Commission shows that out of 815 serious crimes handled in the lower courts of the District last year, 342 or over 40 per cent of the criminals were below the age of 17, the child welfare committee of the Council of Social Agencies is holding a meeting tomorrow at the Y. W. C. A. at 12:30 p. m. to push the survey which is being made of all child welfare agencies in the city.

Representatives of the Child Welfare League of America will be present to make a report on the survey and to explain its importance to all of the other agencies belonging to the council.

Announcement will also be made at the meeting of the two lectures which are to be given by Mrs. Martin Johnson on the "Jungle Depths of Borneo" at Constitution Hall on Friday, May 28, to help meet the costs of the survey.

Survey's Objective.

Mrs. Eugene Meyer, chairman of the Washington committee of the Child Welfare League of America, under whose auspices the survey is being made, said yesterday that the purpose of these benefit lectures was not only to give the citizens of Washington an opportunity to help defray the expenses of the survey but also to acquaint them with the fundamental importance of the objectives of such a survey.

"The citizens of Washington are becoming more and more aware of the fact that preventative work, especially amongst juveniles, is much more important as a deterrent to crime tha nspeeds punishment after the fact. The percentage of juveniles committing serious crimes in Washington is unusually high, and the startling fact that three boys, age 16 and 17, were apprehended last week with an automobile filled with guns and other implements of crime is only too typical of our city.

Model Sought.

"It is high time that the Capital should become a model to the Nation in its welfare work, especially for children, and at present the agencies themselves realize acutely that they are not meeting their problems adequately. For this reason the agencies themselves have asked for this investigation in order that the work may be better coordinated and be brought up to date in its methods. At present there is much overlapping of effort while certain important phases of child welfare are almost completely overlooked or inadequately met.

"At the same time there are certain important functions which are being taken over by the Social Security Board. The agencies with which this board is bound to conflict should not go out of existence, but should be helped to take up some of the branches of child welfare work which are now being overlooked.

Wide Picture Needed.

"In my opinion, nothing more important can be done to reduce crime and delinquency than to give our boys and girls an opportunity to start their lives in a healthy normal surrounding. Even those agencies which are now doing excellent work in their field will become more effective and more helpful to the work as a whole if we get a clear picture of the entire child welfare situation. Such an inclusive picture of the entire field can only be gained through the survey which is now being made for the council with the help of the highly trained staff of the Child Welfare League of America.

"We hope that the public and private schools of Washington will encourage children to attend Mrs. Johnson's afternoon lecture. Admission is as low as 35 cents and Mrs. Johnson's motion pictures, made with her late husband on their last adventurous trip through the jungle of Borneo, are not only exciting but very instructive. At the same time the children would hear something of the efforts being made to help other youngsters less fortunate than they."

Tickets for the lecture can be secured by mailing orders to Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, treasurer, 1337 E street northwest, telephone number, National 4200; or from the T. Arthur Smith Concert Bureau, 910 G street northwest.

National Parks Lecture To Be Given by Yeager

"The Popular Interpretation of the Story of the National Parks in the West" will be the subject of an illustrated lecture to be given Wednesday, at 8 p. m., by Dorr Yeager, assistant chief of the museum division of the National Park Service.

The lecture will be given in the auditorium of the new building of the Department of the Interior, Eighteenth and C streets. The public has been invited to attend this free presentation.

Ringling's Big 'Cannon Man' Also an Artist, Bird Lover

In 14 Years He Has Popped Out of Gun 7,000 Times.

Prof. Hugh Zacchini, head of the ornithology department at the University of Tampa and founder of the "Center of Art and Nature," a Florida aviary, will be shot out of a cannon a half dozen times here within the next three days as a feature of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey Circus.

Towed into the office of The Washington Post yesterday by a bulky press agent, Prof. Zacchini, a voluble, Peru-born Italian, sadly admitted that he was known in this country only as "the cannon man."

Abroad, it seems, he is recognized for other less sensational accomplishments. That's why the professor is bending all his efforts toward recognition as an ornithologist and as an artist.

Painting Exhibited.

A note of pathos crept into the interview.

"When I paint, when I study birds and biology," the professor declared, "then I forget I am the cannon man."

This statement provoked an inquiry. How many times had the professor been shot out of a cannon?

According to his rough estimate, he answered, he had been exploded into space some 6,000 or 7,000 times during the past 14 years.

It was all his father's idea, the cannon. His father, an Italion artist, had found his portrait-painting business in a bad way when photographers became the thing in Peru, where he had settled as a young man. With the brood of Zacchini brothers rapidly increasing to their present number, seven, he decided to go into show business.

Technical Business.

The Zacchini's toured South America for years. The elder children returned one by one to Italy to study engineering. Their degrees taken, they rejoined the show.

The famous Zacchini cannon, devised through the brothers' enginering knowledge, first sent Hugo hurling through the air in Egypt in 1923. It wasn't long before the troupe came to the States. Now two of the brothers, Hugo and Mario, let themselves be shot out in a dual flight while brother Bruno stays behind to man the apparatus.

The professor will let no one, but Mario soar with him.

"Thousands want to go into the cannon with me," he asserted. Big people. Society. That is ridiculous, annoying. Positive."

Repeating that his cannon reputation "concerns nothing of my own ability," the professor said that last year in Florida he had "discovered 22 new systems of art," his true love. This provoked a long technical discussion with his press agent, also a man with keen artistic perceptions.

Then the question of the "Center of Art and Nature" had to be threshed out. It appeared that the center is now an aviary where 500 rare birds fly about in fairly naturl surroundings. Later, however, a building is to be constructed to house treasures of "the seven arts."

When Zacchini isn't painting or working in his aviary he lectures, he says, at the University of Tampa.

While he admits that in his flight from the cannon muzzle he can change direction slightly," depending how I swim," the professor denies that there is any connection between his interest in birds and in cannoneering.

"I never think, 'Bird fly, I fly,'" he asserted stoutly.

Dr. W. D. Bowman To Take Pulpit Of His Brother

Announcement was made yesterday morning at the Washington City Church of the Brethen, Fourth street and North Carolina avenue, southeast, that Dr. Warren D. Bowman, of Huntingdon, Pa., will succeed his brother, the Rev. Rufus D. Bowman, as pastor of the church.

The present pastor will close his work about September 1, to become the president of the Bethany Biblical Seminary, Chicago. His three years in the city has brought about a very healthy growth in the membership of the congregation.

The newly called pastor has been a member of the faculty of Juniata College, at Huntingdon since 1930, occupying the position of dean of men and professor of psychology. Last summer while his brother was absent attending the International Sunday School Convention at Oslo, Sweden, he took care of the pastoral duties here.

Women's Army Arrives to Seek 3 Billion WPA

To Be Welcomed Today at Capitol by Friendly Congressmen.

By the United Press.

A "women's brigade" representing thousands of families that depend on WPA wages for a living gathered here last night to battle for a $3,000,000,000 work relief appropriation in the face of the Congressional economy drive.

Organized by the Workers Alliance of America as an avowed mass lobby to put pressure on Congress for expansion of the relief program, the delegation planned to besiege the Capitol until action on the relief bill is completed.

Approximately 50 delegates from six States had arrived for the campaign last night. Leaders expected at least 25 more by this morning when the brigade will be welcomed by friendly Congressmen in a ceremony on the Capitol steps.

Plan Interviews.

The women plan to spend their mornings for the next fortnight interviewing individual Congressmen, and their afternoons sitting in the House and Senate galleries as "mute reminders" of their appeals.

They will seek support for a bill sponsored by a group of liberal Congressmen calling for $3,000,000,000 relief funds during the next fiscal year, to provide WPA jobs for 3,000,000 persons at wages 20 per cent higher than present levels.

The Administration bill for $1,500,000,000, favorably reported by the House Appropriations Committee after an economy-minded subcommittee voted to trim it to $1,000,000,000 is scheduled for House action this week.

Leaders of the women brigaders said they planned to emphasize to their Congressmen the difficulty in keeping their families from starvation on present WPA wages, and the plight of other needy persons shut off from relief entirely. Most of the delegates are wives of WPA workers and others are widows or single women on the WPA rolls.

"To Sit Quietly."

"They will tell the Congressmen personally about the situation back home and then sit quietly in the galleries as mute reminders of their needs," said Miss Ida Cook, secretary of a local supporting committee for the brigade. "The campaign will go on in this fashion until the matter is settled by Congress."

Ray Cook, national secretary of the Workers Alliance, said the demonstration was considered necessary to "open the eyes of Congress to the need for expanding rather than cutting down the relief program."

During the week, the delegates will attempt to arrange interviews with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and with WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

Md. Woman Near Death From Shots

Mrs. Paul Hagenbuch, 40, wife of a draftsman in the Navy Department, was near death in Casualty Hospital last night with two bullet wounds in the region of her heart.

She was found in a wooded section near her home on Welles road in Edmonston, Md., Saturday night by Hyattsville police after Hagenbuch had returned from work and discovered her absent. Police said she had been shot twice with a .32-caliber pistol.

Neighbors told police they heard shots about 5 p. m. Saturday. Mrs. Hagenbuch has been in ill-health for about a year.

Union Move Hits Circus At D. C. Lot

Midst the gibbering of babboons and the whinnying (or do they whinny?) of elephants, the labor movement struck the most romantic of all industries here yesterday.

Roustabouts and the ladies on the flying trapeze were discussing unionization of the employes of the giant Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows, Inc., circus when it hove into town yesterday for a three-day sojourn on the lot at the corner of Fifth street and Florida avenue northeast.

"I'm going to put the 1,600 employes on the scale that prevailed in 1931 before John Ringling cut 'em," announced Sam W. Gumpertz, general manager, at a press conference in the lee of the yellow ticket wagon.

"I'm for the union, absolutely," he said. "It will settle their minds. Instead of having to deal with all departments, I'll only have to deal with one. Besides, business is big. Conditions warrant an increase in pay."

Started in Brooklyn.

The labor "uprising" started in Brooklyn last week, where a mass meeting was held, and there were speeches advocating affiliation with the Federation of Actors. Some of the members in the "bull gang," which is comprised of stake-drivers, tent-raisers, etc., were reported to be dissatisfied with their pay, which they said was $8 a week, and were threatening to do something about it when the show arrived in Washington.

However, according to Gumpertz, he has reached an agreement with Ralph Whitehead, secretary of the actor's federation, which will go into effect in Philadelphia next week—"maybe," he added.

Gumpertz explained that the "muscle" men in the bull gang have a basic pay of $8 a week, get room and board worth $7 a week, and receive a bonus of $10 a month. He said he was unfamiliar with the wage scale before "Mr. John" effected a cut in 1931, but would "look it up in the morning." He is to confer with Whitehead tomorrow.

Thousands of citizens wandered about the lot yesterday looking at gnus who now ride on pneumatic tires, at a giraffe named Andy which had an appetite for straw hats, and at a leopard, arms folded, licking its chops whenever a child ambled by.

Scene Is Busy One.

Elephants trundled in Florida avenue, their fuzzy backs carefully sprinkled with cinders from the Eckington yards. "They do it to keep flies off." Dappled Percherons Rosa Bon Hur would have given her soul to paint, tugged rumbling red wagons through the market district, the sledge hammers rang on tent stakes, the ice cream man slung cones about like a wheat planter, hawkers hawked, and the big top went up as efficiently as an umbrella.

As usual, the show has "innumerable marvels never seen before in America," including some middle-aged Pygmy elephants, the Great Aloys, who dives from the top of the tent into a hangman's noose, Mlle. Maria Rasputin, daughter of the "Mad Monk" (no disputin'), and many other unbelievable and incomparable acts from over the Seven Seas. Step right this way . . . ladies and gentlemen.

Max B. Baldenburg Ends 37 Years; Farewell Party Is Given.

After 37 years of Government service, Max B. Baldenburg was retired Saturday from the Eastern region of the Forest Service.

Baldenburg first entered the Forest Service from the Treasury Department July 23, 1910. His first assignment was at Ogden, Utah. From this post he enlisted in the Tenth Engineers, a Forest Regiment, on September 1, 1917, for the duration of the war.

On November 4 Baldenburg returned to civilian status and his duties at Ogden. Shortly thereafter he was transferred to the Office of Accounts, United States Forest Service, and has been a resident of Washington since.

On July 1, 1928, Baldenburg was made regional auditor for the Eastern region of the service, also with headquarters in Washington. He had served in that capacity for the last nine years.

Fellow employes of the Eastern region gathered at the home of Leslie T. Mahurin, regional fiscal agent, 6802 Forty-fourth street northwest, yesterday afternoon for a farewell party. Baldenburg was presented with a walking stick and a binocular as mementos from those who had worked with him in recent years.

10,000 Youths, Traffic Patrols, To Visit Capital

Group to Be Welcomed by Congressmen Friday; Will Parade.

Ten thousand youthful sentinels of safety from outposts of traffic dangers at city corners and rural crossroads in 20 States—A. A. A. school safety patrols—will converge on the National Capital Friday and Saturday for the country's outstanding safety demonstration and parade of youth.

Acting as representatives of some 250,000 boys and girls who daily safeguard 7,000,000 schoolmates in 3,000 widely scattered communities, the youngsters will come to Washington under the auspices of the American Automobile Association, which sponsors the patrols in cooperation with A. A. A. motor clubs and local police and school authorities.

"Organized more than 15 years ago, when the number of motor fatalities involving children in the 5-to-14-age group was one of the most serious aspects of the traffic problem," said Thomas P. Henry, of Detroit, president of the A. A. A. "The school safety patrols have to their credit an almost continuous downward trend in traffic deaths for this age group. For example, children under 15 had 200 less motor fatalities in 1935 than in 1934, as compared with an increase of 1,100 in the age groups over 15."

With the parade less than a week away and youngsters throughout the East polishing their patrol badges and getting ready for the big event, the A. A. A. announces that all arrangements for the two-day gathering have been completed. The young visitors will come to the Capital by rail, bus, water and in private automobiles.

"Official greetings," which were extended last year by President Roosevelt on the White House lawn, will this year come from the Congress. Vice President Garner, Speaker of the House Bankhead and Senators and Representatives from the States sending patrol delegations, will greet the visitors on the steps of the United States Capitol at 4:30 p. m., Friday. Amplifiers will carry the words of the Congressional dignitaries to the thousands of youngsters in what promises to be one of the largest gatherings in the history of the school patrol movement.

Shot Cleaning Pistol.

Irving Holober, 25, of 3168 Eighteenth street northwest, was cleaning an "unloaded" pistol in his bedroom yesterday. It discharged, and the bullet penetrated Holober's leg. He was taken to Emergency Hospital.

600 Attend Dry Rally; Oppose Relaxing Laws

Guyer and Howard Talk; Liquor Near Schools, Churches Assailed.

Six hundred persons last night attended a rally of the United Dry Forces of the District at the Metropolitan Baptist Church and expressed "unrelenting hostility" against any attempts to break down restrictions prohibiting the sale of alcoholics within 400 feet of schools or churches.

A speaker was Representative U. S. Guyer, of Kansas, who urged a return of bone-dry prohibition for the District.

Messages were read from Senator Arthur Capper and other members of both Houses of Congress indorsing the Guyer bill to make the District dry.

Aggressive militancy was urged by Clinton N. Howard, "the Little Giant of Reform," in a talk on "The Battle Against the Bottle."

The following resolution in regard to sale of liquor near schools and churches was adopted:

"We earnestly protest any weakening changes in the present local regulations and we especially desire to go on record as emphatically objecting to the proposal to permit liquor-selling establishments to be located within 400 feet of any church or school in the District of Columbia."

State Officers Will Speak at Labor Parley

O'Conor and Sasscer to Talk; Sessions to Last 3 Days.

By the Associated Press.

Hagerstown, Md., May 16.—Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor and Lansdale G. Sasscer, president of the Maryland Senate, are scheduled to address the opening session of the thirty-second annual convention of the Maryland-District of Columbia Federation of Labor, which convenes here tomorrow for three days.

Two hundred delegates representing 140 locals in Maryland and the District of Columbia are expected for the opening session tomorrow morning. Mayor W. Lee Elgin will deliver the address of welcome.

Ten unions which formerly had been affiliated with the Labor Federation, but which later joined the Committee for Industrial Organization, will not be seated, President Joseph McCurdy announced.

They are: United Mine Workers, Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Oil, Field, Gas and Refinery Workers, International Union of Garment Workers, United Textile Workers, Federatoin of Flat Glass Workers, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, International Union of United Auto Workers and United Rubber.

McCurdy said the convention would be purely an American Federation of Labor meeting and that he expected no difficulty with the C. I. O.

Officers will be nominated Tuesday and the election will be held on Wednesday. President William L. Green is expected for the closing session.

McCurdy said he would be a candidate to succeed himself.

States' Trees Planted On Memorial Parkway

Trees, each representing a State, are now being planted along George Washington Memorial Parkway under the upervision of C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, according to an announcement made yesterday by the United States Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission.

Also, it was learned, a portion of parkway is being reserved for trees from the thirteen original States.

'Lost Horizon' Holds Interest As 'Road Show'

It is the story of a much-coveted and completely idealistic Utopia that is revealed in Frank Capra's picturization of James Hilton's novel of "Lost Horizon," which was publicly presented for the first time in Washington last night on the screen of the National Theater as a "road show" attraction—a fanciful tale rich in a sound philosophy of life, beautiful in many of its settings and finely acted during the greater portion of its length. It is not, however, the chimerical "perfect picture."

In its closing sequences it offers a superabundance of snowslides, avalanches and those bizarre touches of Nature in rebellion such as characterized the later plot movements of the film version of R. Rider Haggard's "She," in which Helen Gahagan attained a sudden and appalling old age after having lived centuries in the guise of a beautiful young woman.

Starts Slowly.

A little slow in getting under way, the dramatic narrative that Robert Riskin has fashioned upon the groundwork of the Hilton novel, deals with Robert Conway, adventurer and diplomat; his brother and a party, attempting escape from Baskul, where revolution is going on, their kidnaping by plane and eventual landing in a remote valley in the Tibetan Himalayas.

Here they encounter all manner of impediments to their reutrn to "civilization," but in the process are made the beneficiaries of a profoundly impressive doctrine of the science of kindly living.

There is romance in the tale in three-fold measure. Isabel Jewell, who seems to fall in love with the former plumber who has become a business tycoon; Jane Wyatt, through whose cunning instrumentality the "kidnaping" was engineered, who feels a deep concern for Conway and the futility of his active, but aimless life, and Margo, cast as the "old woman" who does not reveal her age until taken out of the valley in the attempted escape, but becomes much enamored of George Conway, Robert's impetuous and misunderstanding younger brother, all contribute to the "love interest" of a picture that has been produced by Columbia on a gradiose scale, directed with skill through the greater part of its length and photographed with consummate atristry.

Some "Library" Shots.

One suspects that some of the "shots" of the Himalayas are culled from the studio library, but they are nevertheless immensely effective for their sheer scenic ruggedness and grandeur, lending the film a seeming authenticity that adds a needed realistic touch to its fantastic recital.

Ronald Colman, as usual, plays with utmost repression and fine effect. His Robert Conway is a believable and interesting character, up to the last few minutes of the action, when, in the view of this reporter, the entire procedure goes a trifle gortesque. Jane Wyatt, in the opposite role, has not a great deal to do, but does that little charmingly and well John Howard and Thomas Mitchell, as the junior Conway and the senior plumber, both turn in performances that are able and convincing.

Two character roles that stand out particularly in the story are those by Chang, one of the chief disciples of the High Lama in the placid village of Shangri-La, by H. B. Warner, and Sam Jaffe, who plays the role of the patriarchal Lama. These two disclose all of the skill in delineation that might be expected of two such veteran actors, with such fine records behind them.

Horton Still Comedian.

Edward Everett Horton is intrusted with another comedy role that he does with his accustomed finesse and Margo, in brief scenes, demonstrates again that she is a young actress with a fine flair for the more serious things of the theater.

There are no supplementary attractions on the bill this week. "Lost Horizon" is of sufficient length and substance to supply an entire evening's entertainment. It will be presented twice daily—at 2:30 and 8:30 p. m.—during its engagement at the National with all seats reserved.

I suggest that this subject will appeal more strongly to those with an inclination toward the imaginative than to the strict adherents of a rigid realism. Whatever one's natural bent, there can be no gainsaying that "Lost Horizon" is of "road show" dimensions, cast and visual magnitude.

Little

"DAVID COPPERFIELD." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the novel by Charles Dickens, adapted to the screen by Hugh Walpole, featuring Freddie Bartholomew, W. C. Fields, Lionel Barrymore, Maureen O'Sullivan, Madge Evans, Edna May Oliver, Lewis Stone, Frank Lawton, Elizabeth Allan, Roland Young, Basil Rathbone, Jessie Ralph, Violet Kemble-Cooper, Una O'Connor and a long list of other stars.

That incomparably fine picturization of Charles Dickens' story of "David Copperfield" is happily brought back to the screen of the Little Theater this week.

In this superbly executed subject, Master Freddie Bartholomew is the junior David and Frank Lawton the more adult. They are surrounded by a cast of screen luminaries who could not fail to make any picture great.

The Hugh Walpole adaptation to the cinema of the novel by Dickens is such as to engage the interest of any student of literature or the drama. It encompasses, and with remarkable fidelity, practically the full scope of the book—which is a major task in any man's language.

Especially effective performances are contributed to this work by Master Bartholomew, W. C. Fields, Edna May Oliver, Roland Young, Lionel Barrymore and Madge Evans. There are so many more in the cast that there is no room to recite all of their names here.

Short-reel screen features and newsreel supplement a major feature that can stand viewing time and time again.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

MAURICE EVANS, first seen as Romeo to Katharine Cornell's Juliet in Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" in the National Theater, and later as Napoleon in "St. Helena," last week was signally honored. Mr. Evans' engagement on Broadway in "King Richard II" has been one of the outstanding successes of the current season of living drama in New York. In recognition of this fact, the British actor was awarded the annual medal bestowed by the Drama League of New York for the most distinguished performance of the year.

BELL.

The presentation was made by Daniel Frohman, dean of the American theater, at a luncheon at the Hotel Pierre. Mr. Evans won the award by a handsome plurality, his vote exceeding that of his nearest competitor, John Gielgud, who made a tremendous impression by the unusual quality of his interpretation of the role of Hamlet, by over 200 ballots. A total of approximately 600 votes was cast.

The prize was won for the first time two years ago by Katharine Cornell and last year by Washington's own Helen Hayes, for the excellence of her portrayal in "Victoria Regina."

In accepting the prize, Mr. Evans said: "I am going back to England next month for a vacation. When I'm met by my mother at Southampton her amazement at my having received a medal will equal my present gratitude, because I never have won a prize before."

When "Richard II" recesses for the summer after the performance at the St. James Theater, New York, on Saturday night, May 29, it will have played 133 performances, the third longest run ever achieved by a Shakespearean play in Gotham. The run of the play at the St. James will be resumed for a brief four weeks, beginning September 15.

After this Manhattan revival, "Richard II" will start on a Nation-wide tour, during which all the important cities of the United States and Canada will be visited. The tour is expected to last until the middle of next May. The cast will remain intact for this transcontinental junket—Ian Keith, as Bolingbroke; Augustin Duncan, as John of Gaunt, and Olive Deering, as Richard's queen.

So Old Benny Davis bobs up again with a new song. I am led to this belief by the westernunion which I have just received, reading as follows: "Dear Nelson —Have just written a new song, 'Is This Gonna Be My Lucky Summer?' which I will introduce on Gus Arnheim's program Sunday night, May 23, from the Hotel New Yorker. BENNY DAVIS."

Since Benny is one of the most prolific of the country's composers of popular hits—"Margy," Make Believe" and a telephone directory full of others—it will be interesting to hear what his latest is like. It probably will be a jingly thing that you will be able to whistle and for that reason you may wish to listen in, too—and a tip of the hat and scraping of the knee to Mr. Heiney for having barged in on him like this.

The week-end brought two distinguished showmen to the National Capital.

One was Leonard Bergman, executive administrator of the late Abe L. Erlanger estate, which controls the National Theater in this city; the other Joseph Plunkett, formerly in charge of RKO-Keith Theater operations and long before that managing director of the Strand Theater in New York, when and where this typewriter was accustomed to "chisel" numerous "skulls" from him for the effulgent shows he was accustomed to put on in the then foremost picture house on Broadway.

Something of "Lost Horizon" will be found in another column of this morning's issue of The Post.

Well, it seems that Ray Bell—no relation—and his charming wife, Virginia, have reached Paris on that fabulous European tour won by Mr. Bell for the excellence of his exploitation of "The Garden of Allah" on behalf of the Loew Theaters in Washington. There comes to hand a tricky postage card, with Ray and "Butch" hanging in semisuspension from opposite sides of the Eiffel Tower, inscribed with a query as to whether the "new act" might be worth a week at the Capitol. If they can do it again, I feel that it might be.

Guthrie McClintic returned from his brief visit to Ireland and England last week. In Dublin he witnessed one of the most famous of present-day murder trials, the Boyle County trial, in order to study Irish court procedure for the staging of Ernest Toller and Denis Johnson's "Blind Man's Buff," which he will produce in America next fall.

In Manchester, he saw Emlyn William's new play, "He Was Born Gay," in which John Gielgud is appearing. The audience, he reports, was almost hysterical in its greeting of the young English actor, who recently returned to his native land after his triumphant engagement on this side in "Hamlet."

Washington's popular excursion steamer—and the name may have something to do with it—The City of Washington, got off to a nice start last Thursday night. A near-capacity crowd was carried on the initial cruise under the sponsorship of the Washington Junior Board of Commerce. Many unusual features were presented during the initial cruise of the season and first honors were won by the Junior Board Glee Club. The City of Washington makes two trips daily to Mount Vernon, at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., and moonlight dancing excursions are made down the river nightly at 8:30. Music is furnished for dancing by a Sidney orchestra, under the conductorship of Sammy Marks. Marshall Hall Park will open on May 29 with a "Rodeo" and all-day "Round-Up," under the auspices of the Oklahoma State Society. Vice President Garner will be generalissimo for the day.

The acute restrictions of space that sometimes occur in the makeup of a newspaper occasioned the omission last Saturday morning of any mention of "The March of Time" as an important feature of the bill at RKO-Keith's Theater. This subject has been added to the allurements of "Shall We Dance?" the new musical in which the stellar roles are played by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.

"The March of Time," as usual, is executed in a manner that will serve to solidify its position as the foremost of the documentary films being produced in the United States.

Rialto

"BE MINE TONIGHT." Gaumont-British production released by Universal, based on a story by I. V. Cube and A. Joseph, adapted to the screen by John Orton, starring Jan Kiepura, with Sonnie Hale, Edmund Gwenn and Magda Schneider. Directed by Anton Litvak. "IT'S A GIFT." Paramount picturization of a story by Charles Bogle and J. P. McEvoy, adapted to the screen by Jack Cunningham, starring W. C. Fields, with Baby LeRoy, Kathleen Howard, T. Roy Barnes, Tammany Young, Morgan Wallace, Charles Sellon, Del Henderson and Spencer Charters.

The double bill at the Rialto Theater this week offers a wide diversity of screen entertainment with music as the basis of its major attraction and comedy as that of the secondary.

In "Be Mine Tonight," Jan Kiepura discloses perhaps better than in any other film he ever made the fine operatic quality of his voice. His song numbers, however, are not rigidly operatic. They range a considerable field. The scenic backgrounds against which he sings these lyrical additions to a romantic story reflect all of the beauty of the high Alps.

In the supporting cast are Sonnie Hale, noted English comedian and husband of Jessie Matthews; Marie Schneider, Edmund Gwenn, that admirable actor who made such a hit on this side in J. B. Priestley's "Laburnum Grove;" Betty Chester and Aubrey Mather.

On the other side of the ledger—although not by any means "in the red,"—is W. C. Fields in "It's a Gift," a picturized story which he wrote himself under the nom de plume of "Charles Bogle." In this agile subject, the star is supported by Baby LeRoy, who has a peculiar penchant for tweaking the Fieldian nose, and a long list of other comic players whose names, for the most part, will be found at the head of these remarks.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, May 17.—Idol chatter: Kay Francis's mother (she was an actress, too) advised Kay against the stage because she believed her daughter too tall. Just-to-be-safe idea: Jean Harlow sends herself gifts on her birthday and Christmas. That is not gum, but old-fashioned licorice Dick Powell chews. Does it seem wasteful that Adolphe Menjou pays $35 a pair for shoes? Critic's comment I never expect to read: "Ned Sparke's boyish grin enlivens the picture."

HARLOW.

Mae West rarely meets strangers without advance notice because she likes to primp for them. Ninth wonder of the world: Johnny Weissmuller with a haircut. It is scarcely known that Warner Baxter was one of radio's first crooners. Candidate for trimmest figure in tailored suit: Marsha Hunt. To guard against forgery, June Travis signs checks with both hands (one name with each). John Miljan, uncertain of his birthday, annually celebrates the three most likely dates.

Joan Crawford fears high perches; a peek from New York's RCA Building once gave her nightmares for a week. Tongue-twister name, Igor Gorin. And does the name of June Gale make you dream of soft summer breezes? Hollywood seems drab without Tom Mix, in his purple tuxedo, leaping over rows of seats at the opera. If Nelson Eddy's hair were shades lighter, he and Gene Raymond might pass for brothers. Impressionistic drawing of Jean Hersholt: The mild-mannered little man who blows the bass tuba in the town band.

I am surprised this story did not get around, but I do not recall reading or hearing it. Paramount studio adjoins a cemetery on one side. One day an outdoor-shooting unit was disturbed by the constant tolling of funeral bells. Microphones picked up the sound, so filming of scenes was impossible. This continued so long that an assistant director was sent to investigate.

He learned that the bells were being rung at the last request of a deceased actor who had struggled for years to get a break in the studios. On his deathbed, he had ordered the tolling continue one full day, so that someone in Hollywood might inquire and remember his name. An actor's final touch of irony.

When Freddie Bartholomew returned to his set from lunch yesterday noon, he was carrying a bag of candy—the sort of hard candy dear to the hearts of boys. Awaiting him was head man Louis B. Mayer with a party of friends. Introductions done with, there was nothing for Freddie to do but offer his candy.

Each person accepted a piece, because no one wanted to offend the young star. When the bag had made the rounds, it was empty. As the guests departed, Bartholomew gazed at the bag ruefully. "Well," he muttered, with a shrug, "there's another nickel shot."

Gayety

"BROWN SKIN MODELS," an Irvin C. Miller attraction, starring the Hardy Brothers Swing Band, supported by Jessie James, Brown Brothers, Georgia Rice, Marcus Hall, Monta Holly, Beals and Cade, Tanya, Blanche Thompson, Alto Oates, Bessie Pierce and the "Heat Wave Rhythm Girls." Staged by Irvin C. Miller. Reviewed Sunday matinee by Art John. (B. C. A. A.)

This week marks the closing of the Gayety Theater and one of the most successful seasons enjoyed by the good Col. Lake. In bringing down his final curtain, the genial James has brought to his house one of the fastest, funniest and smoothest revues we've seen this year. The talent is sepian and they offer all that is truly the spirit of Harlem.

From the grand opening to the lavish finale, the production is one that proves enjoyable in every detail. Laughs there are, and plenty, too; dancing and singing that will keep you on the edge of your seat; wardrobe and colorful settings that equal anything we've seen on this stage. Summed up, probably the most entertaining extravaganza that has been seen on Ninth street in the past decade.

To begin with, the swing tunes of the Hardy Brothers lend an air of real Lenox avenue atmosphere to the show, and their musical arrangements are, in every respect, complete in their purpose. Among their most pleasant renditions are such nifties as "Organ Grinder's Swing," "Trust in Me" and "When Did You Leave Heaven."

One of the most clever acts your reviewer has ever seen is presented by Jessie James. Although a misfortune of nature has taken away the use of one limb, James comes through with a tap dancing routine on crutches that was no less than brilliant. In fact, his number stopped the performances and was deserving of the demonstration that greeted his effort.

Two dark-skinned boys, Seals and Cade by name, are given the comedy roles, and needless to say furnish laughs aplenty. What seems more remarkable is that the lines were presented without relying on smut and questionable humor.

Blanche Thompson, a Mae West type of singer, offers several original songs that were sung in such manner as only these sepia girls can assume. Tanya, whose acrobatic dancing is little short of sensational, stands out among the female artists on the bill.

Contract Bridge

A Gambling Pass.

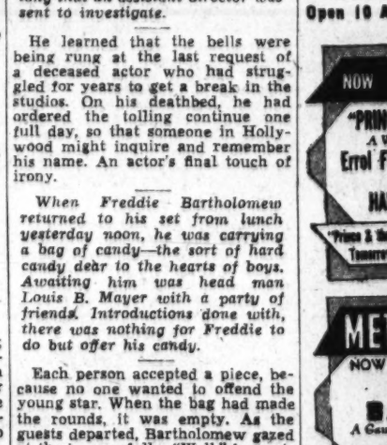
Paradoxically, perhaps, there are times when to pass is highly aggressive, and to bid, conservative. This statement may cause a certain amount of incredulity, but I assure you it is quite true. Consider today's hand.

North, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.



The bidding:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ◇ | 4 ♡ | 5 ◇ | 5 ♡ |
| Dbl. | Pass | Pass | Pass |

When South passed to his partner's double of five hearts he was gambling "all over the lot." What actually influenced him to leave in the double was the presence of a singleton spade. He hoped that this would strike the Ace in partner's hand and result in a ruff.

I will not say that the chance for this was remote. For the sake of argument, I will even concede that there was a good chance of this happy outcome. But even so, I most vigorously criticize South's utter dependence on this one hope.

If the singleton lead worked out well, he would probably defeat the vulnerable opponents 200 points; if it did not, they would probably walk off with game and rubber, worth in the neighborhood of 1,000 points. Surely then it would have been more conservative to have taken out the double than to have left it in. South could be fairly sure that a six diamond bid, not vulnerable, could not be severely hurt. His distribution alone guaranteed this. Hence, this pass, as I said in my opening sentence, was a highly aggressive one, whereas a bid would have been properly conservative.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, May 16.

FEATURE STORY: An unusual make-up is being used this week to cover the upper lip of Reggie Gardiner, who portrays Hamlet in "The Show Is On" . . . The reason therefor concerns the instructions Gardiner just received from Hollywood in preparation for his new film . . . The make-up really is a covering, for otherwise the American theater this week would boast of a Hamlet—with a mustache!

* * * *

OBITUARY DEPARTMENT: Gov. Hofman of New Jersey offered free interment, in a Bernardsville, N. J., memorial park—to all the Hindenburg victims . . . The Nazis still aren't aware—that this cemetery is owned by non-Aryans.

* * * *

MUSIC DEPARTMENT: The Cabots and Lodges, who attended the premiere of "Sea Legs" in Boston this week, still are very much confused over the lines sung by the chorines in the opening number. The lines are: "Take a pantum on the beatum with a sourin, Yourum kouras on a week-end cruise . . . And an eppis in the glacen, when you're mooring in the scracen—o'er the week-end news" . . . The speakers-to-God couldn't recognize this simple Broadway double-talk.

* * * *

* * * *

FINANCE DEPARTMENT: Greta Palmer saw a stack of letters on Alexander Woollcott's desk, and asked what they were. "Fan letters," the Town Crier informed. "I get heaps of them—and you'd be amazed at how many of them send requests for autographed pictures, but I don't send any" . . . "Then what do you do?" Mrs. Palmer asked . . . "Nothing," Woollcott replied, "except keep the stamps!"

* * * *

LETTERS DEPARTMENT: George Abbott's newest production, "Room Service," opened in Baltimore. Sam Levene, who is appearing in that play, received an opening-night telegram for Larry Hart and Dick Rogers, reading: "Dear Sam, we hope you are a big success in this play—even if you did blow up the Hindenburg!"

* * * *

ASTROLOGY DEPARTMENT: Alva Johnston, in his "The Great Goldwyn," hasn't as yet told how and why Goldwyn selected his name. When the producer made his office with Arch Selwyn, it was Sam Goldfish's custom to spend some hours each day at his club . . . One afternoon he instructed the attendant there that if anybody phones him, to say that he's taking a dip. When the phone rang, the attendant obeyed instructions. "I'm sorry, sir," he announced in a clear voice, "—Goldfish is in the pool" . . . Sam rushed back to the Selwyn office, sliced the last three letters from his colleague's name, and substituted them for the "fish."

* * * *

ART DEPARTMENT: Adolphe Barreaux, the artist, was approached by a cafe songstress who asked what he would charge for doing an oil painting of her. When he named his price, the lady shook her head, and pleaded: "Can't you take something off that?" . . . "Sure," Barreaux agreed, "I'll take as much off the bill as you take off when you pose" . . . "Oh, thank you," she replied, "I think it's so sweet of you—to do it for nothing."

* * * *

LOCAL NEWS: Local 802 of the Musicians Union is preparing to fight the wired-music companies which furnish music to restaurants . . . Theodore Dreiser, who spent $175,000 for his Mount Kisco hme, is placing it on the market for $50,000 . . . Douglas Fairbanks was anxious to produce "Marco Polo," the new Gary Cooper picture, for United Artists. Sam Goldywn, however, took the job himself when Fairbanks wanted to do the filming in China . . . Col. O'Donnell, now retired, who was an official at West Point, is auditioning for a role in the military school play, "Brother Rat"!

* * * *

* * * *

SOCIAL NOTES: Joe Lewis visited El Morocco, and was seated near the bluebloods there . . . A portly dowager, on her way to the dance floor, accidentally elbowed the drink from Joe's hand, and also stepped on his toe—without stopping to apologize . . . "Forget it, Joe," his companion advised. "Y'know—that woman is a member of the 400" . . . I don't believe it," Lewis insisted. "She can't count that much."

Red Ruffing Beats A's in 1937 Debut

Henrich Drives in 4 Runs With Homer, Triple, Single.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 16.—Before the largest Shibe Park crowd since the World Series days of 1929, '30 and '31—38,728 fans—the world champion Yankees took their second consecutive game from the Athletics today, 8 to 4, and with the American League lead.

Baffled by the slants of Red Ruffing, making his first start of the season after a long holdout, the Mackmen saw George Caster pummeled by a barrage of extra-base hits in the late innings as the Yanks' big guns hammered them out of first place.

Young Tom Henrich drove in four runs for New York, collecting a home run, a triple and single to lead the attack on Caster, star rookie.

Ruffing held the A's to seven hits, but was relieved by John Murphy in the ninth after the first two Philadelphia batters hit safely. Among the seven Philadelphia hits was a homer by Bill Cissell.

Single runs by the A's in each of the first two innings gave the big crowd a treat, and it looked like a big day for Caster who allowed only one hit in the first three innings.

But an error by Newsome paved the way for two runs in the fourth, and in the sixth the Yanks laid it on. Henrich got his home run, DiMaggio hit a double, Selkirk a single and Bill Dickey a triple with the net result of three runs.

Herman Hero, Tigers Defeat Browns by 5-4

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, May 16.—The Tigers and the Browns got ten hits apiece today, but Detroit bunched theirs more effectively and took the final game of the series, 5 to 4, behind Roxy Lawson.

Babe Herman was stationed in left field in place of Goose Goslin, and proved the hero. He hit safely twice, getting a double and scoring the Tiger's counter in the fourth, and in the sixth his single drove in Gerald Walker with the winning run. In addition he stole two bases.

Randle Horses Win In New Jersey Show

Randle's Pride, the big black horse that has shown to such great advantage in recent shows, captured three blues, taking first prize in the Corinthian, working hunters and open hunters classes. Randle's Pride won the red in the $1,000 jumping sweepstakes.

Claws was awarded second prize in the ladies' hunter and Sport Marvel likewise captured a red in the middle and heavyweight hunters classes. Randle's Way took third prize in five classes and fourth in another.

Scott Faces Acid Test In Fight With Williams

Light-Heavyweight Is Slight Favorite Over Lighter Antagonist in Firemen's Benefit Event at Turner's Arena; Williams Seeks Revenge.

By Bill McCormick.

Russell (Buddy) Scott, as handsome a light-heavyweight as has come along in these parts for years, will receive the acid test at Turner's Arena tonight when he takes on Charles (Hobo) Williams, a brawling middleweight, for ten scheduled rounds.

Scott, who has been absent from local rings for several months, has been established a slight favorite in the wagering, but many close to the fight game are predicting that Williams will finish up the winner—possibly by a knockout.

The bout between Middleweight Williams and Light-heavyweight Scott has been arranged for the benefit of the firemen's fund, which will receive a portion of the gate receipts.

On form, and because he is a legitimate 175-pounder, Scott figures to handily dispose of Williams, who fights his best in the 160-pound division. The boys have met twice in the past. A draw decision resulted from their first encounter. Scott took the decision on a last-minute rally the second time they tangled.

Some observers are disregarding the form in clocking this bout on the theory that Scott's recent marriage will hamper his ring career for the time being. It is an old axiom of the ring that no fighter is at his best for at least six months after marriage. That theory is based on the belief that newly wed boxers would have their minds filled with kind and gentle thoughts that are not conducive to one's best efforts in the business of denting profiles. Scott has been married just six weeks.

Scott's handlers, however, point out that Buddy has indulged in four bouts since his marriage. Three of these he won by knocking out mediocre opponents. The fourth found him winning a decision from Billy Hood, a tough Texan.

Others who favor Williams think he has gained enough experience in two fights with Heavyweight Eddie Mader to offset the superior boxing skill enjoyed by Scott the last time they collided. Williams, fighting two divisions over his head, held Mader to a draw the first time they met and dropped a decision in a return engagement.

Three six-round bouts of good local interest will round out the card.

POST PREDICTIONS.

MAIN EVENT—Charles (Hobo) Williams, Alexandria, vs. Russell (Buddy) Scott, Washington, lightweights, 10 rounds. Rated B. Williams will be giving away weight, but he has the strength and courage to outrough Buddy, who is some shucks as a boxer and a sharpshooter puncher to boot. We think the experience he got in the two bouts against Heavyweight Eddie Mader will stand Williams in good stead and carry him, although only a middleweight, to victory over Light-heavyweight Buddy Scott.

SEMIFINAL—Joey Archibald, Providence, vs. Lawrence Gunn, Baltimore, bantamweights, 6 rounds. Rated D. Although Gunn is noted as a "spoiler," he will find himself spoiled in more ways than one before the rough and ready little stablemate of Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers finishes with him.

PRELIMINARIES—Joey Green, Washington, vs. Frankie DeAngelo, Washington, featherweights, 6 rounds. Rated D. This is a real tough one. Both boys are making comebacks. DeAngelo has an edge in experience, but Green is younger and a better puncher. It's a toss-up, but we favor Green—if anyone must be favored.

New York, May 16 (AP).—Baseball's faithful clicked the turnstiles at a merry rate in eight big-league parks today, giving the magnates one of their big Sundays, with nearly 180,000 fans turning out.

Pittsburgh's pace-setting Pirates, entertaining the St. Louis Cardinals, drew the biggest crowd, 39,571, but the surprise of the day was provided by the 38,728 who packed Shibe Park in Philadelphia to see the Athletics and New York Yankees.

Massachusetts Driver Races to Victory in 3 Hours 6 Minutes and 21 Seconds; Loser Sprayed With Gas for 40 Miles When Tank Springs Leak.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 16.—Marshall Eldredge, of East Weymouth, Mass., stocky veteran of the river, roared down the driftwood-strewn Hudson today to win the tenth annual New York-to-Albany outboard motorboat race, 3 minutes and 22 seconds ahead of Clayton Bishop, of Onset, Mass., last year's winner. He drove a class "A" boat, Bishop a class "B."

Eldredge covered the 130-mile course in 3 hours, 6 minutes, 21 seconds and averaged 41.7 miles per hour. He stopped only once, at Poughkeepsie, to take on 10 gallons of gas. At Nyack, N. Y., he overtook Bishop, who was forced to hug the shore because of a hole in his gas tank, which sprayed him with gas for the last 40 miles.

Dirty and deafened from the roar of his motor, Eldredge reported a smooth trip. It was his seventh shot at the race, in which he finished second in 1931, fourth in 1934 and next to last in 1932.

Thousands saw the race, crowding the shores along the route, and about 5,000 were at the finish. Hundreds were in the river in canoes, and launches roared their approval as Eldredge, smiling broadly, swung up to the float. The winner reported his rudder badly bent.

Ken Mackenzie, of New Haven, Conn., finished third to take Class F honors. Mackenzie, also a professional, came down the river in 3 hours, 19 minutes, 47 seconds, and averaged 38.9. It was his second straight victory in the F Class. He finished the new race today with a badly bent propeller.

Phillies Blank Giants; Bees Win Over Dodgers

New Yorkers Held to Five Hits by Claude Passeau as Cliff Melton, Rookie, Fails Under Barrage in Fourth; Bees Collect 14 Hits.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 16.—Claude Passeau, sophomore right-hander, handed the Giants their second shutout of the season today, blanking them with five hits, while the Phillies won a 6-to-0 victory.

The win gave the Phillies the current series two games to one. Passeau joined Brooklyn's Van Mungi as the pitchers who have blanked the Giants this season. The National League champions, winding up their home stand today, showed six victories and seven defeats during the stay at the Polo Grounds.

One big inning, the fourth, when they scored four runs, put the game on ice for the Phils. Until then, Rookie Cliff Melton was having little difficulty. He finally bowed out in the sixth and Harry Gumbert and Lefty Al Smith succeeded him.

Racer Is Rescued During Boat Race

Straley had been in the water 15 minutes when he was picked up by Benjamin Schreiber and James Van Dolan, of Yonkers. He was burned severely by contact with the high test gasoline from his motor.

Rex Mays Cracks World Auto Mark

Chicago, May 16 (AP).—Rex Mays, of Glendale, Calif., established a new world record for a half-mile dirt track today by racing around the fair grounds speedway in 25.71 seconds, bettering the old mark of 25.80 made last year by Ben Shaw at Hohokus, N. J.

Mays' performance came in a time trial preceding the 50-mile feature race, won by Bob Sall, of Paterson, N. J., in 47:56.55 seconds. Second place went to Chet Gardner, of Indianapolis, and third to Ken Fowler, also of Paterson, N. J.

Syd Cohen's Wild Heave Permits Tie

Boston Capitalizes on Error to Wipe Out 2-Run Lead in 9th.

By Shirley Povich.

Washington's modest little two-game winning streak came to an unhappy end yesterday at Griffith Stadium, where 18,000 of the populace watched the Nats inspire the Red Sox to win a 6-to-5 ball game.

The Nats' winning streak didn't come to an end until the twelfth inning, but it actually perished by their own hands back there in the ninth, when they had a two-run lead and, quite obviously, couldn't hold it. It was a miserable piece of sabotage committed by Syd Cohen in that ninth when he unloosed a wild throw to second base that reprieved the Red Sox from defeat. Washington had the Red Sox on the ropes, ready for the full count, when Cohen's error let 'em up.

And then the game wore into the twelfth and arrived at a point where Jimmy Foxx was on second by virtue of his single into leftfield and a sacrifice bunt. With two out, Manager Joe Cronin extracted Rookie Bobby Doerr from the batting order and inserted Eric McNair as a pinch-hitter.

Ed Linke was pitching for Washington. He had been pitching nicely for two innings after relieving Cohen, but, suddenly, he went sour. McNair bashed a single past the diving form of Ossie Bluege; Foxx scored from second and the Red Sox had the ball game.

McKain Shines on Slab.

Washington didn't have much of an answer to that twelfth-inning uprising of the Sox. In fact, Joe Kuhel, Johnny Stone and Al Simmons couldn't get the ball out of the infield, if you must know the details.

It was a nice relief pitching job by young Archie McKain, late of Minneapolis, that tided the Red Sox over until they could come up with the winning run. In a four-inning shift, McKain gave up only two hits to the Nats—useless singles with two out.

That ninth inning was a pretty sad affair for the Nats, who at the time were rolling along merrily with a 5-3 lead acquired in the eighth. Monte Weaver had been rocking along nicely; had, in fact, been pitching two-hit ball for a stretch of six scoreless innings, when things began to happen.

Bobby Doerr banged a two-bagger into rightfield, but the tension eased when Pinch-hitter Wes Ferrell flied harmlessly to Hill. The tension was on in full swing again, however, when Dallesandro drove a single through the box to score Doerr and put the tying run on first.

Game Tossed Away.

Manager Bucky Harris at this point felt himself constrained to lift Weaver and insert the left-handed Syd Cohen to pitch to Cramer, but the cheers that were raised when Cramer drove a meek grounder back to Cohen glutted in the throats of the 18,000 a split second later when Cohen, attempting for a force-play at second, heaved the ball off line to Bluege, who dropped it, with all hands safe on the play.

Dallesandro, in fact, reached third on the error and, with only one out, Harris lifted Cohen in favor of Ed Linke. Resorting to strategy, Harris ordered Joe Cronin purposely passed to fill the bases and Linke then extricated the Nats from the situation tolerably well. He did permit the tying run to score from Boston, May 16.—Boston's lowly Bees today ended the Brooklyn Dodgers' four-game winning streak as "Deacon" Danny MacFayden edged Van Lingle Mungo, 3 to 2 in 11 innings.

He singled to reach first, was pushed along by Garms' sacrifice and Vince DiMaggio's whistling single over second brought him home to end the contest.

Joe Bowman Victor Over Bob Weiland

Hundreds Turned Away as Bucs Increase League Lead With Pair of Runs in First Inning, Cards Score in Sixth.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, May 16.—Joe Bowman won his fifth victory of hte season today for the league-leading Pirates when he held St. Louis to six hits to score a 2-1 victory.

Thousands of fans were turned away from Forbes Field who wanted to see the first Sunday game of the season here. A single game record crowd of 39,571 crammed into the park, however, before the windows were closed on the throng of disappointed fans.

Bob Weiland, who had scored a victory over Pittsburgh earlier in the season, started for the Gas House Gang and was nicked for the two runs which won the game, in the opening inning.

Dickshot Scores.

Paul Waner and John Dickshot shot romped home when Suhr grounded to J. Brown. Brown made the play at the plate but too late.

Weiland settled down and pitched shutout ball thereafter, being lifted in the eighth for a pinch-hitter. Jim Winfred hurled the eighth for the Cards.

Bowman allowed only three hits until the seventh when Terry Moore singled. Ducky Medwick was hit with a pitched ball and Leo Durocher smacked a single to left to score Moore with the Cards' only run.

Medwick Gets Double.

Medwick doubled into the crowd in the ninth with one out to throw a scare into the crowd but Bowman retired the next two batters in order.

Al Todd, who went hitless today, had connected safely in the last 16 games. He was robbed of an extra base hit by Johnny Mize, Card first-sacker, on his first trip to the plate when Mize leaped into the air to take his liner.

D. C. Junior Cup Tryouts Bring Upsets

Gilbert Hunt Is Twice Loser; Barney Welsh Doubles Victim.

The first move to develop Washington's junior Davis Cup team brought a startling upset of one of the "big brother" combinations yesterday when young Davis Johnson and Harry Heffner defeated Barney Welsh and Stan McCaskey, 6—3, 6—3 at the Army and Navy Country Club.

Sixteen matches were held under the direction of Maj. C. W. Christenberry and his junior committee. The present squad of 18 boys will be cut to a team of 6, which will compete in matches with junior cup squads from other cities. Leading senior players and professionals are helping the young players with their game.

Gilbert Hunt, former runner-up for the National Intercollegiate title, was upset by Hugh Lynch, 5—7, 6—4, 6—3. Welsh defeated Heffner, 6—3; Thomas J. Mangan defeated Allie Ritzenberg, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3; Lieut. Stanley R. Robinson defeated Davie Johnsen (Junior), 6—1, 6—4; Commander Dewitt G. Redgrave defeated Ralph Adair (Junior), 6—1, 6—0; John O'Malley (Junior), defeated Austin Rice, 6—3 6—1; J. C. Becker defeated Jack Hoyt (Junior), 6—3, 6—1.

Singles.

Doubles.

Heffner and Johnsen (Juniors) defeated Welsh and Stan McCaskey, 2—6, 6—3, 6—3; Dooley Mitchell and Lieut. Robinson defeated Hunt and Adair (Juniors), 6—3 7—5; Allen Blade and Maj. C. W. Christenberry defeated Ritzenberg and O'Malley (Juniors), 8—4, 4—6, 8—4; A. K. Tigrett and Mahaffey defeated Paul Falconer and John Bruns (Juniors), Maj. Rutlow and R. C. Doyle defeated Hoyt and Bruns (Juniors), 6—4, 6—3; Capt. William Barer and Sadd defeated Snooks Titus and Roscoe Woodruff (Juniors), 6—1, 6—1; Doyle Royal and Bill Contreras (Juniors) defeated Miguel Nunes and James B. ### Special Ladies Day Game Is Listed Today

In a polite gesture to women fans of Washington, Griffith Stadium officials yesterday announced that today's contest between the Nats and the Red Sox has been designated as a special "Ladies Day" game.

Women fans missed the regular "Ladies Day" engagement last week, when Friday proved an open date on the schedule. As usual, women will be admitted upon payment of only the tax.

Sox Defeat Indians, 6-4, For Sixth

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 16.—Chicago's spurting White Sox closed their fortnight's home stand today with six victories and five defeats by banging Ivy Paul Andrews for four eighth-inning runs and a 6-to-4 victory over Cleveland. The triumph was the Chicagoans' sixth in eight starts and gave them a clean sweep of the two-game series.

To the cheers of 22,000 fans the Sox broke a 2-2 tie with five consecutive hits after one was out in the eighth. Zeke Bonura started the rally with his third single off Andrews, Luke Appling also singled, Jack Hayes doubled for his third hit and Tony Piet singled to drive in two runs and chase the Cleveland starter. Willis Hudlin squelched the rally, but only after Luke Sewell singled to score Piet, who had stolen second and taken third on a poor throw.

The big thing, however, almost proved insufficient for the Sox. Vernon Kennedy, who had pitched two-hit ball the first six innings and then allowed single runs in the seventh and eighth, weakened when Roy Hughes singled, Frank Pytlak pinch-doubled and Lyn Lary singled to open the ninth.

Chick Hafey Returns, Hits Reds to Win

19,690 Fans Witness Great Game; Cubs Bow by 3-2.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, May 16.—With two out in the ninth, Chick Hafey swung his war club for the first time in two years for the Cincinnati Reds today and flying deep into right field, scored Cuyler with the run by which the Reds won their third game of the season from Chicago, 3 to 2.

A crowd of 19,690 saw the Cubs, beset twice in the game by a recent injury jinx, come to life in the eighth to tie the score after the Reds tallied runs in the second and fourth frames.

Hollingsworth—the fourth left-hander faced by the Cubs in their last five games—allowed only four safeties until he opened the eighth with a walk to Bottarini and singles to Marty and Galan. Galan's single drove in Marty, while Frey's grounder to Jordan scored Jurges, who was running for Root.

Leads Held In 4 Loops On Sandlots

Brewers and Gordon's Top National 'A' League.

Leaders in four sandlot leagues refused to be budged from their pace-setting roles yesterday—with one exception. The Ross Jewelers were ousted from the leadership of section B in the National City League. In the powerful section A division, however, Heurich Brewers and Gordon's Cafeteria continued their unbeaten way.

Chevy Chase turned back the Chevy Chase Cubs for its second win in two days to widen its first place margin in the Montgomery County circuit, while Costello Post and Fort Stevens stepped out farther ahead in the American Legion League scramble.

Gordon's Cafeteria barely squeezed through for its third straight win, outlasting Mount Rainier, 9 to 8, on the East Ellipse. It was a free-hitting game which saw Mount Rainier scored on four times in the eighth to cut down an 8-2 lead and then add two more in the ninth only to have a fast double play, Hanagan to H. Silverman to Nusbaum, cut short the rally.

Brewers Win Easily.

The Brewers retained their league-leading berth more comfortably, getting 19 hits off three Shady Grove pitchers, Gigles and Grover Adair and Frank Baront, to deal out a 16-7 defeat. Huck Stahl led the drive with two doubles and a triple. The Grovemen gathered a dozen hits off Carl Wahler and Lefty Scrivener and took a 3-3 lead in the fourth. The Brewers came back with eight runs in the same frame off Finn and Chewning.

Rose Liquor Store moved up to third place by upsetting Union Printers, 6 to 4, on the six-hit pitching of Charlie Booker, who also helped hit his team to victory with two triples which knocked in three runs.

Anacostia Motors won its first game with a 3-2 win over Dixie Pigs when Lee Sweeney singled in the tenth, stole second and scored on Ed Miller's drive to center. Bill Kafka held the Pigs to five hits.

New Deal Men's Shop, made up of former high school stars, took the Section B leadership with an 11-3 win over Georgetown A. C. as Smith held the latter to seven hits. White Haven A. C. won its second tilt in two starts, a 14-4 conquest of Leary Motors with 17 hits.

Cardinals Best Jewelers.

Ross Jewelers were knocked out of the lead by the Cardinals despite a rally in the eighth, which fell a run shy of tying the score. A dozen bases on balls allowed Read's Pharmacy to take third place with a 12-2 win over D. C. Plumbers. Rhodes, Leemans and Petrowskey were the erratic flingers.

In the American Legion League, Costello Post swamped Drum Corps, 8 to 0, to continue atop the circuit along with Fort Stephens. Buddy Webb allowed the Drummers two hits and fanned 13 men.

Chevy Chase's 9-7 win over Chevy Chase Cubs gave it a two-game lead over its nearest rival. Friendship was absorbing an 11-5 defeat from Somerset, its second loss in two days.

Brownell and Shea Win Best Ball Match

Yoder and Hollebaugh Bow at Kenwood, Columbia Women Golfers Play for Hinshaw Trophies, Pro-Amateur Scheduled Today.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Beaver Dam upset Chevy Chase yesterday in the Maryland State Handicap team play, winning 10½ to 7½ on their home course. The defeat ended the losers two-year reign as titleholders. Chevy Chase outscored the hosts in the class B Matches but trailed in the other handicap groups.

Martin McCarthy, with a 74, and Johnny Miller, with a 75, defeated Ralph Quinter and Johnny Brawner, 2 points to 1, in the feature match. The winners will meet the Baltimore District victors next week on a neutral course.

Beaver Dam, 10½; Chevy Chase, 7½.

Class B—W. J. DuBass and McCarl Dunlop (Chevy Chase), 2 points; W. M. Davis and G. S. Hanes, 0 point; Pat Fogarty and W. T. Henderson (Beaver Dam), 2½ points; Robert Stead, jr., and W. J. Brandley, ½ point.

Class C—A. T. Thompson and W. G. Hackman (Beaver Dam), 1 point; D. D. L. McGrew and Dr. T. M. Riley, 0 point; S. W. Crosswaithe and Z. Carter (Beaver Dam), 1½ points; A. A. Resside and Amos Hayes, 1½ points.

Levi Yoder, fresh from two decisive victories in the Woodmont and Chevy Chase Invitations, paired with Russ Hollebaugh yesterday at Kenwood and bowed to Bobby Brownell, D. C. amateur champion from Manor, and Billy Shea, Congressional star, 3 and 1, in a best ball match.

Brownell was out in 34 and back in 37 for a 71 and the lowest medal score of the group. Shea had 74, Yoder 77 and Hollebaugh 78. The youthful pair were 3-up at the turn and molded a best ball of 66.

George Vass won the medal play handicap tournament at Kenwood yesterday with a 78-12—66. L. A. Snead was second with 76-9—67, and Maury Fitzgerald next with 74-6—68.

G. E. Edmonds won the selective nine-hole tournament at Washington yesterday with a 37-7—30. N. H. Dineen was second with 40-8—32. G. H. Daily, jr., 46-13—33, and D. C. Gruver, 38-5—33, finished in order. The holes were 3, 4, 7, 9, 10, 12, 14, 17, 18.

Volney Burnett and G. D. Barnhardt finished all even in the match play against par yesterday at Indian Spring. Barnhardt was also a winner in the blind bogey with 82-8—74. Other winners included Ray Lead, 94-20—74; A. H. Youngquist, 85-10—75; H. S. Pope, 93-18—75, and H. S. Stine, 99-20—79.

T. Porter won a playoff from S. Berquist for the individual prize in the Congressional Club breakfasts yesterday, and also competed on the winning foursome composed of H. Warring, C. S. Smith and B. Turner.

Dr. J. C. Reilly, with 87-12—75, tied with three others in the blind bogey at Manor yesterday. Eleven winners were reported, including W. R. Shives, 93-18—75; W. F. Beasley, 87-12—75; Mack Myers, 83-8—75; E. N. Slack, 91-20—71; Dr. Brezinsky, 98-25—71; G. B. McGehee, 84-5—79; Harvey Cooper, 92-13—79; J. E. Hughes, 94-15—79; H. S. Simcoe, 97-18—79, and Dr. Stiefel, 94-15—79.

Sam Harvey is leading the 36-hole totals in the Argyle Club ladder qualifications with a pair of 78s for 156. Tony Willmett rallied with a 74 on the second 18 for a 157 total, and Don Dudley is third, with a 78—80, 158.

The Silver Springers will meet the Quantico Marines at Argyle in their first team match of the season next Sunday. They split a series of home-and-home matches last year with the officers.

J. R. Caton won the blind bogey event at Belle Haven over the week-end, with a 93—16, 77. Other winners, with the handicaps divised from the Royal punchboard, included B. Howell, 89—24, 65, and George Cole, high net, 120—3, 117.

The Capitol Golf Club, formerly Bannockburn, was the scene of three varied events over the week-end's play. Gardner Reese and Roy K. Aten tied for the blind bogey prize with net 78's. With handicaps taken from the Royal punchboard, Ken Spencer, with 82-25—57, and Marcy McDonald, 104-2—102, were the other prize winners.

The Custom's Bureau play was won by C. W. Simonson with 89; Frank Dow, 90, and C. Stevenson, 97.

The A. A. A. event for the Russell E. Singer Trophy was won by R. Randolph with a 37 net.

Mrs. W. F. Kerr won the ladies flag tourney at Beaver Dam yesterday, planting the flag after her second shot on the eighteenth hole. Other winners included Mrs. N. J. Waldron, Mrs. Charles Grimm, Mrs. C. E. Purdy, Mrs. J. P. Strong and Mrs. C. E. McGowan.

Mrs. G. E. Pugh won the nine-hole low net prize over the ladies nine at Manor yesterday, with 39-10—29. Mrs. R. M. Prezise was the gross winner with 42.

Columbia Women's Event Pro-Amateur on Tap Today

Columbia's women golfers will start play for the William Wade Hinshaw trophies this morning with an 18-hole qualifying round. The event is over the 72-hole medal play route, 18 more will be played Friday and the next two rounds on the following Monday's.

Mrs. A. S. Gardiner is handling the event. A silver grost prize and two net awards will be presented the winners. More than 50 entrants are expected.

Middle Atlantic pros will stage a pro-amateur over the Washington course this afternoon with professional Dave Thompson as host. Three simon-pures, with handicap allowances, will play with each pro.

Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam mentor, will play with Russ Hollebaugh, Maury Fitzgerald and N. E. Rogers, sr., Spencer's assistant, Paul Wells, will take three partners, P. G. Laitsch, S. T. Dale and George Fox.

Hagerstown Race Meeting Opens Tomorrow

Well, it took the Yankees three weeks to get out in front, but there they are this morning, on top of the American League, and apparently squared away for the rest of the season.

They are the solid team in the league—the team to beat. Every other club has its potentialities—if an infielder comes through here, if pitchers develop there—it may be no soft touch for the Yankees, but the Yanks alone went into the thing well heeled.

POVICH.

They had that Murderers' Row and they had pitching and a defense that needed no apologies. And even with Catcher Bill Dickey on the sidelines for two weeks with an injured arm they had the power to go to the front in the hand-to-hand jousting with the league leaders—the A's—over the week-end.

* * * *

They had a time of it getting started, what with Red Ruffing holding out on 'em for the best part of three weeks and Joe DiMaggio laid low by obstreperous tonsils. They lapsed into the second division for a time, and then the Yankee power began asserting itself and they rocked along right up to the top.

* * * *

The Athletics' nose dive out of the lead during the week-end was not an affair to occasion an arching of eyebrows. The A's simply didn't belong up there and were merely flattering their few backers. It was nice to see Connie Mack's team up there setting the pace, but it isn't in the books for it to maintain itself in that rarefied atmosphere around the league lead.

* * * *

A team might come up with one swell rookie pitcher in a season, but they don't come up with two often, and they never come up with three young pitching stars. That was what had been keeping the Athletics up there — young pitching—but George Caster, Almon Williams and Luther Thomas, who had been pumping off the opposition with great regularity, do not figure to swarm into stardom en masse this season.

* * * *

Detroit's Tigers might conceivably match the Yankees in power, but Manager Mike Cochrane is beset with other troubles that do not annoy Manager Joe McCarthy. Mike's own catching is something less than high grade and his once swell infield has begun to come apart at the seams, with Bill Rogell slowing up at shortstop and Marvin Owen still an anemic hitter at third base.

* * * *

The Tigers went into the race this year banking heavily on Schoolboy Rowe to contribute a mighty share of pitching, but at this writing Rowe has not been able to win a game and is currently under suspension without pay. Woe is Mike.

* * * *

Steve O'Neill's Indians are confirming the suspicion that they are an in-and-out ball club and they are sorely beset by an infield problem that has not been solved by placing Odell Hale, a third baseman, at second, and Roy Hughes, a second baseman, at third. And the Indians are still back on their heels waiting for Bob Feller to pitch some winning ball games for 'em. Loser in his only start, Feller has appeared in only one game and may not pitch for another month.

* * * *

Joe Cronin's Red Sox are still floundering about in midleague, crying for better pitching. Lefty Grove and Wes Ferrell have caused no great consternation among the enemy this year and were it not for Johnny Marcum's comeback, the Red Sox pitching staff would be best characterized as bad.

* * * *

Cronin himself has been the brightest light on the Red Sox with his sensational batting and return to form in the field, but young Bobby Doerr, who was supposed to care for second base in grand style, has been a mild disappointment. And the Sox have failed to come up with that long-sought other outfielder.

* * * *

Out at Chicago, Jimmy Dykes is having his troubles with the pitching and his infield. Verne Kennedy, the big shot of the staff last year, has been losing as often as he wins, and is inexplicably wild this season. Johnny Whitehead, a big winner in '35, was only recently reinstated in good standing and were it not for Monty Stratton the Sox pitching would probably be the worst in the league.

* * * *

All of which brings us down to Washington. And let it be stated herein that the Nats—except for their pitching—are fundamentally sound. Aside from the pitching, it rates with the Yankees as the only solid club in the league. The team will not want for hitting after Travis rejoins it and defensively it has no superiors.

* * * *

How, then, the Nats at the bottom of the League? Simply because they haven't been able to untrack themselves—to blend their pitching with their best hitting. Both hitters and pitchers have profaned the optimism of Washington fans, but the hitters are showing signs of getting squared away. The pitching holds no such promise. It has been, as a whole, pretty punk.

400 Horses Are Stabled On Grounds

Bill Bennings

By Walter Haight.

With the most successful major Maryland racing season since depression written into the books, the turf spotlight hereabouts swings to the smaller tracks. The Hagerstown Fair Association's ten-day meeting, beginning tomorrow, will be the start of a cycle of the sport that will carry through Hagerstown to Charles Town, Cumberland, Marlboro and Timonium, before the "big time" begins at Havre de Grace next September.

The fact that the major Maryland tracks were forced to call upon the $1,000 and $1,200 class of horses to fill out their programs has brought prestige to the type of racing now shown on the half-milers. Many of the horses that won at Havre de Grace, Bowie and Pimlico will vie for the purses offered at Hagerstown. In addition there are many horses which have been especially groomed for the sharp turns.

Race Secretary Edward J. Brennan completed his work at Pimlico last night and left for Hagerstown where more than 400 stalls have been assigned. Perhaps the strongest group of horses on the grounds is that of J. B. Belk, Charlottesville, Va., sportsman whose stable is headed by Scudder and Wise Sister.

Hagerstown will conduct the usual seven-race programs with a 2 p. m. post time for the first race. The "daily double," as popular on the half-milers as on the big time, will be conducted for the first time on consecutive races. The first and second events have been designated as the races for the twin wager.

Earl Waldron, in charge of the mutuel department, has announced that it will be necessary that the "double" windows close promptly at 1:45 p. m. to asure prompt posting of the possible pay-offs on the second race winners.

General Manager Harold Bestor reports that the racing strip has been improved by the adding of top soil and records for the course are likely to go by the boards.

Syd Cohen's Wild Throw Loses Game

Boston Annexes Winning Run in 12th After Wild Peg.

third on Jimmy Foxx's mammoth fly to Johnny Stone, but he slipped a third strike past Higgins to give the Nats no worse than a draw—that is, until the twelfth.

Monte Weaver held the Sox under control—for one inning, then they began to get rough with him and came up with a 3-0 lead in the second. Rick Ferrell and Almada beat out a pair of infield hits and Johnny Marcum, who began the pitching for the Sox, scored the first run with a single to center.

Bluege Muffs Fly.

Chunky little Dallesandro made it two for the inning when he also bashed a single to center, but that third run was the contribution of Ossie Bluege—of all people—when Bluege muffed Cramer's tame grounder.

Washington got back in the ball game in the fourth inning afire having a time with Marcum. Johnny Stone started it all by slamming a double to left. Al Simmons drew a walk, Buddy Myer scored Stone with a single to center and eventually Johnny Riddle scored Simmons with a fly to center.

While Weaver was performing and keeping the Sox under control, the Nats managed to tie the score in the sixth. Johnny Stone again started by pumping a two-bagger to right. It seemed hopeless when Stone was caught trying to go to third on Simmons' bounder to Cronin, but Bluege wangled a walk out of Marcum to put Stone on second and Ben Chapman called off the bench to pinch hit, delivered a single to center to usher Stone home with the run that made it 3-3.

Marcum had a rough time of it in the eighth when the Nats bounced in front 5-3. At that, Washington sagged badly when it had a chance to get more than two runs out of the proceedings.

Stone Garners Pass.

Johnny Stone, who began all of the Nats' run scoring efforts yesterday, began the one in the eighth by coaxing a walk from Marcum. Simmons breathed some life into the uprising, slamming a single to left on which Stone took third and Manager Cronin wiggled his fingers toward the bull pen, out went Marcum and in came the left-handed Fred Ostermueller to pitch to Myer.

With the Sox infield playing in, Myer pushed a single past Higgins, a ball that Cronin knocked down, but couldn't field and Stone came prancing home to put the Nats in front, 5-4. The inning began to have all kinds of possibilities when Bluege walked to fill the bases with none as yet out, but Cronin summoned Jack Wilson to relieve Ostermueller and the Nats got only one run out of the proceedings—when Millies flied to centerfield, Simmons scoring after the catch.

But after that, things were pretty sad for the Nats.

Hines Victor Over Snead AtBloomfield

Garden City Youth Wins With 279; Succeeds Byron Nelson.

By the Associated Press.

Bloomfield, N. J., May 16.—Blond Jimmy Hines, the big hitter from Garden City, N. Y., and a candidate for this year's Ryder Cup team, won his first Metropolitan Open championship today at the First Hills Field Club with a 72-hole total of 279, 1 under par. His individual 18-hole scores were 68, 71, 70, 70.

In second place, a stroke away, came lanky Henry Picard, of Hershy, Pa., winner in 1935. Three-putting the fifteenth and sixteenth on his final round cost Picard a chance at his second title. He did, however, win the $100 prize offered for the best 36-hole score of the day with his morning 69 and afternoon 70, for 139.

Sam Snead, the hard hitter from West Virginia, went over par on both of his closing rounds with 71 and 74, to finish with 283 in third place. Little Paul Runyan, Metropolitan champion in 1934, was fourth, with 284 on a final 73, while Frank Strafaci topped the amateurs with a final 75, for 292.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

On the Air Today

At this season of the year when many of the big winter shows are dropping off the program schedules, it is a bit unusual to have a half-hour variety show going into a debut. Such is the case at WMAL, at 6 this evening, when the "Tic Toc Revue" takes a bow, starring youthful talent.

Hughie Barrett, whose orchestra is playing at the Tavern-on-the-Green in New York, was selected as maestro because of his definite "youth appeal." Likewise, Barry McKinley, barytone, and Jean O'Neill, soprano. McKinley was first presented from WLW in 1933, while still in his teens. Miss O'Neill is only 18. Completing the cast are the Tune Twisters.

Jean O'Neill, incidentally, was "discovered" by Fred Allen. She has sung twice in the comedian's "new talent" programs this spring. All in all, this show has a definite accent on youth. Furthermore, it comes at a period when the air is filled with talk and snatches of recorded phonograph music and should immediately command a good audience.

* * * *

Efforts are being made through the Washington office of the National Broadcasting Co. to have a print of the description of the Hindenburg disaster sent here for another playing. You will remember that Robert Morrison, of the WLS (Chicago) staff, was sent to Lakehurst to make a routine sound effects transcription of the ship's arrival. And actually got one of the most amazing and dramatic recordings in the history of radio broadcasting. The transcription was played for N. B. C. network audiences last week, but came unannounced and many Washingtonians missed it. This desk has received many requests to have the "platter" played again. We all hope that it can be set for an early date.

Net Income Compares With $3,180,908 Deficit in Previous Year.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 16.—Reasons which justified the emergency railroad freight charges are continuing with "added emphasis," because of increased material costs, said Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad System in the preliminary annual report for 1936 issued today.

As a substitute for the charges, which expired at the end of last year, Willard expressed hopes the Interstate Commerce Commission would give "sympathetic consideration" to the petition for increases and adjustments of freight rates filed by the carriers some months ago.

Baltimore & Ohio's 1936 net income amounted to $4,538,975, equal after allowing for dividend requirements on the preferred stock, to 85 cents a share on common stock. In the previous year the road had a deficit of $3,180,908.

Total railway operating revenues were $168,992,680, compared with $141,843,264 in 1935. An increase of $1,293,928 in passenger revenue was due, in part, Willard said, to the rise in business activity and to the reduction in fares to 2 cents a mile on June 1, 1936.

Missouri Pacific.

Missouri Pacific Railroad Co.'s 1936 pamphlet report today disclosed a net loss for the year of $8,095,236, against net loss of $15,241,695 in 1935.

General Motors Net Declined With Strikes

Production and Wages Set New Records in March.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 16.—General Motors Corporation reported today it had net earnings of $44,814,166 for the first quarter of 1937, despite serious curtailment as the result of strikes, which compares with $52,464,174 for the same period of 1936.

"It will be appreciated," said the operating review, "that the period under review was materially prejudiced by the interruption in production caused by a strike. Upon the resumption of manufacturing, production was rapidly increased, with the result that March established a new all-time record, from the standpoint of number of units produced."

Total sales to dealers and production by foreign subsidiaries for the quarter totaled 439,200 cars and trucks, compared with 500,167 in the similar quarter of 1936, a decrease of 12.2 per cent. Deliveries by dealers to consumers in the United States totaled 340,693 cars and trucks, compared with 379,950 inthe same period of 1936.

The review said that the average hourly earning rate of all hourly paid factory employes reached a new all-time peak during March, and claimed the corporation's wage level was more than 40 per cent higher than the average hourly earned rate of all manufacturing industries in the country.

Net earnings for the 12 months ended March 31, said the report, were $230,832,417, equivalent to $5.17 per share on the common stock after deduction of preferred dividends.

D—Denotes Decrease.

REVIEW OF OPERATIONS

Operating revenues increased $27,149,416.98, or 19.14% over 1935. Freight revenue increased $25,030,467.69, or 20.39%, while revenue tons increased 23.38%. Passenger revenue increased $1,293,928.99, or 13.08%, and the passenger miles increased 20.42%. The increase in passenger traffic is due in part to the increase in business activity and to reduction in fares on June 1, 1936. Other revenues, including mail and express, increased $825,020.30, or 9.00%.

Operating expenses increased $18,046,342.48, or 17.10% over 1935. Total maintenance expenses increased $10,781,268.45, or 25.27%, of which $3,340,164.60 was for maintenance of way and structures and $7,441,103.85 for maintenance of equipment. The maintenance of equipment expenses include depreciation charges of $7,363,115.97, an increase of $162,602.53 over 1935. Transportation expenses increased $6,927,170.90, or 13.77%. The transportation ratio was 33.86% of operating revenues as compared with 35.46% in 1935. The total operating ratio was 73.14%, compared with 74.42% in 1935.

NET INCOME

Net operating revenue increased $9,103,074.50, while taxes, equipment and joint facility rents increased $3,102,752.63, resulting in an increase in Net Railway Operating Income of $6,000,321.87. Other income, including rents, dividends and interest, after deducting miscellaneous charges, reflects an increase over 1935 of $1,673,866.54, while fixed charges decreased $45,695.35. The net income after payments of interest and other fixed charges aggregating $32,893,024.36, was $4,538,975.12, an increase over 1935 of $7,719,883.76.

TAXES

The total taxes accrued as a charge to income in 1936 was $10,485,868.31, an increase over 1935 of $2,976,545.14. Of the total, $2,135,851.03 was due to the Excise Tax, account of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1935, effective March 1, 1936, and $725,246.24 was for the unemployment compensation feature of the Social Security Act, effective January 1, 1936.

Taxes accrued for 1936 absorbed 28.1 cents of each dollar of net operating revenue and was equal to $3.33 per share of the total outstanding capital stock of the Company.

BALANCE SHEET

The balance sheet at December 31, 1936, indicated total property (less accrued depreciation) and other investments, of $1,079,956,632, current assets of $33,822,073, as against current liabilities of $27,409,462, and deferred liabilities, inter-company accounts, etc., net, of $16,418,931. The total interest-bearing debt outstanding was $678,664,643 (a decrease of $9,029,272 compared with preceding year). The outstanding capital stock was $315,158,485, and corporate surplus $76,127,184.

EMERGENCY INCREASE IN FREIGHT RATES

Emergency increase in freight rates authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission effective April 16, 1935, terminated December 31, 1936. During 1936 between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 were realized by the Company from the emergency increase. As the reasons which justified the "Emergency Charges" are continuing with added emphasis as to cost of material it is hoped that the Commission will give sympathetic consideration to the petition of the railroads now pending for certain increases and adjustment of freight rates which will aid in meeting present basis of costs without imposing undue and inequitable burdens on commerce and industry, or without interfering with the flow of traffic.

PICK-UP AND DELIVERY SERVICE

To facilitate the handling of less-than-carload traffic a system of store-door collection and delivery was inaugurated November 16, 1936, to apply to shipments paying not less than forty-five cents per 100 pounds.

SHAREHOLDERS

At the close of 1936 there were 40,861 registered holders of the Company's capital stock of both classes, with an average holding of 77 shares. The continued cooperation of shareholders in the use of the Company's facilities and in the solicitation of the business of others for transportation over its lines is earnestly desired and greatly appreciated.

The President and Board of Directors record their appreciation of the loyal support and efficient cooperation of the officers and employes in the conduct of the Company's business throughout the year.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively,

Setbacks in Markets Are Regarded as Correction of Bullish Rise.

New York, May 16.—After a week's respite from the heavy liquidation of speculative accounts both in stocks and commodities of ten days ago, marked by dullness in trading usually associated with midsummer, but which is the customary aftermath of too rapid a rise in prices, the markets at the close of last week suffered a fresh decline. With a considerably increased trading volume the stock market dipped below the previous low points.

Industrial shares took the brunt of the selling, which came in part from the unshipping of stocks by those who have begun to fear that the inability of prices earlier in the week to make a worth-while gain presages a much greater fall. The drop on the week of $23,000,000 in brokers loans testifies to the washing out of speculative accounts, and while short selling probably had some influence, it scarcely was accountable for the setback. Industrial stocks have now given up all their advance made since July of last year. Railroad shares are back to the prices prevailing at the beginning of the year.

Government bonds also softened, after a fortnight of steadiness unaccompanied by much, if any, support from the Treasury or the Federal Reserve System. Their renewed weakness may well have followed the short-lived enthusiasm of Congress for economy—a leaning which wilted with the vote in the House Appropriations Committee to submit to Congress the full $1,500,000,000 relief bill suggested by the President, after toying for a while with two-thirds of that amount. Other factors in the Government bond market are the expectation that, in spite of the promise of the Treasury to borrow no more in this fiscal year, another half billion will be asked next month to make up the deficit in the income tax estimates.

London Aftermath.

Certain unfavorable industrial developments caught the markets in a depressed mood. Among them were the outbreak of strikes in some of the so-called independent steel mills, further trouble in one or two General Motors plants, and other evidence of labor unrest which at this stage can frighten capital into thinking that the situation may get out of hand. Of perhaps greater importance, as bringing on the latest wave of liquidation, was the further cleaning up of debris left over in London from the recent heavy crash in stocks and commodities. That also was the obvious explanation for the downturn in commodities on this side. Rumor has it that many London houses were hard hit, and while no doubt exists of the ability of financial London to care for the conditions, liquidation is the first answer, and that has meant some selling for foreign account on this side to obtain help.

Stock market losses here have not been heavy enough perhaps to create much real difficulty. The worst of it is the inevitable effect on sentiment which a decline in prices brings. For a while anxiety will be created over the forecasting ability of the stock market. Caution may accentuate what otherwise would have been a mere summer letdown. However, the tendency is to exaggerate such effects. The stock market is more of a reflector than a prognosticator and the prevailing opinion among businessmen is that the trade recovery still has much ground yet to cover.

Weakness in the markets will tend to postpone any restrictive action which the Administration may contemplate, and a quiet stock market is not incompatible with sound business progress. On the surface at least, business statistics are favorable. The steel industry this week stepped up its operating rate a little. Railroad freight car loadings last week went forward. There is every indication that corporation earnings for second quarter will turn out to be greater than those for the first three months.

On longer view the outlook is not so clear. Two principal factors appear as possible reducers of corporation profits, which govern stock prices in the long run. One is the narrowing of the profit margin because of higher operating costs for labor and materials; the other is the restrictive influence on that portion of profits available to shareholders exercised by mounting taxation. A study of first quarter earnings recently made by the National City Bank shows that those factors already are working adversely for stockholders. While the profit margin jumped in fourth quarter, before the full effect of higher wages and materials was fully effective, comparison with first quarter of a year ago shows a fall.

Provided that labor does not go too far for its own interests as well as those of capital, corporations may overcome rising hourly rates for labor through the greater use of improved machinery and plant and more efficient managerial methods. Much can be done along that line, much that has until now been deferred because of the adverse conditions of the depression. It is by no means true that industry to survive must pass along to the public all the rise in wages. With more efficient operation and greater volume not only will labor costs be absorbed, in part at least, but prices can be kept in such bounds as possibly to maintain the purchasing power of wages, and thus help to prolong the recovery. Meanwhile it must be admitted that the gap between actual and real wages is now beginning to narrow.

In the taxation field the prospect is less encouraging. Corporations can do nothing to abate the rise in taxes, which are becoming an increasing burden. The worst of it is that the businessman is unable to calculate what his future taxes may be, as he is able to do to some extent with his other costs. If the recovery is going to be broken by one thing more than another it will be by the continued deficits in the public accounts.

Money Circulation At 7-Year Peak

THE PARKER CORP GENERAL DISTRIBUTORS INCORPORATED INVESTORS

Boston, Mass., May 16.—The circulation of money, as measured by bank debits, fell off seasonally in April from March. On the other hand, debits were the largest for any April since 1930, and surpassed a year ago by 19½ per cent. During the first four months of this year debits exceeded the same 1936 months by 17 per cent.

Steel Output Rate Expected To Hold Steady

Volume of Buying Indicates High Rate Through July.

Cleveland, May 16.—Steel producers find themselves in a much easier position as a result of lessened pressure for deliveries and are able to make progress in reducing backlogs, says Steel.

Buying is in satisfactory volume and while in smaller volume than shipments the industry as a whole has sufficient business to maintain production at the present high rate through July, it is believed. As a result of the better conditions it is possible to obtain fairly prompt delivery on some products as space on rolling schedules develops.

Apparently consumption of steel has suffered no diminution and the recession of buying is partially due to consumers reducing stocks accumulated when higher prices for third quarter were feared. With consumption undiminished and stocks worked down renewed buying must follow by midyear.

An indication of the rate of decline in current buying is found in the experience of one important producer whose bookings in the past three weeks have declined about 33 per cent from a former rate well above capacity.

Labor Troubles.

Threat of labor trouble interrupting production of independent steelmakers last week caused customers supplied by these companies to exert considerable pressure for immediate delivery of as much steel as possible. This caused conditions resembling those obtaining previous to announcement of third quarter prices, though in less degree. The threat came so suddenly that steel users had not been able to accumulate stocks in advance. Users of semifinished steel who had signed with the unions felt some perturbation over possibility of their raw material being interrupted.

Because of the strike at Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation plants the Pittsburgh operating rate fell off 10 points to 83 per cent last week, carrying the national rate down 2 points to 89 per cent. Chicago gained 1 point to 84 per cent. There were no changes in rate at Youngstown, 83; Eastern Pennsylvania, 73½; Wheeling, 94; Cleveland, 79½; Birmingham, 83; Detroit, 100; Cincinnati, 94; St. Louis, 94. Buffalo lost 2 points to 90 and New England, 3 points to 87.

Automobile production continues at close to the capacity of the industry, last week's output being 141,982 units, topping the previous week's alltime high by 387 cars. General Motors ran 55,510 off the assembly line, Ford, 35,900, and Chrysler, 31,250. These represented a slight loss from the previous week, which was made up by increases by the smaller producers.

Music Firm Profit Highest in 81 Years

Cincinnati, May 16 (AP).—The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., music house, reported today largest earnings in the 81-year history of the firm—$2,172,593 for the fiscal year ended March 31. The figure is equivalent to $5.74 per share on 378,250 shares of common stock outstanding.

It compared with net profit of $909,163 for the previous year, and was recorded after taxes and an amount equal to one year's dividends on 13,066 shares of the company's 7 per cent preferred issue, and provision for a contingency fund of $395,441.

World Cotton Exports Largest in 3 Years

World cotton exports the first ieght months of this season were largest in three years, the Agriculture Department reports. The United States supplied a relatively smaller share while British India, Egypt and South American countries increased their proportions.

The eight months' world trade volume was 9,750,000 bales, compared with 8,891,000 last season, 7,391,000 two years ago and a recent ten-year average of 9,750,000 bales for the period.

Union Pacific Orders 3,800 Freight Cars

New York, May 15 (AP).—Union Pacific Railroad has placed orders for 3,800 freight cars, Railway Age reports.

Of the total, 2,600 will be built in its own shops, 1,000 will be constructed by American Car & Foundry Co., and 200 tank cars by General American Transportation Corporation.

1796 Half-Dollar Sells at $345

New York, May 16 (AP).—A 1796 half dollar—worth only 50 cents to George Washington—brought $345 at auction here yesterday.

Tobacco Prices.

New York, May 16 (AP).—Average price for the week ended May 15 of United States type 12, grade B4F, flue-cured tobacco was 19.9 cents a pound, compared with 19.7 cents last week and 17.5 cents in the same week a year ago, according to H. A. Stich, tobacco economist.

British Trade Figures.

London, May 16 (AP).—Board of trade figures for April are as follows: Total imports, £82,870,000; exports of British products, £43,020,000; re-exports, £7,270,000; total exports, £50,290,000; excess of imports, £32,580,000.

Insurance Stocks Drop to New Low

New York, May 16.—Insurance stocks in the New York City market reacted sharply during the past week and closed at a new low for the year, according to records compiled by Hoit, Rose & Troster.

The aggregate value of 20 leading fire and casualty insurance issues on May 14 totaled $578,556,000 (the new low), which compares with $602,664,000 for the previous week, a decrease of 4 per cent.

The current average yield of the 20 issues of 3.92 per cent compares with a yield of 3.76 per cent on May 7. Quoted prices for the 20 issues now average 14.8 times their combined earnings, compared with 15.4 times at the close of the previous week.

Lumber Shipments Decrease in Week

The lumber industry during the week ended May 8 stood at 74 per cent of the 1929 weekly average of production and 71 per cent of 1929 shipments.

New orders booked were somewhat below the preceding week. Shipments as reported showed appreciable decrease from the previous week, which was, however, the highest of the year to date. Production also declined from the previous week, which was the record high production week for 1937.

National production reported for the week ended May 8 by 4 per cent fewer mills was 3 per cent less than the output of the preceding week; shipments were 17 per cent below shipments of that week; new orders were 7 per cent below that week's orders, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association from regional associations covering the operations of important hardwood and softwood mills.

'37 Tourists Spend $9,000,000 in D. C.

During the first four months of this year tourists have spent more than $9,000,000 in Washington, according to figures made public last night by the Washington Board of Trade.

Moreover, 11 more conventions, 120,000 more tourists and 5,000 more convention delegates have come to Washington during the first four months of this year than in the same period last year, the board reported.

Four additional conventions or conferences will meet here this week.

Hitler Plans Peace Pledge For 4 Nations

will go to Brussels to talk with the Belgian premier, Paul Van Zeeland. Delbos probably will discuss with Van Zeeland:

1. The prospects of a world economic and commercial accord.

2. French efforts to persuade Belgium to abandon her reported plan to strike a new military bargain with Germany on a bi-lateral basis.

3. Possibility of Belgium's agreement to a new general defense plan involving Great Britain, France and Belgium in event any of the three nations are victims of a war of aggression.

Japan's Status Significant.

Rome, May 16 (AP).—Diplomatic circles today considered highly significant the recently increasing efforts of Italy and Germany to bind Japan more closely to them in an anti-Communist front.

Germany and Japan signed an anti-Communist pact last November and at the same time Japan and Italy reached an understanding on trade questions. These accords, however, have not been popular with the Japanese people in spite of the Tokyo government's attempts to "sell" them to the public.

Therefore creation of closer cultural bonds has been the principal aim of the two European Fascist powers in wooing Japan. Informed observers here believe all three governments are trying to instill in their peoples the idea that at least a spiritual tie binds them.

Premier Mussolini and Reichsfuehrer Hitler, already working in harmony in European affairs, have turned their eyes toward Nippon apparently hoping to include Japan in a line-up opposed to Anglo-French-Soviet co-operation.

(The Trustees are advised that said deed of trust is now overdue and in default, the unpaid balance being $400,000.00 with interest at 4% per annum from October 11, 1936.)

(B) A certain lease dated December 9, 1933, made by Joseph J. Moebs to the Arlington Hotel Company, Inc., lessee, covering the property above described for a period of ten (10) years ending December 8, 1943, further particulars of which, and the assignment thereof by the lessor, to be given at the time of sale.

(C) Such inchoate right of dower as Bertha J. Moebs, the former wife of Joseph J. Moebs, had and may still retain in said property.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash and the balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years from date of sale and to be represented by the promissory notes of the purchaser, bearing interest at the rate of 6% per annum, payable semi-annually, and secured by deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. The property is to be sold subject to the above encumbrances, interest thereon, said inchoate right of dower and taxes unpaid or accrued. A $5,000.00 deposit shall be required of the purchaser at the time of said sale.

TERMS APPLICABLE TO BOTH SALES—All conveyancing, notary fees, recording, revenue stamps and examination of title to be at the cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty (30) days from the approval and ratification thereof by the Court, otherwise the Trustees reserve the right to resell at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser after five (5) days' notice by advertisement of the resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Baldwin Opposes Royal Designation for Mrs. Warfield.

London, May 16.—King George VI, his coronation just over, today found reason for the uneasy rest of crowned heads in the vexing problem of his prospective sister-in-law, Baltimore-born, twice-divorced Wallis Warfield.

In quarters close to the court it was generally held the King himself must settle the question of whether the bride-to-be of the former King Edward is to be fortified with the rank of "Her Hoyal Highness" when she and Edward return to move in semihostile London court and society circles.

The Sunday Referee predicted the King himself will announce the engagement of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Warfield, but even that will not settle the question of her rank.

With the duke's wedding plans to be announced Tuesday, it was believed King George's decision would be forthcoming this week.

Church Backs Baldwin.

It was generally agreed Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin was leading the opposition to according the "H. R. H." and that he had the backing of strong church and court circles. On the other hand, the strong-willed Edward, Duke of Windsor, was equally insistent that his royal but younger brother do the handsome thing by his duchess-to-be.

The Sunday Referee — whose startling predictions have not always come true—said:

"The King this week will announce the engagement. It will be the royal family's first public recognition of the duke's association with Mrs. Warfield.

"The duke has asked the King if he will make an announcement. The King has agreed and it will appear in the London Gazette, the government's official organ, probably on Thursday.

"There are several ways of making such an announcement, and the likely form is:

The King learns with pleasure of the betrothal of his brother to * * *"

Kept to Attend.

The referee said the Duke of Kent, the duke's youngest brother, will be best man at the wedding, and that the Princess Royal, Edward's sister Mary, Countess of Harewood, also will attend, both as representatives of the royal family.

The referee also asserted that Winston Churchill, former cabinet minister, and David Lloyd George, war-time prime minister, may be wedding guests. Both warmly defended Edward during and after the abdication crisis.

It was considered likely Premier Baldwin would discuss the "H. R. H." crisis this week-end with Premier J. A. Lyons of Australia, and Premier J. B. M. Hertzog of South Africa, who are his guests at Chequers, his official country home.

However, most observers believed the dominions leaders were more interested in problems of defense and foreign policy than in how the Duchess of Windsor shall be announced when she enters a ballroom thousands of miles from Cape Town or Canberra.

Duke and Wallis Dine Out.

Monts, France, May 16 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield dined out tonight for the first time since his arrival at the Chateau de Cande.

They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Grafton W. Minot, of Boston and New York society, at the Chateau D'Azay-Sur-Indre, 23 miles from the Chateau de Cande. The only other guests at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Rogers, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Codman, of Boston. It was not an engagement dinner.

Roosevelt Medal Is Won by Dillard

New York, May 16 (AP).—Dr. James Hardy Dillard, educator, of Charlottesville, Va., was announced today as the winner of the 1937 Roosevelt medal "in recognition of 60 years of wise and devoted work in behalf of the American Negro."

The medal, awarded annually by the Roosevelt Memorial Association to individuals outstanding in fields associated with the life of Theodore Roosevelt, will be presented to Dr. Dillard on the seventy-ninth anniversary of the late President's birth, October 27.

The recipient, who is president of the Jeanes Fund for the Improvement of Negro Education, has rendered "distinguished service in the field of social justice," said James E. Garfield, the association's president. The 80-year-old educator was credited also with establishing "a better understanding between the white race and the black."

St. Louis Hotel Strike Ended After One Day

St. Louis, May 16 (AP).—Settlement of a one-day strike which had disrupted service in eight of St. Louis' largest downtown hotels was announced today by William F. Victor, president of the St. Louis Hotel Association. The agreement was reached after nearly 16 hours' negotiation.

Victor said terms of the agreement provided for a closed shop and stipulated that the unions be recognized as the sole bargaining agency for all employes. Union leaders said the 2,000 workers on strike would return to their jobs at once.

Seven Injured in D. C.'s Traffic As Police Prepare 2 Inquests

Man Hurt in Auto's Plunge Over Bank; Unknown Driver Sought; Coroner's Jury Today to Investigate Pair of Deaths.

Seven persons were injured in traffic accidents yesterday as police prepared to hold inquests in two recent fatalities.

Clinton Henry Miles, 27, of 618 Sixth street northwest, was injured seriously when the automobile he was riding in ran over an embankment at Atlantic street and Valley avenue southeast. He was treated at Casualty Hospital for a possible fractured skull and severe cuts.

Police were investigating the accident last night because the driver of the automobile managed to remove the wreckage from the scene before police arrived.

Eleventh Precinct police said Miles was riding in the rear seat with his wife when the accident occurred. They were returning from a dance in southern Maryland and told police they kenw the driver only by the name of "Hood." Police are attempting to locate him.

Helen M. Lambert, 24, 1387 Sheridan street northwest; Alfred B. McGarraghy, 3, and Catherine McGarraghy, 26, his mother, received slight cuts in a collision in the 1300 block Sheridan street northwest.

Lillie Woodside, 54, colored, 1345 First street northwest, was knocked down by an automobile at New Jersey avenue and P street northwest. She suffered abrasions to her side, and shock, and was treated at Freedmen's Hospital.

Morton died in Emergency Hospital last Thursday from injuries suffered when he was struck by the rear end of a derailed street car at Fourteenth and G streets northwest May 7.

Barham was killed instantly Friday when he was thrown from an automobile as it turned a corner at Anacostia road and Blaine street southeast. Barham suffered a broken neck.

Police said Arthur G. Boan, 30, 4002 D street southeast, was driving the car. He will also be at the hearing.

An aged Rockville, Md., resident, Herman Meiser, 84, an inmate of the county home, was critically injured last night when he was struck by an automobile on Falls road.

After treatment by Dr. C. E. Hawks, of Rockville, he was rushed to Montgomery County General Hospital, where he was reported to be suffering from a fractured leg, fractured shoulder and severe shock. The car that struck him was driven by John W. Trout, of Rockville, police said.

After an accident late Saturday, Lemuel B. Copper, driver of a Baltimore, Md., bakery truck, was reported in a serious condition at Montgomery County General Hospital last night.

Hourly Air Trips To N. Y. to Start

The world's most frequent air transportation service will be inaugurated between Washington and New York this morning by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt when she christens the flagship of Eastern Air Lines' air fleet at Washington Airport.

Commissioner Melvin Hazen will be present to receive a special letter of greeting from William Brunner, president of the Board of Aldermen of New York, which will be delivered personally by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, general manager of Eastern Air Lines. Others present this morning will be the First Assistant Postmaster General William Howes; Fred Fagg, jr., director of the Bureau of Air Commerce; Paul H. Brattain, general traffic manager of Eastern Air Lines, and members of the House and Senate.

With "every hour on the hour" departures from 8 a. m. until midnight and "Snack Bar" service on all planes, Eastern Air Lines will put into effect 20 round trips daily between the two cities, in addition to seven round trip flights daily between Washington, Miami, Atlanta, New Orleans, Houston and other poinis.

Pilot Is Fatally Hurt As Plane Falls on Dump

Springfield, Mass., May 16 (U.P.).—One aviator was killed and another critically injured today when their open cockpit Sikorsky plane crashed 30 feet to a dump near Springfield Airport.

Albert Johnson, 43, of Springfield, died at a hospital tonight, several hours after the crash. Adolp Furtek, of West Springfield, 21-year-old student pilot and the plane's owner, was given an even chance to live. Johnson, who held a private license, was believed to have been at the controls, airport officials said.

Michigan Ave. Viaduct Opens On Saturday

Concert and Parade to Feature Dedication Ceremonies.

The new Michigan avenue viaduct will be opened Saturday at 4 p. m. with ceremonies sponsored by the Michigan Park Citizens Association. Dedicatory ceremonies will be preceded by a band concert and a parade.

John J. Hurley, president of the Michigan Park Association, has appointed John F. Hillyard general chairman. Among the officials and dignitaries who have been invited as guests of honor are:

Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen, Dan I. Sultan and George E. Allen, Senators William H. King, of Utah, and Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma; Representatives Mary Norton, of New Jersey, and Ross A. Collins, of Mississippi; the Right Rev. Joseph Corrigan, rector of Catholic University; Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director.

Other members of the committee on arrangements are John M. DeMarco, chairman of the finance committee, and Franklin Adams, vice chairman; C. W. Carhart, chairman of the publicity committee, and Floyd Bush, vice chairman; J. L. Parkhill, chairman of the general arrangements, and E. V. Carr, vice chairman, and Leo Rover, chairman of the reception committee, and William Tobin, vice chairman.

Italy's Imports Gain Despite Duce's Plans

Rome, May 16 (AP).—A sharp increase in Italy's imports, contrasting with Premier Mussolini's prediction that the nation will make herself economically self-sufficient, was reflected in March figures announced today.

Man Dies of Fright In Cemetery Wager

Wranowitz, Czechoslovakia, May 16 (U.P.).—Anton Smula bet a group of drinking companions that he was not afraid to go into a cemetery and steal a wreath from a new grave. The next morning his friends found him dead, his coat caught in a picket fence of the cemetery. Doctors said he died of fright; that he probably thought a ghost had seized him.

Virginia Girl Dies Of Injuries in Fall From Horse Here

Margaret Lois Sours, 19, Merrifield, Va., succumbed in Georgetown Hospital yesterday to injuries suffered Saturday when a horse she was riding stumbled and fell on her.

Police said the young woman was riding in the 2800 block K street northwest when the horse fell. Miss Sours was thrown to the ground and the animal rolled on her.

Taken to the hospital she was said to have suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Miss Sours, who was graduated from Central High School in 1936, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sours.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p .m. from her home.

Score Takes Last Trip On Honeymoon Special

D. C. Police to Get 4 Theft Suspects

Four men held in Winchester, Va., for more than a week will be brought here today for investigation in connection with nearly a score of recent pickpocket thefts.

Investigation here led to the arrest of Sally Fine, 30, listed as the wife of one of the men. She was charged with violating the Harrison narcotic act and held under $500 bond when arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage. A quantity of heroin allegedly was found in her room.

According to Winchester police, the men held are Willie Fine, Harry Kroppe, alias Harry Poleman; Joe Bozel, alias Michaels, alias Goldman, and Sid Harmon, alias Sam Herman, alias George Harris.

Flood Danger Recedes.

Boston, May 16 (AP).—New England streams, swollen yesterday from heavy spring rains, receded today under a clear sky. Signs of possible floods were absent.

NEW YORK, U.S.A.

Dear Sirs,

Today the whole British Empire is celebrating the Coronation of H.M.King George VI and it seems to us appropriate to send by the quickest possible route to you, our United States distributors, our heartiest greetings and good wishes.

We are, therefore, entrusting this letter to Mr. Dick Merrill, to whom we extend our congratulations on his magnificent outward flight and wish the best of luck on his homeward journey.

All of us here send our regards to everyone in your organisation and we congratulate you on the splendid increase in the sales of Johnnie Walker during the past year. Our whiskies are today older and better than ever before - and apparently America thinks so too!

Yours faithfully,
